CYCLE, UMBRELLA CONCESSIONS ON WALKWAY TO BE SOLD BY COUNCIL

Bid Of $28,000 For Five-Year Franchise Is Offered Town By Local Dealer.

RUNWAY FOR CYCLISTS INCLUDED IN PROPOSAL

Final Hearing On Budget For Next Year Is Set For Discussion On Monday.

Possibility that the bicycle and umbrella franchise on the walkway next summer would result in a substantial increase in town revenues was expressed last week when W. A. Reid, of Virginia Beach and Miami, an operator of a bicycle concession for several years, proposed that the Town consider carefully his bid for an exclusive franchise on these rentable items for a five-year period. Willard Ashburn, who represents Mr. Reid in this matter, submitted the proposal to the Town Council.

According to the terms of the proposal, in exchange for the construction by the Town of a runway eight feet wide paralleling the entire length of the walkway for the exclusive use of cyclists, Reid would pay to the Town the sum of $12,000 for a five-year concession on the rental of bicycles and $28,000 for a similar concession for renting umbrellas and beach chairs. As a counter-proposal, Reid promised to construct the cycle path with the approval of the Town Council and to deduct the cost of the construction from the franchise license fees.

After some discussion of the proposal, which appeared to interest the councilmen, it was agreed that the concessions would be advertised at some future date and the contract awarded to the highest bidder. Reid's attorney assured the Council that he would submit a bid at such a time.

Local reaction to the proposal appears to be entirely favorable, although some slight opposition may develop among ocean-front hotel operators who now have their bicycle and umbrella concessions. However, it was pointed out, under the present system of licensing umbrellas and bicycles the Town secures only a few hundred dollars in revenue, while under the new proposal, this amount would be increased to almost $8,000 per year.

Budget Discussed
At the meeting, a tentative budget calling for the expenditure of $227,500 for 1937-38 for municipal purposes was discussed. Final action (Continued on Page Five)

Garden Club Members to Visit Noted Homes on Eastern Shore

Tour Of Historic Countryside Will Take Place Of October Meeting; Virginia Beach Group Invited To Accompany County Club On All-Day Visit.

Members of the Princess Anne Garden Club have planned a tour of old homes and gardens on the Eastern Shore of Virginia for their October meeting, according to an announcement made this week by Miss Elizabeth Gregory Hill, president of the club. An invitation to join the county organization on the tour has been extended to the members of the Virginia Beach Garden Club.

Plans have been made to leave Little Creek on the Pennsylvania Ferry on Monday morning at seven o'clock. Mrs. E. E. Vick, a former member of the Princess Anne Garden Club, will meet the party at Cape Charles and will conduct the group on the tour of the following homes and gardens, all of which are of historic interest:

Homes To Be Visited
"Chatham," built by a descendant of William Pitt, owned by the Misses Scott.
"Van Claus," owned by Able Parker Upshur, who was Secretary of State in President Tyler's cabinet.

"Old Hungers" Church.
"Kendall Grove," owned by Mrs. Costin, a descendant of the family that developed the estate.
"Elkington," home of the Savage family.
"Ingleside," owned by Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis, Mrs. Jarvis, a former Miss Custis, has been offered large sums of money by the Metropolitan Museum for the wallpaper found in the hall of her home.
"Eyre Hall," owned by Miss Baldwin, a descendant of the Eyre family.

Noted for Boxwood
The gardens of these Eastern Shore homes are noted particularly for their old boxwood. Those making the trip have been requested to take box lunches with them, to be eaten at one of the old home listed on the itinerary. In the event of bad weather, the tour will be postponed until a later date.

V. A. SPORTSMEN LIBRARY LISTS WILL ORGANIZE NEW FALL BOOKS

Hunters And Fishermen of County Asked To Cooperate With Other Localities.

Every club or other organization of hunters and fishermen in Princess Anne County is invited to send delegates to the permanent organization meeting of the Virginia Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs which will be held at the Virginia Hotel in Lynchburg on October 20, beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The purpose of the meeting, it has been announced, is to take definite steps to weld all hunters and fishermen in Virginia into an active cooperative and constructive body to bring about laws, rulings and practices that will result in, more and better fishing throughout the State.

Nineteen Divisions
Virginia has been divided into nineteen divisions, each having a chairman and a vice-chairman who will form the board of directors of the federation. This division is composed of the following counties: Lee of Light, Southampton, Nansemond, Norfolk and Princess Anne.

At the recent temporary organization meeting held in Lynchburg in July the following were elected to hold office until the permanent organization meeting: Collins Denny, Jr., of Richmond, president; Harry D. Guy, Jr., of Roanoke, vice-president, and Wilson Mark, of Richmond, secretary and treasurer.

Cooperation Stressed
In a letter just sent to all the division directors, Mr. Denny says: "You understand of course, that the purposes of the federation are entirely cooperative. We do not wish to place any one kind of hunting or fishing over any other."

Birthday Luncheon Planned By Women

The annual Birthday Luncheon of the Women's Club of Princess Anne County will be held at the Pine Tree Inn on Tuesday, October 26, it was announced last week at a meeting of the board of directors. The luncheon, which will be called to order at one o'clock, will be the first meeting of the new season for the club.

An interesting program is being arranged for the luncheon, which will feature a speaker of prominence. Selection of the speaker is expected to be made next week.

Reservations for the Birthday Luncheon may be made by calling Mrs. Roland Thorp, who is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Outstanding Works Of Fiction And Biography Available To Local Patrons.

Outstanding works of fiction and non-fiction are included in the list of new books received this week by the Municipal Library of Virginia Beach. Among the most interesting volumes currently released by the publishers that are now available to local patrons of the library are several books recently reviewed in the News feature. Books to Own, and recommended as most worthwhile for the fall and winter reading diet.

Prize-Winning Novel
"The Seven Who Fled," by Fredrick Prokock, awarded the Harper's Publishing Company's prize as the outstanding novel of the year, has been placed on the library's shelves, together with other best-selling works of fiction such as "The Citadel," by A. J. Cronin, author of the well known "Hatter's Castle," "One Life One Chance," by Walter Duranty, the New York Times' correspondent in Russia, probably the best authority on the Soviet writing for the English-speaking public, and "John Cornelia," by Hugh Walpole, whose series of books dealing with the Herries family has won him a distinguished place in the literary world.

Also available are Louis Bromfield's newest book, "The Rains Came," "The Faithful Wife," by Sigrid Undset; "Let Winter Go," by Isabel Wilder, and "Life With Mother," by Clarence Day. Other volumes include "Shining Headlines," by Sara Ware Bassett; "Recapture the Moon," by Sylvia Thompson; "Storm Girl," by J. C. Lincoln; "Sixteen Rue Cortebel," by Anne Green; "You Can't Have Everything," by Kathleen Norris; "24 Hours a Day," by Faith Baldwin; "The Lost King," by Raphael Sabatini; "Langworthy Family," by Elizabeth Corbett; "Ex-Love," by Mabel Howe Farham; "The Second Mrs. Drake," by Noel Pierce; "No Hearts to Break," by Susan Ertz; "The Nutmeg Tree," by Marjorie Shaw; and "Time to Look At," by Sophie Kerr.

Coward's Volume Listed
"Present Indicative," regarded as the best autobiography of the year, brings Noel Coward's latest bit of writing to the local library. "Of All Places," by the precocious Abbie children, continues the experiences of "I. Patience" and her brothers. David Seabury contributes "Help Yourself to Happiness."

Detective fiction includes "The Moving Finger," by Cordell Fitzsimmons; "Dances in Mourning," by Marjorie Allingham; "Octagon" (Continued on Page Eight)

TOURIST TRAVEL GAINS IN STATE NOTED IN REPORT

Twenty Per Cent Increase In August Over Last Year Revealed By Survey.

LARGER FUND IS ASKED

Commission Seeks Bigger Advertising Appropriation.

Tourist travel in Virginia in August was approximately 20 per cent ahead of the same month of last year, Wilbur C. Hall, chairman of the Virginia Conservation Commission, estimated on the basis of comparative reports on patronage from leading hotels, historic shrines, national parks and natural wonders.

Twenty-seven of thirty-four hotels reporting show gains averaging 15 per cent. Four indicated no change for August as compared with the same month of last year. While three noted decreases averaging about 4 per cent.

Tourist Increase General

Five natural wonders reported gains averaging about 30 per cent, one noting an increase of 73 per cent. Thirteen of seventeen principal historic shrines reported increases for the month, averaging about 20 per cent. Three recorded decreases and one reported patronage about the same.

"The Shenandoah National Park (Skyline Drive) recorded 191,494 visitors or a gain of 22 per cent above the same month of last year. The park, however, is averaging 55 per cent more visitors for the present travel year as compared with the past travel year, and is approaching 1,000,000 visitors for the present year.

Historic Shrines Gain

The Colonial National Historical Park announced a gain of 47 per cent. Registrations at the Richmond National Military Park were 11 per cent ahead of August of last year, although visitors checked in the area increased 20 per cent. The Petersburg National Military Park had 9,225 visitors, which was a peak month. Visitors were recorded from forty-three states and four foreign countries.

Stratford has 2,228 visitors, as compared with 2,159 for August, 1936, while Wakefield had 11,371 visitors, a gain of 12 per cent over August of last year. Jamestown recorded 9,083 visitors as compared with 8,043 last year.

ROAD WANDERER HELD DANGEROUS

Motor Vehicle Director Warns Drivers To Stay On Right Hand Side Of Highway.

Failure to drive on the right hand side of the road is responsible for a great number of traffic accidents in Virginia, it was pointed out this week by John Q. Rhodes, Jr., Director of the Division of Motor Vehicles.

Drivers who forget this elementary rule of the road and who wander over into the lane reserved for approaching traffic are inviting disaster, he said. A car traveling at high speed on the left side of the road is a potential death trap not only for its own occupants but for the innocent driver obeying the law who is coming from the opposite direction around a curve or over a hill. The most disastrous accidents are those that happen head-on, and they usually occur because somebody failed to drive on the right hand side of the road. In such an accident, two cars traveling at 45 miles an hour hit with the force of one car running at 90 miles an hour into a solid concrete wall. The aftermath of such a collision is a most unpleasant sight.

"Keep to the Right"

The Motor Vehicle Code provides that except when passing a car proceeding in the same direction, which passing shall take place where there is a sufficient clear distance in view ahead and (Continued on Page Eight)

To Play Here Wednesday

Jerusha Abbott, played by Katherine Minehart, and two orphans who will be seen at the Willoughby T. Cooke School Auditorium on Wednesday night in Jean Webster's "Daddy Long Legs."

Daddy Long-Legs to Open Play Season at School Auditorium

Parent-Teacher Association Of Willoughby T. Cooke School Sponsors Entertainment Series; Performance Will Begin at 8 o'Clock Wednesday.

"Daddy Long-Legs," the playfems and blossoming plants bring which the Clare Tree Major Company of New York will present close and prepared under the care of district where business auspices of the Willoughby T. Cooke P. T. A., tells the story of the life of a clever child whose misfortune it was to be brought up in an orphan asylum in the days when such places were little better than prisons. It offers a striking comparison with present day humane methods of child rearing.

In the John Grier Home of the story were sixty-eight orphans of all sizes under sixteen years of age. The girls were dressed alike in plain blue-check gingham dresses, the boys in navy blue denim. Two brands, long or short, tied with a band of gingham, marked every female head. The dining room was a bare place. Long deal tables with benches on each side filled the dreary room. Heavy plates held the uninteresting food. The daily assignment of tasks was made without consideration of personalities. Indeed, there were no personalities, merely young human animals that had to be fed and clothed until they reached the self-supporting age of sixteen.

There are still orphan asylums, of course, although they may not be called that; they bear little resemblance to the John Grier Home. Uniforms are bright and pretty, as they might be in a boarding school. The dining room tables have gay cloths. Bright bowls of flowers adorn them. The windows are gay with hangings.

Oceana And Suffolk Play Scoreless Game

Last Friday afternoon on the Suffolk field, the Oceana eleven was held to a scoreless tie with the Suffolk High School football team. Although the game was a winnowing scoring distance, at one time Oceana had the ball on their opponents' two-yard line, the goalposts lacked the punch to push across the score.

Carson Davis and Bulman and Dekker, all backfield men, played a promising and according to the line showed considerable superiority over previous teams. The lineup for last Friday's game which is expected to start against South Norfolk this afternoon on the South Norfolk field was as follows: left end, Spence; left tackle, Swayer; left guard, Carter; right guard, Carter; right tackle, Jordan; right end, Bull; quarterback, Dekker; left half, Caffery; right half, Daveson; fullback, Bulman.

STATE DIRECTOR SAYS PWA READY TO START WORK ON SEWER PLANS

Project Among Eight State Jobs That Were Given Presidential Approval.

COMPLETION DATE SET DURING WINTER MONTHS

Council Authorizes Special Bond Issue To Pay Town's Share Of Costs.

The proposed sewage disposal plant for Virginia Beach, for which a Federal contribution of 45 per cent of the entire cost was sought by local Town officials, will be built with Public Works Administration backing this fall and winter, Sheridan P. Gorman, State director of PWA, definitely announced this week when interviewed by a reporter of the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

This request for Federal assistance was one of eight state projects which managed to get under the approval wire just before President Roosevelt announced recently the death of PWA, Mr. Gorman said, adding that reports being circulated to the effect that the money might not be forthcoming because of the Presidential action were entirely unfounded. Fears that this project would not be completed now may be dispelled, the director asserted, for PWA will complete its work.

Local Fears Exposed

(Locally, because of a delay in the securing of the approved funds, fears for the future of the project have been openly expressed. The delay, it now is learned, is due entirely to the development of a new set of regulations regarding the expenditure of the almost $1,000,000 allocated to a variety of projects here in the State by the President, which are expected to be issued, together with the allocations, before October draws to a close.)

Speaking specifically of the Virginia Beach project, Mr. Gorman told the Richmond News-Paper that as soon as specifications are ready, bids will be asked on the job and work on the plant will then be pushed through the fall and winter months.

Called "Health Insurance"

The existing sewer connections and disposal plant at Virginia Beach were built for a town of 12,000. The PWA director declared that they are inadequate since 60,000 persons often visit the "famous resort" during a single summer day. The proposed improvement will pay for itself in "health insurance," Mr. Gorman concluded.

The local sewage disposal system, which will cost $168,000 to complete, is one of eight approved projects in Virginia. Others listed by Mr. Gorman are a water supply system for Washington County, a sewer project for Keysville, a water system for Herndon, and school buildings for Norfolk, Marion, Concord and Ocean View.

Plans Near Completion

According to local information the plans and specifications for the disposal plant are now nearing completion in the offices of Wiley and Wilson, construction engineers of Lynchburg and Richmond, who drafted the original plans for the project and who will supervise its construction. When these are approved by the Washington headquarters of the PWA, all will be in readiness for the beginning of construction, and it is the belief of those most closely associated with the details that this date will be announced within the next several weeks.

At the regular meeting of the Town Council held late last week, the sale of $92,400 of revenue producing bonds to meet the Town's share of the cost of construction was authorized by a unanimous vote of the councilmen. The balance of the cost, $76,600, which represents 45 per cent of the total sum to be expended, will be furnished by the Federal Government. (Continued on Page Five)

"THE VOICE of a majority, swaying the course of government does not insure good government except it be the voice of a well-informed and well-intentioned people."

LIGHTS FOR THE WALKWAY

If Virginia Beach is to continue its bid for all year tourist patronage, the Town officials must eliminate such seeming economies as are to be found in the perennial night cutting off the walkway lights between October 1 and the opening of the next spring season. That action, as we see it, while calculated to save a few dollars, does more to harm fall and winter business than any other single factor inherent in Beach life.

Numerous complaints already have reached us from both residents and visitors who feel that they are being "cheated" out of one of the resort's biggest attractions as a consequence of that action. Strolling along the walkway on a pleasant night such as holds here generally throughout the fall is held to be a feature of more than usual interest to the off-season visitor, and the absence of light naturally eliminates the pleasure of such a stroll. More the barrage of local publicity and advertising to the contrary, it fairly shrieks the message that this is a "dead spot," to be shunned by tourists except during the summer months. And that, we maintain, is unfair to the businesses and hotels that are attempting to bring greater prosperity to the Beach by developing an all-year clientele.

It is bad enough that the eastern side of Atlantic Avenue must be cloaked in darkness. But light for the walkway—a permanent, all year attraction—that is a need which no foolish economy should be allowed to eliminate.

THE CHILDREN'S THEATRE RETURNS

Having had a taste last spring of how entertaining and enjoyable a bona fide theatrical performance could be, the Parent-Teacher Association of the Willoughby T. Cooke School took advantage of the available opportunity to bring the Children's Theatre players back to our performance, but for a series of three, the first of which will be offered on Wednesday night in the auditorium of the Virginia Beach School.

The story of "Daddy Long Legs," Jean Webster's tale of the orphaned girl and her wealthy protector, is too well known to need repetition in these columns, but the announcement that the popular classic of childhood is to be dramatized by a group of talented young men and women should be news of sufficient importance and interest to pack the auditorium to the very doors when it is offered here by the Children's Theatre of New York City. Contrary to the usual school offerings, this is no "rankly amateur" production that could hold no possible interest for any but the parents of the performing children. It is as all of the presentations of this well-known group a distinct theatrical offering that will move with all of the snap and verve of the dialogue found in the book itself.

We would recommend that every person, both child and adult, who can get to the auditorium on Wednesday night take advantage of the opportunity presented by the players and relive again those unforgettable scenes that are certain to bring back many memories of childhood days. We make this recommendation, not with the thought of awakening "civic pride" or any such abstraction, but with the certainty that a good time is in store for all who do attend.

The community, as we see it, owes a debt of gratitude to the Parent-Teacher Association for making this opportunity possible of seeing distinctive and truly worthwhile entertainment.

A SOLUTION TO THE CYCLING PROBLEM

The proposal that the Town construct a runway parallel to the ocean walkway for the sole use of cyclists and that in return for this innovation a substantial license fee be collected from those to whom an exclusive franchise is given should go far towards removing present discontent with the existing setup of allowing both pedestrians and riders to use the same strip of concrete, while it opens up new possibilities of revenue for the hard-pressed treasury of the Town.

It must be admitted at the outset, however much we may dislike the hazardous arrangement that now prevails, that cycling at the water's edge is one of the major enjoyments offered to the summer visitor. From morning until night, in all kinds of weather, old and young vacationists are to be found riding on the walkway, and it is suggested by this season's patronage, the cycling fad is increasing in popularity each year. It would be unfortunate, therefore, if the Council were to place a ban on all cycling activity and so eliminate a distinct pleasure for which there is a big demand.

If the proffered suggestion should be accepted by the Council, it seems to us that the advocates of both camps of opinion should be satisfied. A separate stretch of concrete for the bicycles would eliminate much of the danger to life and limb that is present today and, at the same time, it would permit the rider to take his exercise and recreation as he has been accustomed to in past years with the noticeable difference that he would not be interfering with the acknowledged rights of the pedestrian. It may be that our decision in this matter is a hasty one, but we are inclined to believe that the proposal is not without merit.

As it would settle the present dissension between walkers and riders, the solution offered by Mr. Reid also would be of value to the Town treasury. And, while we would not be too mercenary in this regard, that treasury must be considered on occasion and ways and means found to replenish it without resorting to the simplest of all procedures—and the most unpopular—of raising taxes.

MR. ROOSEVELT WINS A BATTLE

Under this title, there recently appeared in the Saturday Evening Post an editorial that struck us as one of the best we ever have read on the President. Without further ado, we reprint it here for our readers:

"Bouncing back from his defeat on the Supreme Court, the President gave Thomas Babington Macaulay a terrific drubbing on Roanoke Island. Kingsiders agreed that the British invader looked pretty bad and suggested that the fact that he had been dead for seventy-eight years might account for it. Macaulay was a good man in his day.

"The President quoted at length from the historian, yet overlooked one pertinent Macaulayism. It was Macaulay who said Mark Pitt: 'He could never see any immortality in any act by which he benefited.'"

"Early-nineteenth-century Tories would have been partly gleeful, partly incredulous to hear a man they regarded as a malignant reformer and liberal epitomized as the voice of reaction. If Mr. Roosevelt's title to power and his caprices did not hang so heavily over the welfare of the American citizen, it would be funny to remember that Macaulay was a man of much the same pattern as his critic. The President's Roanoke Island version of the Constitution was worthy of Macaulay himself, but not merely exuberant, but even Mark Pitt. Mr. Roosevelt said of the historian, 'There is an overweening confidence about his tone; he expresses himself in trite phrases; which are like challenges to all opponents to stand up and deny them. His prophecies have no qualifications. Uninstructed readers of Macaulay's histories' like this assurance, as they like a physician who has no doubt about their case. But a sense of distrust grows upon the more circumspect reader as he follows page after page of categorical affirmations about matters which our own experience of life teaches us to be of a contingent nature."

"Or as Lord Melbourne said, 'I wish I were as cocksure of one thing as Macaulay is of everything.'"

SLOW SUN AND MOON

Across the slow arc of this little bridge
Spanning the narrow garden river Walked
My proud ancestors robed in silk and ivory.
One carved this panel in the Wall of Friends.
One with eager tolling curved the long
And twisting pathway. Here on flowery days
Came the young and old with laughter and song.
Now they are gone. No remnant of their music
Floats upon the quiet air. Alone
I cross the grass and in deep solitude
Gaze upon the gray ancestral stone.
The very names are dimming into dust
On the rain-worn rock, and time will see
My own name losing here, slow sun and moon.
The deep grooves of its ancient character.

Sons of my son will lean upon the bridge.
Scan the ancestral stone and say,
"Here walked
Our father's whose proud names are dimmed to dust.
Under this pale mimosa tree they talked."

THE GREAT TREES WAIT

Only man works to make his living longer.
To feed the flesh, establish brain and brawn.
High on the hills, more wise and how much stronger,
The great trees wait from sunset unto dawn.
From dawn to sunset, Effortless, they gather
Something that quickens into bark and root.
Only man seeks for life; the great trees, rather,
Are letting life seek every branch and shoot.
Only man rushes headlong, hither,
yonder,
Lost in a vain attempt to prolong life.
High on the hills the great trees dream and ponder,
Serene above man's struggle and his strife.
Unmoved they wait, content to stand and give God's endless flow of life a place to live.

TWILIGHT SORROW

How soundless his grief
Is come upon him here,
Where every muted leaf
Entered by sudden fear,
Forbears to move at all,
Where not again tonight
The kildeer's piercing call
Will mark his lonely flight!
Not of his grief is wrought
This eerie quietude;
But, having lately caught
Within this interlude
The truth of greater woe
Than he can hope to bear,
He is constrained to know
That sorrow fashioned there
Is potent to create
In any happy beast
A sadness deep and great,
A long and strange unrest.

THERE WAS DRAMA AND DESPAIR

There was something in the movement of her hand
that her word gave not away.
As it fluttered I could understand what she had to say.
There was drama and despair, and in its fall
there was death, like a grey bird shot.
In a single little gesture there was all that the world forgot.

At The Water's Edge

By DON SEIWELL

WE GAIN A CORRESPONDENT

A wholly unsolicited—and equally undeserved—letter that made its way to our desk this week has had us in such a tickle since its arrival that, because of its all-too-human qualities, we take this opportunity to make it a matter of record and, at the same time, to deny that we have had any part in what might possibly have been a most promising and tender affair between the charmer in question and her completely anonymous boy friend who, apparently, passed himself off as the editor of the Virginia Beach News.

There are many delights in our mailbox. Drama and comedy, fact and fiction, self-effacement and self-advancement, curses and praise—all seem to make their way to the editorial desk at one time or another, and because each reveals an interesting aspect of human nature, we read them all and attempt to profit from their lessons. That which concerns us today is one of the strangest we ever received. It most certainly was not meant to become public property—"read it and burn it" was the note of injunction on which it ended—but we cannot refrain from devoting this column to the thoughts which it provoked.

But, first the letter, which was addressed to "The Editor of the Virginia Beach News paper at Virginia Beach Princess Anne County Virginia." (Insofar as is possible, we shall give the spelling and punctuation of the priceless original!)

"My Dearest Friend," it begins, "just a few lines so you can hear from me. I know this will be a surprise to you to here from the lady that you taken to the show at wells last Saturday while you had the hour to wait for your bus and you got up and went out and left me sitting there by my lonely self."

(Having read thus far, though, in spite of the address, we knew that the letter was not meant for us—our abbi for that Saturday afternoon is an ironclad one—we couldn't help but continue. The cad, to leave a lady "sitting" by herself in a dark movie house: ten thousand curses on his head!)

"I don't guess many of you think that you will ever see me a gain over, as you do not know how I thank you for taken me to the show Sat. But was so sorry to think that you got up and left me. how a bout taken in a nother shore this Sat. in Norfolk on Gramby Street at the loaves.

"I'll meet the buss that leaves the beech dyrect to Norfolk at three o'clock and we will meet on the buss at (blank) it will put us in town at 4 clock that will be plenty of time we can go to the shore and get something to drink before the eight o'clock buss comes out direct to the beech.

"I really don't think you are a fine young man and a real ideal young man the one I could love so well, some time I am at the beech I'll look you up (truly do we hope not—the parenthesis are ours) and we can take in a show with you down there. Dearest friend want you send me a copy of the Va. Beach paper this week, I'll get it Sat. if you dont mind and put you name on the paper for me so I know how to spell it.

"well I'll meet you Sat. on the 3 clock buss from the beech. I am loosed now—from the Lady that you taken to the show Sat.

"P. S. Just a word from the one that think you are just Grand the ideal lovin' man, oh boy don't forget Sat. evening, dont you worry a bout my old man he will not know any thing a bout our a fairer, that is some thing I never tell him at all a bout my a fairer, rain or shine I'll be on the buss Sat.

"From your friend—the Lady you take to the show Sat. did you really seen the picture are you did want to set in there with me, want that it. my beloved friend hope to see you soon—read it and burn it, good by."

Although we are quick to appreciate the possibilities of dreariness in her usual life and of utter unconcern on the part of her "old man" for her imagined charms, we are forced to reply to the good lady that someone other than ourselves met her on the buss last Sat. and that someone other than ourselves posed as the editor of this good sheet. We are not by nature a philanthropic mortal, and the tardy pickups on bus or street corner are not for us. If she enjoys that sort of thing and will make inquiry as to the exact location of her loving man, we will be glad to pass along her note to him and wish them luck when next they meet along on Gramby Street at the loaves.

For threatening to reprint this ecstatic note instead of doing the kind thing and throwing it away, we already have been charged with being the possessor of a streak of cruelty. Others to whom we have communicated our prospective action have applauded our course, and, since it is our belief that publication may serve to convince even the indiscreet of the folly of expressing ourselves too freely on paper, we offer it to our readers as a choice example of how not to act. However strongly a forbidden "love bug" may bite us. Since the time of Eve the temptation to wander in forbidden lands has been a major prompting afflicting the mortals of high or low estate. Whether the billet doux be written on a handmade paper dipped in a rare perfume or whether, as in this instance, it be a bit of paper taken from a school student's notebook, so universal has become this human frailty that it scarcely deserves comment. It is funny only when the tender sentiments fall into the hands of the unintended, and then, because the rendezvous falls to be made reality, it may possibly spell violent heartache for the injured party.

So, if we are casting about for an excuse for printing this note, we may find it in the fact that the good lady concerned will, when she had read our words, realize to her dismay that her tender sentiments were misdirected. And, to allay any fears that she may have, we assure her that wild horses couldn't drag from us the mention of the name that was signed to her sentimental rondo on a theme that is no stranger anywhere. Her secret is safe with us, and for that she may thank her lucky stars.

If we might essay the role of a Dorothy Dix for the moment, we would tell the good lady in question, and all such good ladies, that affairs of this nature are definitely unsatisfactory and, frequently, lead quite inadvertently to ruin. There will be liaisons so long as the world exists, but for the average person they will ever be pretty much poison. Few can play with fire without being burned, and the pleasures found in "stepping out" seldom compensate for the grief that comes when the little game is discovered. Civilized man being but little removed from the savage, the consequences often are drastic in their nature and not worth the slight element of novelty which is all that can be found before the denouement comes.

However, it is not our concern when other men and women disregard the canons of right and wrong which society have established as proper rules of conduct. We are, on the contrary, concerned when we are innocently dragged into an affair that is neither of our choice nor to our liking, and we disavow the protestations of friendship which ostensibly have been made to us. Soft lights and sweet music, rather than the roar and jostling of a boulevard bus, will be the lure that we shall fight, and the place of our meeting will not be a Norfolk theatre. But, then, we are not anticipating any such diversion from our usual routine at any specific time, so we shall say no more about it.

Though formed into different colonies and later into states, New England has always held a marked degree of unity because of similarity in religious and political feeling and in economic life.
American tourist visitors to Sweden increased nearly 60 per cent in a year.

THE CITY SLICKER

As Others See It

ELECTRICITY FOR FARMS

Approximately twenty per cent of the American farm homes accessible to electric power lines have not taken service, despite the intensive promotion by private industry and the Federal Government. C. W. Kellogg, president of the Edison Electric Institute, said recently in releasing preliminary results of a rural electrification survey. Just what the percentage is in Georgia the electric companies are unable to say, but it is believed Georgia's participation would be slightly lower than the national average.

The survey suggests that except in areas where a relatively high degree of electrification exists the number of farms not taking electric service is definitely related to the number of "low income" farms, as measured by the 1930 census of agriculture based on occupied farm dwellings valued at less than $500.

In the New England and Far Western states over ninety per cent of the farms on distribution lines are taking service. In the Middle Atlantic States, eighty-five per cent, and in the Middle West about eighty per cent of such farms are connected. In the Southern states less than two-thirds of the farms are taking service, the survey shows.

The investigation shows that occupied farmsteads within reasonable distance of distribution lines total one million, four hundred, twenty thousand, six hundred and thirty-five. Of this number one million, one hundred thirty-eight thousand, three hundred and thirty-five are using electric service, approximately one hundred twenty-five thousand having been connected during the first six months of the year. The total number of farms connected represent seventeen and five-tenths per cent of all occupied farmsteads, and twenty-five and eight-tenths per cent of all farms where the dwelling is valued at more than five hundred dollars.

It is certain that the farmers who fail to connect with the electric service are financially unable to do so. They desire the convenience of electric service just as the city dwellers do and they find uses for it that increase their farm income. The solution, therefore, appears for the electric people to help the farmers develop their agricultural pursuits in such a way that their annual income will be increased. It would be a profitable enterprise for the companies and for the farmer alike.—Atlanta Journal.

TRIALS AS SHOWS

More than a year ago a committee of the American Bar Association made a report on what it called the "hippodroming" of criminal justice and recommended rules to stop "prejudicial publicity" in criminal cases. A "sensational" murder trial is utterly remote from a solemn trial of justice. Crowds struggle to get into the theatre. Some times the sheriff may sit in the box office. A considerable part of the public is on the edge of hysteria. The too eager camera man regards himself as a greater man than the judge.

Reputable newspapers want no part in a scandalous and shameful entertainment. The American Newspaper Publishers Association and the American Society of Newspaper Editors are represented on the committee of the American Bar Association, headed by Mr. Newton D. Baker, that has just brought in a report condemning the degradation of criminal trials into public amusements. Among the practices they censure are:

Discussion of trials by witnesses in speeches, magazine articles or newspaper interviews; broadcasting of arguments and giving out of argumentative press bulletins by lawyers, and public criticism of the court or jury during the trial.

The committee agrees with the report of 1936 that attendance in the court room should be limited, its seating capacity. In 1936 it was proposed that camera men who took pictures in court, should be punished for contempt. This year the lawyers on the committee recommend that pictures should not be taken without the consent of the judge and counsel for the defense. So we have some excellent proposals of reform, but when will reform begin? Some American prosecuting officers have a curious notion of their function and of the purpose of a criminal trial. In Canada the crown counsel, to quote an eminent authority, Justice Riddell of the Ontario Supreme Court, "is there to bring out the facts for as well as against the defendant. He never urged his conviction. Should he press unduly for that he would call down a severe rebuke—from the presiding judge."

A Canadian criminal trial is not a competition for glory between the prosecutor and the attorney for the defense. Reputation is not won by gaining or impaired by losing a case. Canada is so simple as to believe that the object of a trial is to do justice. To many of our prosecutors and defenders it is an opportunity of advertising. Lawyers, playing to the public, are the first promoters of the court as theatre. Can't the offenders by made amenable to reason and decency? Often have we read codes of ethics for the bar or bar associations. Lawyers are forbidden to advertise. Yet they do advertise themselves copiously, in many ways and most indecorously in these criminal cases, and long before they are tried.

In 1936 the committee suggested that the courts be given by statute wide check on "prejudicial publicity." In the court room it self haven't the judges power enough now if they have the courage to use it, as some of them have? It is the judge's own fault. If he allows the court to be turned into a monkey house.

SWINGING IT

One of the most ridiculous enterprises recently launched on a mad and dizzy world is to have "swing music" barred by legislation as injurious to morals. Arthur Crenin, president of the American Creative League of Music Students (whatever that may be), is the author of this project. Mr. Crenin avers that he has proved the "immorality" of "swing music" by laboratory experiment. The results apparently are based on psychiatric theory. If Mr. Crenin is endeavoring to obtain publicity as director of what is described as the New York School of Music he is succeeding admirably. If he is actually in earnest, however, his attempt is a monkey house.

BOOKS TO OWN

JOHN CORNELIUS: HIS LIFE AND ADVENTURES. By Hugh Walpole. Doubleday, Doran and Company, 425 pp. $3.00.

(A Review by Alfred Buffin McEwen, Instructor in English, University of Virginia.)

It is, no doubt, an unfortunate habit of critics to compare an author's current production with his best previous work, but we cannot help but feel that the Walpole who wrote "John Cornelius" is far below the standard of the "Fortitude" or "The Cathedral". Despite rare flashes of his old genius at portraying character, despite the unflagging attention to verisimilitude, and despite the author's role as a spectator and a listener in the novel is often unconvincing. But then, Walpole has tried to portray an unreal character, a person whose action and thought was not of this world, as may be witnessed by the epiphany that Walpole chose for Cornelius's grave: "It may be said of him truly that he loved his fellowmen, but with equal truth that he was always a stranger in the world that they had made." It is superfluous, of course, to say that Walpole has genius, and to add that "John Cornelius" is far above the average of contemporary literary productions. However, the book is definitely disappointing, the chief character is elusive, often unpleasant; and at times one is actually made uncomfortable by the impact of the gross realities of the world upon John Cornelius.

The story of John Cornelius's life is perhaps that of many struggling, sensitive souls who are beset with the twin burden of poverty and ambition. One is tempted to compare, on this ground, the story of Peter Westcott, in "Fortitude" with that of Cornelius; Westcott's is a success story which follows the career of an intelligent worldly man in his chosen profession, the writing of novels. Cornelius is the story of a spiritual, unworried man in the same field. The thing about Cornelius was that he could never adapt himself, he could never learn. The lesson that Westcott taught was that one should have courage; and that, with courage, one could win over any obstacle. The lesson that Cornelius teaches is that success is within, that sincerity and fidelity within one's self are the sources of an happiness that cannot be supplanted by any worldly achievement. However hurt and cast down John Cornelius may have been by any of the unfortunate things that happened to him, he forgets quickly his hurts and bruises and became as happy as any child over some such trifle as a flower, or a smile, or a bit of praise. Here is an Edgar Allan Poe, or a Baudelaire, without any capacity for bitterness, for melancholy, or hate. Here is a Shelley without the Promethean quality, and without the intellect. Here is a beautiful spirit in an ugly shell, an egoist unchastened by failure, a child in a man's body, living, despite his contacts with the world that is, in a fairy world of his own which is inaccessible to friend and foe alike.

We think that Walpole's preoccupation with his theme, his intense interest in his portrayal of the ugly Gloucestershire boy who went to London to win success as a novelist, and who was known finally as a writer of magnificent fairy stories—his very anxiety to succeed in this portrayal, we say, doomed him to a partial failure, at least. Bolstered with every trick of the experienced novelist, with letters, with reported conversations, with opinions of contemporaries, and with every fine detail of the literary life of London that Walpole knows so well, there is yet something about "John Cornelius" that escapes the reader, that escapes the author, even; for it escapes rationally. It is as if an intimate associate of William Burke had tried to explain that essentially unreal poet to the world at large. We think that Walpole is conscious of the fact that his portrayal of Cornelius is not wholly satisfactory, for we detect a faint note of apology throughout the book, as if he were introducing a loved friend to a group of people of whose reaction he is not at all sure.

One of the most revealing books which has been written about the medical profession in recent years is A. J. Cronin's "The Citadel," which has aroused a storm of comment both favorable and unfavorable. It is ostensibly a live story is A. J. Cronin's "The Citadel." Impetuous, red-headed firebrand, whose pathway to personal integrity and happiness is beset by the ignorance, obstinacy, and dishonesty of the members of his own profession. The human interest of this novel is not submerged in the technicalities of its subject, and one follows with intense interest the young doctor's battle for his own honesty and the improvement of his fellow men.

Seldom can we accord to any historical novel the unqualified praise which we bestow upon Heinrich Mann's "Young Henry of Navarre" which is the life story of Henry IV of France so revealingly told that he walks and breathes, as alive as any street urchin of today selling newspapers on a city street. A scholarly work in which the dry dust of history is swept away by the freshness and modernity of Mann's treatment of his subject, Young Henry of Navarre, with its intrigue and subtle diplomatic clashes between Catherine de Medici and her enemies, and its pictorialization of bloody war, is particularly interesting in these turbulent times.

Out of the labyrinth of Little Brown and Company's prize contest for short novels, appeared one novelle of distinct merit. Wallace Stegner's "Remembering Laughter," a stark, swift-moving story of three tragic lives on an Iowa farm, reminds us inevitably of Edith Wharton's classic, "The House of Mirth"; but despite external

POSTER TEACHES SAFETY LESSON

Visual Education Series Reported To Be Arousing Interest Among Children.

Safety lessons learned by youngsters in the schoolroom are being utilized in the training of their pets, with the result that fewer are killed in city traffic, according to John B. Dey, Vice-President of the Tidewater Automobile Association, who made the statement in connection with the AAA safety poster for October, now being widely distributed to schools.

"The 1937-38 series of AAA safety posters," said Mr. Dey, "built around a school patrolman named 'Al' and his dog 'Ace,' has captured the fancy of school children and they are showing new interest in this form of visual safety education. This interest is reflected in increased demands from schools for the new posters and they will undoubtedly reach a larger number of younger students than ever before."

The October poster, in color, shows the young patrolman "Al" commending a small pup for halting at the curb before crossing the street. "Good pup! You've learned where to cross," is the message on the poster and it is anticipated that it will arouse widespread interest among children.

Mr. Dey said that the "Al" and "Ace" series of posters for the new school year was decided upon after a series of conferences between traffic specialists and educators who were unanimous in the opinion that it would offer a novel approach in the direction of holding child interest.

The Tidewater Automobile Association is one of hundreds of AAA motor clubs throughout the country cooperating with schools in reaching students with timely safety posters.

When there's a doubt about whether a dress ornament or a piece of jewelry is appropriate it is best to leave it off.

similarities the spirit and the warmth of Stegner's treatment of his splendid situation will appeal to most readers as a classic in its own right.

GOOD PUP!

BAYNE THEATRE PREVUES

Presenting Bobby Breen for the first time as a modern, red blooded American boy, his new picture, "Make A Wish," which will be shown today and tomorrow, October 8 and 9, is a romantic, musical plot, with the leads played by Basil Rathbone and Marion Claire. The story tells an intriguing tale of a great friendship begun in a summer camp—the attachment of a sophisticated composer for a manly boy.

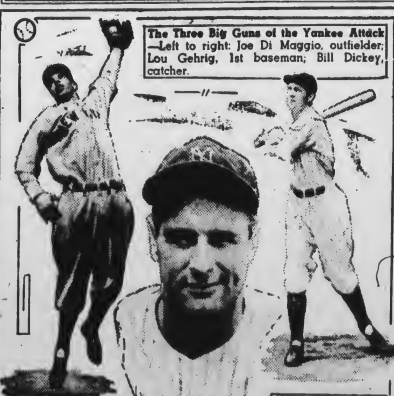

Luise Rainer and Spencer Tracy are teamed for the first time on the screen in "Big City," which comes to the Bayne Theatre Sunday, October 10 for a two-day showing. The story deals with the fortunes of an immigrant girl who battles her way to success in America, and to love via marriage to a New York taxicab driver.

A double feature has been booked for Tuesday, October 12. Victor Moore and Helen Broderick share starring honors in "Meet the Missus," the hilarious comedy dealing with the happenings during a convention at Atlantic City where legions of women are gathered to compete for the title of the Average American Housewife, or Missus America." Anne Shirley and Alan Bruce have the romantic leads. Larry Crabbe rides the range again as a happy-go-lucky cowhand, out for a feast, a fight or a frolic in "Fortior River," the Zane Grey story which also will be shown on Tuesday. In this story Crabbe and his pal prevent the theft of 2,000 horses consigned to the United States Cavalry, by Harvey Stephens and his band of desperados. The cast also includes June Martell and John Patterson.

"Marry the Girl," a rollicking farce-comedy, which is scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, October 13 and 14, presents an outstanding cast of talented and famed fun-makers. Among them are Frank McHugh, Hugh Herbert, Mary Boland, Mischa Auer, Carol Hughes, Allen Jenkins and Teddy Hart. The tale begins in the offices of a big newspaper syndicate, progresses to a sanatorium conducted by a balmey psychiatrist, and includes more or less "tched in the head" writers, cartoonists, editors, authors and the like, to say nothing of a couple of gangsters.

YANKS IN THE WORLD SERIES

Heavy Artillery for the '37 World Series—Jake Powell (left), N. Y. Yankee outfielder and batting star of the last World Series.

Co-Op Short Course Gaining in Support

A short course at Hackburg for leaders of cooperatives in Virginia apparently has been assured by enough registrations to make the plan feasible, according to Dr. Gordon Ward, assistant economist of the agricultural extension service. The course is expected to be held during the first week in December.

"It promises to be a very interesting week of discussion of important questions for cooperative associations of all kinds," Dr. Ward said. Managers, directors, officers and employees of co-ops are especially invited to attend.

Speakers are expected to be from the Farm Credit Administration, the Baltimore Bank for Cooperatives, and the V. P. I. staff.

THE ENERGY TRIO—MACARONI, SPAGHETTI AND EGG NOODLES

No matter how long or short it is, if it's spaghetti or macaroni you have a food product that will result in a meal which good thrift and good taste will both applaud. If you have ever wondered about the difference in these two popular foods, it may be news to you to learn that there is none, except for the various forms and sizes in which both may be purchased. The ingredients used in the process of manufacture are exactly the same in each product. A coarsely ground flour, called "semolina" if made from durum or macaroni wheat, or called "farina" when made from hard spring wheat, is mixed with pure water to form a dough which is later shaped by pressing through a cylinder and forming die. Later the added water is evaporated in the curing process, the results—a pure, very economical wheat food, known as macaroni or spaghetti.

The most popular form of spaghetti is that which comes in the long, solid strands. Macaroni is hollow and not quite as long. Another popular form for macaroni is the short cut or elbow variety. A third member of this famous energy trio is egg noodles. Egg noodles, as the name implies, contain a specified quantity of eggs and have a natural rich golden color. The variety of shapes and lengths of these macaroni products makes their versatility even greater, for they are interchangeable in practically all recipes.

Most everyone has at some time enjoyed a dish of real Italian spaghetti in a favorite restaurant, and perhaps wished it might be possible to prepare such a grand dish at home. If you would like to begin a career as one who is renowned for your ability to prepare Italian spaghetti, jot down the following recipe. If a little added care is given to the preparation of the sauce, as well as cooking the spaghetti itself, it will mean the difference between just so-called results and something really grand. Either one of these sauces will add the final supreme touch of marvelously good flavor to your recipe.

Spaghetti—With Meat or Meatless Sauces

Cook 1 lb. spaghetti in rapidly boiling salted water until tender. Drain and serve with meat balls, meat sauce, or meatless sauce.

Meatless Sauce

Cook for about one hour over a slow fire—1 can tomatoes (strained), 1 can tomato paste, 2 onions sliced, 2 tablespoons butter, and salt and pepper to taste. Stir frequently. Serve on hot spaghetti and sprinkle with grated cheese.

Meat Sauce

To the ingredients for the Meatless Sauce, add a half pound of ground fresh or left-over meat. Cook as directed.

A more elaborate sauce is made by adding such flavoring elements as mushrooms, pimientos or green peppers, garlic, celery, sage, thyme, bay leaf, etc. Place surplus sauce in tight jar; keep in cool place for later use. Serves 4 to 6.

The preparation and serving of macaroni products can be varied in so many ways that if you served them every day you could have a new recipe to follow for many days.

Call it in print.

SCHOOL ACTIVITY LISTED BY WPA

Ten Building Projects Completed In State During Summer At Cost Of $277,225.

The Public Works Administration in Virginia announced this week that, during the summer months, the construction of ten elementary or high school building projects was completed, part of the cost of which was financed by Public Works Administration grants aggregating $277,225. The benefits of these projects will, of course, be enjoyed for the first time by students now returning to school. The new facilities consist of new buildings or alterations of and additions to old buildings totaling 17 in number and include 2400 pupil classroom stations, besides additional educational facilities such as auditoriums, cafeterias and science laboratories, domestic and otherwise. The cost of these new facilities is approximately $616,500 and they are located in nine counties and one city.

It was also announced that ten school projects being financed in part by the Public Works Administration were now under construction and that most of them would be completed before or during the Christmas holidays. These projects are located in eight counties and two cities and the estimated cost thereof is $1,639,800 with Public Works Administration grants in the amount of $732,320. These projects will provide an additional 5050 pupil classroom stations and other greatly needed facilities.

Added Grants Listed

A Public Works Administration allotment has just recently been made for a school building in Smyth County estimated to cost $150,000 which will provide facilities for at least 500 students. The Public Works Administration grant will be approximately $5,500 and construction should begin in the near future.

Exclusive of the above projects and of projects at the institutions of higher learning conducted with financial assistance from the Public Works Administration, the elementary and high school system of the State has been aided to the extent of grants from the Public Works Administration aggregating $2,161,238, which resulted in improvements of physical facilities costing $5,869,878. These improvements include, in addition to 27,000 pupil classroom stations, stadiums, libraries, gymnasiums, laboratories, manual and other training facilities and improvements to heating and ventilation facilities, all of which make for both the mental and physical well-being of the students. In many cases they will enable students, who have no intention of continuing on to a college degree, to be given practical training, heretofore denied them, better calculated to fit them for life. This appears to be the modern trend in education. Also, in many cases, these projects have or will result in the elimination of many mediocre high schools and their consolidation into new, more economical schools where comprehensive high school training can be given with reasonable unit costs.

Upon completion of the Smyth County buildings and of those projects now under construction, the Public Works Administration will have aided in constructing 35 elementary or high school projects. These are situated in eleven cities and in many localities in fifty-five of Virginia's one hundred counties.

Co-Op Association Program Is Given

The Court House Student Cooperative Association held its first meeting of the school year last Wednesday in the auditorium with the new president presiding. The officers for the years are: Norwood Land, president; Lucille Gallup, vice-president; Frances Ellis, secretary, and George Halstead, Jr. treasurer.

The secretary read the devotional exercises. After a short business session the second and third grades presented a short program which included picture talks by Alvah Dawley, Shirley Whitehurst, Herbert Foster, Jr., and Olive Glibney. The second and third grades sang several songs. The first grade presented a poem on health. Those taking part were: Albert Bartee, Marjorie Tarkenton, Virginia Dixon and Mary James.

PRINT DISPLAY FEATURED HERE

Colored Etchings And Interesting Antique Prints Are On Exhibition.

An interesting exhibition of etchings and old prints is being featured during the winter months at Anne's Kimono Shop, on Seventeenth Street, which already has attracted considerable attention from lovers of worthwhile home decorations in Virginia Beach and throughout the county. The pictures now on display will remain here for sixty days, when another shipment will be received from the New York salon of Camilla Lucas, importer and publisher of some of the country's most expert examples of the etcher's art.

Foreign and American artists are represented in this special etching and old print exhibition, many examples of which date back to the early part of the last century. Old maps, some of them made 300 years ago, are featured in the collection, and though the map-makers did not have at their disposal the work of such excellent surveyors and instruments as are available today, their work is surprisingly near in precision to the maps now currently published.

Interesting Prints

Interesting examples of the old prints include representative scenes from the Currier and Ives collection, whose sporting prints are seldom surpassed, and many ladies of an earlier time as drawn by Godey. The colored etchings are largely the work of French artists, and depict scenes of striking beauty in the French and Italian countryside.

The exhibition will continue on display through November 30, when another lot of prints and etchings is expected.

Exports of medicinal preparations from the United States gained almost 30 per cent during the first half of this year and were only 19 per cent below the all-time record level of 1929.

"BREED PARADE" SHOW'S FEATURE

80 Varieties Of Land And Water Fowl To Be Displayed At Exposition.

Eighty different varieties of land and water fowl will feature the third annual "Parade of the Breeds" at the Poultry Industries Exposition in New York City on November 2-8.

This exposition of standard bred poultry will be unique, as each variety will have uniform representation with groups of five females and one male displayed in large cages, with a brief history and statement of the particular purpose for which the variety is valuable.

The gigantic Jersey Black Giant cock, weighing fifteen pounds, will vie for public favor with tiny Game Bantams weighing as many ounces. Pheasants and Peafowl with no less than six varieties of turkeys will be shown and many different kinds of domestic geese which are beginning to attract much attention in the poultry world.

Indian Runner ducks, which outlay hens in the British Trials, will be shown. Toulouse geese weighing up to forty pounds and the tiny call ducks, weighing less than a small Leghorn hen, will be on display in this Parade of the Breeds.

The rare, quaint and beautiful will be a feature as well as every kind of variety of the strictly utilitarian breeds and varieties. Polish, with their gorgeous headgear of feathers, Silkie with plumage resembling soft, silky fur.

The old fashioned Creepers, with their curiously foreshortened legs and wings, which scientists say are a "hangover" from the time millions of years ago when the chicken of today was a creeping reptile, covered with scales which gradually, through the ages, evolved into the feathers which cover the fowl today.

This display is put on for the purpose of demonstrating to the public the uniformity and attractiveness resulting from Standard breeding and to give the 25,000 visitors to this greatest of American Poultry Expositions opportunity to select, by comparison, the size and type and color that best suits their purpose and pleasure.

Health Notes

"More than 2,000 of the 30,000 deaths in Virginia in 1936 were attributable to cancer. Fully one-third of these fatalities likely could have been avoided had the early, though unsuspected, symptoms been recognized as serious by the victim. The unfortunate difference to such symptoms is based on the fact that because of a total lack of pain no significance is attached to them by the average person. This explains one of the reasons for cancer's great power to kill," stated Dr. I. C. Rigin, State Health Commissioner.

"In the beginning cancer never is cancer. And in its more common forms it is readily detectable. The danger signals are: 1. Any lump in the breast or other part of the body; 2. Any persistent sore, particularly on the face or mouth; 3. Any unusual discharge or bleeding; 4. Chronic indigestion.

Heavy Toll Taken

"As already indicated, in the precancerous stage there is no physical discomfort or conscious physical impairment. And while the above mentioned manifestations do not necessarily mean that cancer is in the offing, such an assumption never is justified. That is a question for the doctor, and only the doctor, to decide. Delay in the face of such symptoms is dangerous and even may result in death.

"If the present rate continues, one out of every thirteen fatalities of men from all causes, and one out of every eight deaths of women will be due to this disease. In fact, cancer is only exceeded in American deaths by heart affections. Its importance, therefore, logically cannot be overlooked.

"Cancer is not contagious, is not a blood disease, is not caused by food or aluminum cooking utensils, nor does constipation have anything to do with it. Though chronic irritations of certain types are precursors of cancer, the underlying reason for the change in normal tissue cells to the wild growth characterizing cancer yet is unknown.

"It follows that wisdom is involved in a properly balanced curiosity when warning symptoms appear. And that means a prompt visit to the family physician for an immediate diagnosis. On the other hand, an unjustified fear of cancer is foolish. And in this connection it is heartening to know that three-fourths of the cases suspected to be cancer are not cancer."

QUESTION: How is it possible to prevent fruit pies from bottling over in the oven?

ANSWER: Have you ever tried putting a loose top crust on fruit pies? You simply fit bottom crust into pan, flute edge and add filling. Cut top crust just large enough to fit over filling, and meet the fluted edge of lower crust; prick pastry, place on pie, and bake. When filling expands, the top crust rises making it impossible for the juice to run out.

QUESTION: Which type of electric oven cookery is preferred—starting with a cold or preheated oven?

ANSWER: That is a question which only you can decide, particularly if you have a Hotpoint range. Many foods—cakes, pies, meats, hot breads, etc., are equally successful when the baking begins in either a cold or a preheated oven. The "one-step" cold-oven-start method is, of course, ideal for cooking meats when you are away as well as convenient for the homemaker who forgets to preheat the oven. Both methods are successful, however, so it is recommended that you use the particular one which best fits your needs.

QUESTION: How can one cream butter quickly without waiting for it to soften?

ANSWER: First, rinse out mixing bowl with hot water and dry. Then add butter and cream. If with a wooden spoon. To speed up the process even more, place bowl in pan of hot water. In a short time the butter will be fluffy and soft.

QUESTION: What remedy can you suggest for coarse granules in refrigerator ice cream?

ANSWER: Equally as important as using a good tested recipe for making ice cream is freezing it properly; that is, freezing it so quickly that large ice crystals haven't an opportunity to form. To accomplish this, set the cold cream at the lowest degree possible. This varies with most refrigerators but there is a new one on the market with an exceptionally efficient speed-freezing unit. In it ice creams freeze very rapidly and as a result are smooth and velvety.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

Fall landscapes add much to the artistic appeal of your photo album.

WE MAY sing of the flowers that bloom in the spring—trials—but a song cannot adequately describe the wonderful colorings that Mother Nature bestows upon the trees and shrubs in the fall. The woods are ablaze with color and new colorful fall flowers appear. Lakes, rivers, and the well known babbling brook seems to reflect these bright colors.

Now, let's consider the type of film to use for fall colors. For example, suppose you are taking a picture of a bed of fall flowers—some deep orange or red and others dark blue. Ordinary film, not the chrome type, would yield a print in which the brighter colored flowers would appear darker than the blue ones, though to the eye the orange and red flowers appeared lighter. It would not, in other words, give true color brightness values in black and white print. However, with what is known as panchromatic film the true tonal values in monochrome rendering will be obtained.

Renderings of color and cloud effects are further improved by the use of proper color filters with any type film, including the chrome and panchromatic.

A filter is a specially prepared disc of colored gelatin, between glass, which is slipped over the camera lens. Its function is to hold back certain rays of light and let others pass through. Although there are several kinds, I believe the beginner who has never used a filter might choose between the two most popularly used, or better yet, have both to use when necessary to improve the quality and artistic appearance of the snapshot.

One of these filters is known as the K-2. When using the K-2 filter with chrome type film, it is necessary to increase the exposure time that which you would give without the filter about 2 1/2 times. With superelectric panchromatic film the exposure with a K-2 filter need be increased but two times.

The other filter is used largely for photographing clouds in a landscape with no increase in exposure time. This is called a Sky Filter, one half of which is yellow, and the other half clear. The reason why this filter can reveal both clouds and landscape which is yellow, and the other half clear. The reason why this filter can reveal both clouds and landscape which is yellow, and the other half clear. The reason why this filter can reveal both clouds and landscape which is yellow, and the other half clear.

Your nearest dealer in photographic materials will gladly give you more information regarding the use of color filters and how to use them when you realize the great difference the use of a filter makes in the appearance of your snapshots. You will be glad to accept the fact that this inexpensive accessory will ed with 7,268 for last August. Arlington had nearly 100,000 visitors.

TOURIST TRAVEL GAINS IN STATE

To Ask Larger Fund
The commission meeting recently in Richmond voted unanimously to request the General Assembly for an appropriation of $250,000 for advertising and publicizing Virginia to tourists during the two fiscal years beginning July 1, 1938.

This proposed appropriation, the commission stated, would cover all phases of tourist promotion activities, such as newspaper and magazine advertising, publication of literature, operation of a tourist bureau, provision of publicity services, motion pictures, etc.

In setting this figure, the commission declared it was guided by resolutions adopted recently by the Virginia Press Association and the Virginia Hotel Association, each of which urged a $250,000 appropriation for the commission for tourist promotion work.

State Competition Keen
The commission asserted that the competition for the tourist dollar is becoming more and more keen between States and sections, and if Virginia is to compete with other States in this direction it will be necessary to increase outlays for advertising and publicity. The commission also pointed to figures which showed that States with fewer attractions than Virginia are spending two, three and sometimes four times as much as Virginia, while some cities are expending as much and sometimes more than the Old Dominion in tourist-promotion activities. The commission's last biennial appropriation was about $68,000.

RESORT GAINING IN POPULARITY

All Sections of Nation Represented in Statistical Survey Made By Hotel.

Positive proof that Virginia Beach has outgrown the purely seasonal patronage accorded the resort not so many years ago and now looms as an important summer vacation playground for many states in north, south, eastern and middle-western America is indicated by a survey of patronage accorded the Hotel Warner during its first season of operation. Statistics dealing with the home addresses of guests registered at the hotel during the summer months were made available this week by A. Cornell Williams and S. B. Tatem, managers of the Warner, and are reproduced here because of their general news interest.

During the period covered by the survey, 1,749 guests were registered at the Warner, of which total 312 were from Virginia and 80 from North Carolina, the area previously drawn upon by the Beach for its greatest patronage, for a percentage of 22 of the whole. The entire southeastern section of the country contributed 493 guests, or 28 per cent, including Virginia and North Carolina.

Northern Registration High
From the northeastern and central seaboard states came the greatest number of vacationists, totalling 1,038, or better than 59 per cent of the total registration. Of this number, the District of Columbia contributed 133 guests, 222 came from Maryland, 106 from New Jersey, 280 from New York and 196 from Pennsylvania. Connecticut was represented by 29 guests and 26 came from West Virginia.

With 90 registrations from Ohio, the middle western section of the country developed a total of 193 guests, with Michigan second in this group with 25 persons.

Foreign Guests
From beyond the borders of the United States came 15 from the Canadian provinces, three guests from China, a similar number from England and two registrations from France. Navy men, who listed their addresses as aboard U. S. battleships, totalled two.

Thirty-four of the 48 states were represented on the Warner's registration index, with most of those not represented found either on the west coast on in the Rocky Mountain section. States from which no guests were reported are Arizona, California, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Vermont, and Wyoming. Far-off Washington had two guests to its credit when the season was closed.

It was pointed out by the management that such a statistical analysis of the guests was of particular value in determining the extent of advertising and the most logical sections of the country for the expenditure of advertising funds. Other hotels, it was learned, maintain similar records from which they determine their advertising course for the succeeding seasons.

F. T. A. Meets Wednesday
The Court House P. T. A. will hold its regular meeting next Wednesday at 3:15 P. M. in the school auditorium. Everyone is urged to be present as a special project for the year will be selected. One feature of the program will be the initiation of the officers of the S. C. A.

Do not wander into the center or the left hand lane, for that too often indicates a driver whose mind is wandering too, he said. Driving is a full time undertaking, and requires all a driver's attention. Keep your mind on your driving and your car on the right side of the road. Construction Activity In Beach Area Points To New Record in '37

$605,025.00 Spent To Date On New Buildings, Exchange Report Reveals.

MILLION-DOLLAR GOAL IS BELIEVED POSSIBLE

New Residences Built In Community During The Year Average $6,450.00.

Construction activity in the Virginia Beach area for the first nine months of 1937 totalled $605,025.00, according to information released this week by George L. Wadsworth, secretary of the Builders and Contractors Exchange, of Norfolk. Included in the Virginia Beach area in this survey of building gains for the first three-quarters of the year are all residential developments lying between Port Story and the Town's southern boundary.

During the same period last year, which marked up a new record for this community, the sum of $274,000.00 had been expended. Thus, the survey reveals, this season's construction gain over 1936 totalled $330,927.00, or a matter of 120 per cent.

Million Dollar Goal Possible

Should the present rate of construction continue through the remaining three months of this year, new buildings in the Virginia Beach area should reach a total reported valuation of better than $950,000.00 on December 31. Since the amounts posted with the Builders and Contractors Exchange are regularly lower than the actual expenditures, contractors and building supply houses anticipate that not less than $1,000,000.00 will be spent on building supplies and construction services. This anticipated figure has been exceeded only one time in Beach history, when the Cavalier Hotel was built ten years ago.

Of further interest to local residents is the information that no new hotel construction is included in the reported figures, all of the money being expended for homes and business buildings or for additions and improvements to existing properties.

Residences Average $6,450.00

In these nine months, 90 new residences were developed at a total cost of $589,915.00, with the average cost established at $6,450.00. Business construction, improvements to old properties and additions to homes and hotels totalled 32 in number and $218,110.00 in actual cash expended.

Boone Trail Marker At Boston

One of the trails traveled by Daniel Boone began in Boston and followed the coast to Roanoke Island. A marker similar to that pictured above will be unveiled at Virginia Beach on Sunday, October 24, one day after the explorer's 263rd birthday.

STATE MEETING SET AT CAVALIER Boone Trail Memorial Marker To Be Unveiled on October 24

Chamber Of Commerce Secretaries Will Convene Here For Two-Day Session.

Secretaries of the more than eighty chambers of commerce throughout Virginia will hold their semi-annual conference November 19 and 20 at the Cavalier Hotel, Verbon E. Kemp, general secretary of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday. Problems of Virginia commercial organization secretaries and solutions to them, betterment of methods in the execution of chamber secretarial duties and a discussion of state and national trends are matters being considered for the program.

Robert D. Ramsey, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce at Lynchburg is chairman of the program committee. He is being assisted by C. N. Goldsborough, president of the Culpeper Chamber, A. A. Booth, secretary at Danville, C. G. Grant, secretary at Shenandoah Valley, Inc., at Staunton, and Jesse Overton, secretary of the Portsmouth Chamber of Commerce.

Reception Committee

Don Seiwel, managing director of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, also has named the personnel of the reception committee. In this group are W. B. Harney, secretary of the Norfolk Chamber of Commerce, Fairfield Hodges, manager of the Norfolk Bureau of the same organization, Sherrod N. Vaughn, secretary of the Peninsula Association of Commerce, and T. Cover Johnson, secretary at Suffolk.

Arrowhead Indicates Beginning Of Prominent Coast-Highway Made Famous By Intrepid Trail-Blazer; Hamilton Invited To Speak At Exercises.

The ten-foot granite and marble arrowhead now being constructed at the beginning of Seventeenth Street on the Ocean front to mark the eastern terminus of the most prominent coast-to-coast highway officially supervised by the Federal Government, will be unveiled with suitable exercises on Sunday afternoon, October 24, under the joint sponsorship of the Town of Virginia Beach and officials of the Boone Trail Highway and Memorial Association, builders of the marker.

Hamilton Invited To Speak

Congressman Norman R. Hamilton has been invited to be present as the guest speaker on the occasion of the unveiling ceremony, and another invitation to participate has been tendered Congressman Lindsay Warren, of North Carolina, who has expressed considerable interest in the program of the Boone Trail Association. Mayor Roy Smith will be in charge of the afternoon service, which will begin at three o'clock, and he will be assisted by members of the Virginia Beach Boy Scout troop and officials of the association.

The purpose of the marker now being constructed here, which is one of 300 already erected along Route 60 from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific Coast, was explained by J. Hampton Rich, editor of the association's publication, "The Boone Trail," as designed to focus national attention upon the life and exploits of such rugged pioneers as Daniel Boone and the part they played in opening the western territory. Coincident with that ambition is the desire to secure increasing patronage for the resorts, historic shrines and beauty spots that line the highway from Virginia Beach to the Golden Gate in San Francisco.

MIRAMAR HOTEL SOLD TO SMITH

Beach Operator Purchases Prominent Inn Located On Lake Worth In Palm Beach.

Purchase of the Miramar Inn at South Palm Beach, Florida, for several years one of the famous resort's outstanding hotels, was announced this week by J. Stanley Smith, who has operated the hotel during the past three winters. The financial details of the transaction were not disclosed in Mr. Smith's announcement of the change in ownership.

Built late in the boom years of the 1920's, the Miramar Inn is located on the shore of Lake Worth, within easy access of the ocean front and the shopping district of West Palm Beach. The building, which is located in the center of spacious lawn and garden, conforms to the accepted mode of Spanish architecture and is constructed of gleaming white stucco and Spanish tile. Coconut trees and royal palms give a distinctive tropical setting to the popular winter rendezvous of northern vacationists.

One Hundred Rooms

The Miramar contains one hundred rooms and is three floors in height. Elevators and other modern conveniences are found in the building.

Details of the transaction were handled by Judge C. D. Blackwell of West Palm Beach, a personal friend of the new owner. The hotel formerly was owned by Dr. F. O. Schwarz, of Middletown, Connecticut.

Mr. Smith, owner and operator of Albemarle Hall, at Virginia Beach during the summer months and one of the oldest hotel owners residing here, will leave for Palm Beach with Mrs. Smith within the next two weeks to supervise the beautifying of the grounds and to make such improvements to the building as will be necessary. The hotel will be opened officially for the winter season on December 1.

POLICE PROBING KANDOS ROBBERY

Confectionery Broken Into By Thieves Early Thursday; $250 In Cash Stolen.

Virginia Beach's first major robbery of the fall season was reported early Thursday morning when Patrolmen Guy Barnes and Albert Leo Masco discovered that thieves had broken into Kandos Confectionery. A hurried check of the store disclosed the loss of approximately $250.00 in cash and a supply of Norfolk-Southern bus tickets which had been locked in a safe, together with the safe.

Returning from an inspection tour of the north end of the Beach, the patrolmen noticed that the rear door of the store, which enters into a kitchen, had been jammed open. Johnny Medas, who has been acting as manager of the confectionery, was called to the scene, when a careful check was made of the contents of the store.

Safe Rolled Into Street

It was soon discovered that both cash registers had been rifled and the safe, which rested behind the counter in the front of the store, removed from the premises. Medas estimated that not less than $250 had been left in the three depositories when he had closed the store late Wednesday night, together with a supply of bus tickets.

The safe was rolled from its accustomed place to the rear of the store, where an attempt was made to force it between the counters and into the kitchen. Foiled by a lack of space, the thieves unlocked the main door on Atlantic Avenue, pushed the heavy safe through the door and into a waiting truck or automobile. Scratches on the floor and sidewalk indicate the course taken by the strongbox on its way outside. Tire marks found in the street suggest that the car was turned around and headed in a northerly direction.

Green Sedan Parked By Store

The only clue to the possible identity of the robbers was furnished by a driver for the Virginia Beach Taxi Company, who reported that a green sedan—make unknown—was parked on Atlantic Avenue near Seventeenth Street for an hour or more and was still parked there when the taxi stand closed at 12:45 a. m. Officers discovered the opened door at 1:30, and it is presumed that the theft was accomplished in the intervening half-hour.

Included in the loot were several Traveler's Checks. An attempt will be made to secure their numbers with the hope of learning the identity of one or more of the persons who participated in the robbery.

The robbery, because of the boldness with which the thieves worked, is one of the most spectacular reported here in several years.

Only Few Minor Changes Are Made In Original Estimate Of Expenditures.

FINAL ACTION EXPECTED AT OCTOBER 25 SESSION

Sale Of Revenue-Producing Bonds/Draws No Replies From Possible Buyers.

Reporting only a few minor changes in the budgetary provisions for the fiscal year 1937-38 as outlined by the finance committee at a meeting held several weeks ago, the Town Council of Virginia Beach on Monday night gave tentative approval to the budget and served notice that final action on the matter would be taken at the October 25 meeting.

At this week's special session, it also was announced that no bids had been received to date for the purchase of an issue of $92,400 in revenue-producing bonds to defray the Town's share of the cost of constructing the sewage disposal plant. A number of inquiries relative to the FWA-financed project have been received, however, and it is expected that bids will be forthcoming at the next meeting of the Council.

Few Changes Made

Listing anticipated expenditures for the coming year under general classifications, the sum of $155,300.00 has been set aside for the general fund and $72,200.00 for the water and sewer department. In the first classification the items were tentatively approved as follows:

Administrative expenses, $13,000.00; police department, $16,500—an increase of $500 over the original estimate to take care of necessary replacements of equipment; fire department, $18,000.00—as was originally scheduled by the finance committee; street department, $22,000.00—no change from the original; health department, which includes street cleaning, garbage collection and mosquito control, $18,000.00—as was proposed originally; schools, $21,120.00—an increase of $200.00 for emergency medical needs; and $40,580.00 for debt service.

Debt Service Items

Included in this latter item is $25,000.00 for bond interest; $8,000.00 marked for the sinking fund; and $2,780.00 for principal and interest due Princess Anne County. The reserve for capital outlay is set at $13,781.50.

Of the $73,300.00 set aside for the water and sewer department, the major item is $48,500.00 for the expenses of the department. This constitutes an increase of $3,500.00 over the original estimate, which amount has been credited to the department for the increased power requirements of the new sewage disposal plant. The capital expenditure reserve is listed at $3,700.00.

Anticipated receipts from general sources total $158,300.00 and those from the water and sewer departments $73,200.00. The latter amount will be collected principally from houses and businesses utilizing the Town's water and sewer facilities and the installation of water taps.

Expected current taxes will amount to $67,000.00; delinquent taxes, $30,000.00; court fines and costs, $1,000.00; interest and penalties, $5,000.00; licenses, $22,500.00; electrical and plumbing permits, $1,000.00; Princess Anne School tax, $20,000.00; State School tax, $3,000.00; and miscellaneous, $5,000.00.

To Serve Barbecue Supper

Ladies of the Lynnhaven Presbyterian Church will serve an old style barbecue supper in the social hall of the church on Thursday night, October 21. The supper will be served from five until eight o'clock, and the general public has been invited to attend.

"THE VOICE of a majority, awaying the course of government, does not insure good government, except it be the voice of a well-informed and well-intentioned people."

A NOTE ON LOCAL HISTORY

Although the erection of the memorial arrowhead at the beginning of the Daniel Boone Trail here in Virginia Beach has provoked considerable curiosity during the past week, the prize story to come to our attention was reported by Herbert Terry.

According to Mr. Terry, a native son who stood observing the marker several days ago was approached by an "elegant lady" who, prompted by curiosity, had halted her luxurious car—it came from New York—and alighted to get a better view of the monument. Noting carefully its general outlines, she asked the other observer just what it was all about.

"That," said he, "is a memorial to Daniel Boone."

"Is that so?" she replied. "Really, I didn't know that he landed here."

Knowing better, but not wishing to confuse the good lady further, the native son shook his head in assent and wandered off.

SANITY ON THE HIGHWAYS

In the interesting series of articles on safe driving tactics written for this newspaper by John Q. Rhodes, Jr., director of the State Division of Motor Vehicles, it is noted that the majority of highway accidents have been caused by relatively simple infractions of the rules. Taking a chance on the highway has become a great American game and, though the tragic toll piled up by the contestants gains alarmingly in number with the passing of each year, the average driver still is disinclined to follow strictly those few simple laws laid down in the motor vehicle code of each and every state.

Passing on turns—swinging out into the center of the highway when approaching the crest of a hill—the failure to signal stops and turns to other motorists in easy distance of the driver—the failure to obey mechanical signals placed for the motorist's protection at dangerous intersections—excessive use of the horn in congested traffic—too great speed on other than straight stretches of highway—these are the major causes of highway accidents. Yet, there is no driver so stupid nor so ignorant of safe-driving practices that could not make a score of one hundred on an oral or written examination dealing with these violations.

But, though each and every driver is aware that such practices frequently lead to disaster, the majority of drivers violate one, several or all of these rules when sitting behind the steering wheel of an automobile. Why? That's a question for the psychologist and his learned brethren; ours is only the task of reporting that chances are taken daily by almost every driver.

The summary of dangerous driving tactics is an old story to most readers. Our excuse for offering it in these columns at this time is prompted by the hope that some few will ponder carefully the consequences of their careless actions and strive in the future to observe the rules of the road as outlined in the textbooks. When a majority of drivers are willing to admit that such articles are written for their special benefit, then we may be on the way to a greater degree of sanity on the highways.

THE TIDEWATER HOSPITAL

Unless a more generous response is made this week to the plea for funds voiced by the Tidewater Hospital Association than was reported in the opening week of the campaign to secure $35,000, there is every likelihood that the hospital will not be opened this fall. A long list of patients, all tuberculosis victims, stands waiting for the doors of the hospital to open and afford them the chance of health and happiness which they so ardently desire, but they must wait, perhaps for another eight long months, because an indifferent public refuses to accept a responsibility which properly may be charged to it.

The Tidewater Victory Memorial Hospital can and will fill a need long felt in this immediate section of Virginia. The staff selected to the sufferers would be services to any similar organization, but neither building nor staff can be used until the necessary operating funds are raised.

The sum sought for operating expenses and for the purchase of necessary equipment is not a large one. If the public were fully aware of the dangers of tuberculosis, of the threat which one single case presents to the residents of a community and of the ease with which many incipient cases are cured if detected early, we have no doubt that the fund now being sought would be raised easily within the course of a day or two. But the public, with its head buried in the sands, refuses to admit the potential dangers and withholds the support for which an intelligent minority is pleading.

Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County have been asked to raise a minimum of $30,000. Manyfold will be the returns from this contribution—if and when it is made—and we would join our plea to that of the hospital's directors for a prompt and speedy support of this most worthwhile project.

DOFFING ECONOMIC "STRAIT-JACKETS"

"In the current struggle between Fascism and Communism, Capitalism and Socialism, the 'Left' and the 'Right,' it would be well to remember that economic systems in most industrial nations are too complex to be forced into the strait-jacket of any single theory."

As observed in an editorial written in a recent edition of the Christian Science Monitor, continuing his thoughts in this direction, the writer adds:

"The 'Capitalistic' United States, for instance, runs one of its most important businesses—its Post Office Department—on a specialized basis. The same is true of its public highways. In addition, it permits—even demands—that municipal governments take over responsibility for fire protection, water supply, and many other necessary services; and even the most vociferous opponents of theoretical socialism do not object. The public schools, one of the most highly prized of all American institutions, are also socially operated."

The American people developed a socialized post office not because they were enamored of socialism, but simply because that sort of a post office worked best. Public bridges displaced private toll bridges because the former proved more satisfactory. In other words, the American people have not hesitated to employ socialistic or collective methods in given instances where it appeared that private initiative would not get the best results.

At the same time Americans are firmly convinced that private initiative is preferable for business and industry as a whole. They are willing to admit the necessity of government regulation of industry for certain purposes, but they draw the line.

"Capitalistic" France and Great Britain also employ socialistic or collective methods in given instances. France, for instance, has recently seen fit to nationalize its railroads. In Britain, home of capitalism, the government operates the telegraph, the telephone, and the radio; it has created a national-wide superpower system; it unifies and controls all transportation agencies serving London; and it goes into the low-cost housing business on an enormous scale. In recent years proposals have even been heard to nationalize the coal industry.

Numerous other examples could be cited of socialistic or collective enterprises in the so-called "capitalistic" nations. Yet to many Americans, Frenchmen, and Englishmen the term "Capitalism" seems quite adequate to describe the economic systems of their respective nations. Many others regard Capitalism and Socialism as fundamentally hostile, but the fact is that all industrialized nations are employing both methods in giving instances. A more general recognition of this would help remove the strait-jacket of much prejudicial thinking about economic issues.

LAZARUS WALKS AT NOON

I came then into the cool blue garden air
That never on my cheeks, it seemed, had blown.
And on my eyes the first blind light was known.
And on my ears the clear new sound was there.

Yet always the voices, grass and leaf and thine
Voice of the linnet in the heaven tree,
And all the living day was asking me,
Where have you been, Lazarus, where have you been?

The locust like blood beneath the skin,
Passing unobserved between the legs of grass,
And like the pulse of conscience was his rasp,
Lazarus, where have you been, where have you been?

It was as if the wind, the wandering skies,
The grasses and the locust held their breath;
And sight and sound, and time, and life and death
Lay like coils upon my open eyes.

AUTUMNAL

The ribs of leaves lie in the dust;
The beak of frost has packed the bough;

The briar bears its thorn; and drought,
That shriveled crops before the yield,

He has left its ravage on the field.
The season's wreckage lies about.
Late autumn fruit is rotting now.
All shades are lean, the antic branch
Jerks skyward at the touch of the wind.

The trees no longer hold the light.
The hedge and orchard grove are thinned.

The husk lies open to the sun:
The last of harvesting is done.
All things are brought to barn and fold.

The oak leaves strain to be unbound,
The sky turns dark, the year grows old.

The first snow sits along the ground.

FOREBODING

Though the wine flow, though his laugh come lightly,
Silence your voice and unbend your brow.

All he has learned is that life slips brightly,
That it is sweet to be living now.

Since the moon is full it shall turn to waning—
This is what too many hearts forget.

Man in the pride of his youth disdainful
That bodies will bend and the eyes be wet.

Let him be gay for this day that passes,
This hour that glimmers, these dreams that fleet.

Like to the breeze among the grasses,
Like to a tune that will not repeat.

Shortly, shortly, the laughter leaves him,
He shall feel woes too great to bear.

So quickly they shall have finished weaving
The shirt of fire he is soon to wear.

At The Water's Edge

AN INTERVIEW WITH MARY SINTON LEITCH

"A new volume from the pen of Mary Sinton Leitch is an event in the poetry world," asserts a reviewer in the magazine section of last Sunday's Richmond Times-Dispatch, and with that statement we heartily concur. Although we have not yet had the opportunity to read "Spider Architect," recently published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, we are certain that it will provide us with many enjoyable hours during the long winter that lies ahead.

For Mrs. Leitch—Princess Anne County's "First Citizen" so far as the outside world is concerned—writes the sort of poetry that must appeal even to those who regularly assert that they "don't like poetry." She writes of homely things, best of all, perhaps, of the water which she loves so well, and, if our unschooled opinion is worth anything at all, her poems will be accorded a distinctly high place in any future appraisal of contemporary poets. Few, alas—residing in the county will read her latest volume, few realize that a national literary figure resides in our midst, but many in the larger world outside will read and profit from her beautifully woven tapestry of words.

In her recent column, "How About a Book?," a weekly feature of the Sunday Times-Dispatch, Margaret Barker Seward publishes an interview with Mrs. Leitch. Because of its interest to Mrs. Leitch's friends and neighbors, it gives us unusual satisfaction to reprint it in these columns instead of our own aimless ramblings on subjects of far less importance. Said Miss Seward:

When Max Eastman spoke before the Poetry Society of Virginia here last winter, he gave eight definitions of poetry.

"It just proves," Mary Sinton Leitch remarked, "that poetry can't be defined; it must be felt."

I think it would be even harder to define Mary Sinton Leitch. I doubt if eight definitions would even be a starter. Somebody who knows her well called her "a grand person who writes great poetry"; and she is all of that; but that doesn't get in the fact that she is a humorist of a thousand sympathies; a poet whose taste for high a humorist has taken her over the seven seas and back again; and a poet whose love of people has taken her into some of the most pitiable dens of human misery.

She says she is the worst possible subject for an interviewer; that she always thinks of just the bright things she might have said in the cold grey of the morning after the interview; and then she adds casually that she isn't a poet.

"Really I am not a poet," she will insist. "Some day I hope to write good poetry, but just now I am only trying."

"You know it amuses me, this notion that some people have about poets. People look on them as managerial specimens who 'reel off' poems in between times. I can only say that one of my poems which a well-meaning woman friend accused me of 'reeling off' was the result of two weeks' constant work, during which I labored 14 hours a day, and then when I had finally gone to sleep, I would soon wake up again to struggle over a line—or a word. That is the way I 'reel off' my poems."

"Beauty—and beauty is the guiding star for those who would write poetry—came to me late. I had spent my life in New York City doing social work; always hemmed in by walls. My first glimpse of the Virginia country-side came as a revelation. I think I felt something like St. Paul must have felt when he saw a vision. It was a transfiguration. And I knew then that beauty is essential to life, and how dark the world is without it. I, who have been used to big cities and to the ocean, spend my days in the country in Princess Anne County, and I love it. I could never live all bottled up in the city again."

Mrs. Leitch's life reads like an Odyssey. She went to sea for two years in a tramp steamer. Her companion on this unorthodox voyage was a Countess Krockow, a writer whose husband was imperial cup-bearer to the German Emperor. "She hated the court life and all its mockeries and spent her time far removed from it," Mrs. Leitch explained. "We both had marvelous times together sailing all up and down the coast of South America, putting in at ports that regular vessels never touched."

After her marriage to Captain John Leitch, who was captain of the boat on which she was a passenger, Mrs. Leitch continued to follow the sea. And she still follows it at her desk in Princess Anne. And some of her finest poems are written in praise of the sea: One of them was awarded first prize by Max Eastman in a contest conducted by the Georgia Poetry Society. It is called "On the Prairie."

Always my heart has found the sea
Though banished to a distant plain.
The wind has brought the sound to me
Of surf; and salt has been the rain.
From woods and mountains near and far
Still I have seen the breakers comb;
Always for me the Evening Star
Has risen, though inland, on the foam.
Now there is no more sea, nor sight
Save endless, aching prairie reaches,
Beyond the hope, beyond the thought
Of water broken on the beaches."

It was before she went to sea; before she had written anything except five poems for Harpers (and some prose, then, she says "squashy and sentimental, suitable to be read at old ladies' funerals") that Mrs. Leitch was part of one of the strangest literary firms that ever was on earth. The other two members of the firm were Miss Mary Montgomery (Mrs. Gutzon Borglum) and Miss Helen Keyes, one of the editors of the Christian Science Monitor.

"What did we do?" Mrs. Leitch laughed, "we did everything. Mary Montgomery knew Turkish and Arabic; Helen Keyes was very beautiful and talented besides; and I had some good literary contacts. And so we set out to make our living by doing translating for importers of rugs and German and French wines."

"That was only a small part of our work, though. We wrote after-dinner speeches on every subject under the sun for prominent men of New York who were too busy to write their own. We never turned down any assignment, although one from Gutzon Borglum did floor us for a while."

"It was at the time when he had just made some angels for the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. They were female angels and the committee who had given him the commission refused to accept them: There were no female angels, they said. And so we were given the job of combing Italian literature to see if there wasn't somewhere a precedent for a statue of a female angel. And we found that there was. In the meanwhile, though, Mr. Borglum had become disgusted with the cathedral authorities and had broken the angels to pieces."

Poetry and prison reform—these are the things that lie closest to Mrs. Leitch's heart. She was at one time inspector of women's prisons in New York (at no salary at all) and her father was president of the National Prison Board.

We are still in the Middle Ages, she believes as far as our prisons are concerned.

"I believe in years to come we will look upon 1937 as the Dark Ages of prison reform," she says. "I believe absolutely in the indeterminate sentence. Who can say if a man will be cured of disease or crime in 10 or any determinate number of years? Education and cure, not punishment should be our aim."

"A I sit in my home in Princess Anne County writing, I sometimes feel conscience-smitten that I have given up work in prison reform for poetry. Perhaps our county jail (which was built by slave labor) would have a prison yard, I tell myself, if I had worked at that problem instead of at poetry."

BOY! WHAT A LINE TO BUCK!

"I hope, though, that my writing will help some person who has not had my opportunity of seeing so much of life and of beauty...."

A "GHOST" HEARD FROM

A familiar business of recent years is that of ghost-writing, whose followers earn their bread by writing speeches and articles for celebrities who can advantageously use such speeches and articles but lack either the ability or the opportunity to prepare them. One of the most enterprising ghosts recently discussed the history of ethics of the craft in The Christian Science Monitor magazine—we say enterprising because he claims that at one time he was serving 15 persons: two bankers, a judge, a congressman, two society women, a beauty culturist, a golf professional, three real estate promoters, an industrial magnate, an inventor, an aviator, and a breeder of fancy cattle. Whether he managed to change his style for these diverse persons he does not say. He hardly emulated the example of Burton Rascoe, who relates in his "Before I Forget" how he as a youth prepared papers for the club women of his town and sought to secure variety of style by reading a different author, in order to imbibe his rhythm and mannerisms, before the writing of each paper.

The anonymous ghost writer claims that his occupation is an old one, that Caesar, Nero, and Dumas the elder employed literary ghosts. Furthermore, he maintains, Washington's farewell address was written at least in part by Alexander Hamilton; General Grant was assisted extensively by Mark Twain in the writing of his autobiography; and, more recently, Al Smith had his Mrs. McGowan. Perhaps the instances cited were forerunners else again, especially since it has become a mass production industry.

The ghost in question tells of a Los Angeles civic dinner, six of whose speakers, having employed the same ghost, bore manuscripts on a distinctive yellow-colored paper. This recalls the untoward development which broke up the ghost business of the rather notorious James Thomson, Callender of Virginia as long ago as the very early 1800's. Members of the general assembly would employ him to draft elegant letters to their constituents, and some whose districts were far distant from each other for economy's sake would club together and purchase a single letter for the use of all. This system was satisfactory until Callender, inadvertently or intentionally, sent the same letter to voters of adjoining districts and thus disclosed the literary shamming of their representatives, a shamming which today would be considered a mere matter of business. —Petersburg Progress-Index.

WAR PICTURES

The best editorials we've seen lately on the oriental war have been the news pictures of ships bombed, cities in flames and native populations fleeing for their lives.

We can't see any "glory" in that. We can't see any decency, any honor, any common sense. Just horror and cruelty and devaluation.

And this is what is supposed to be the most enlightened time in the world's history. As Tennessee observed, "knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers."

As you think it over, in the light of whatever history you may know, the situation seems to add up to something like this:

That if the nations can't get together and act grown-up, using their intelligence instead of their emotions, their better nature instead of their worst instincts, this present civilization will probably destroy itself.

It has happened at least three or four times in the world's history. And it's always pretty tough for the blundering human race to get through the ensuing Dark Ages and start over again.

VIRGINIA'S WONDERS

While readers of The Richmond Times-Dispatch are responding to the invitation of that newspaper to list the "seven wonders of Virginia," as they conceive them to be, the Danville Register submits a list that isn't exactly the kind The Times-Dispatch had in mind when it extended the invitation. While readers are mentioning Natural Bridge, Hampton Roads, the caverns of the Shenandoah Valley, Chesapeake Bay, Monticello, bridges, mountains, tunnels and other wonders of nature and of man, the Register presents these:

(1) A fee system which gives officers of the law a financial interest in the conviction of their fellow citizens.

(2) A prison system which puts the State far ahead in the Union in the number of prisoners confined in jail.

(3) Unattended jails in which several prisoners have burned to death within the past year.

(4) A teachers' salary scale which does not pay the men and women to whom we intrust our children, and the welfare of the Commonwealth, a decent living wage.

(5) A poll tax system by which a democracy restricts the right of its citizens to vote.

(6) Farm tenancy which dooms a considerable part of our preponderant rural population to a hand-to-mouth existence.

(7) Billboards which blot out the scenic beauties tourists come to Virginia to spend their money to see.

This kind of list is worth attention, but it is worth analysis, too. The first may not be exclusively a Virginia wonder, but it is a wonder and it is to be doubted that it can be approached in other States. So let it stand. The second stands for the same reason and the third stands almost without question as purely Virginian. The fourth is peculiar to no State; it can be matched in many of them.

So that goes out of our list. The fifth goes out because it is not peculiar to Virginia and because the condition existing is not accurately stated. There is not a democracy in the world that does not restrict the right to vote in some measure. The sixth goes out on nearly every count; nothing that is found all over the county, and in some States to a greater extent than in Virginia.

BOOKS TO OWN

EUROPA IN LIMBO. By Robert Briffault. Scribners. 476 pp. $2.75.

(A review by Frank McLean, University of Virginia Extension Reviews.)

Robert Briffault is no ordinary novelist. As a youth he studied medicine; during the War he was an officer in the British army; then he took up anthropology and wrote a long and comprehensive work, "The Mothers" in which he went a long way toward setting himself up as an authority. In "Breakdown" he gave the world some of his observations and ideas on the present state of human civilization. Finally, in "Europa," he turned novelist and painted a garish and violent picture of the years immediately preceding the World War. Readers of that book, and there were many of them, for it was a best seller both in America and abroad, will recall that he came to an abrupt ending leaving his two principal characters on their way out of Germany just after war began. It was obvious that the author must have a great deal more to say, and that a sequel would probably follow.

"Europa in Limbo" is that sequel, taking up the career of Julian Bern where it was broken off, and following it down through the post-war period. Readers of the earlier novel will recall that Julian managed to get about over a wide territory; in the sequel he continues his peregrinations. Of course, since the author is trying to show us the significant events of European history leading into and out of the War, some such method is inevitable. But it does make the machinery creak, and necessities rely on accident and the long arm of coincidence more than is best for the interest of fiction. This, of course, can hardly have bothered Mr. Briffault much, as he has been obviously concerned more with his thesis than with the details of its presentation.

Roughly, what happens is this: Julian and his mistress, the lovely Russian Zena, separate after a few weeks in England. Zena returns to Russia; and Julian puts on a uniform, although he has, from the outset, no faith in the purposes and outcome of the War. His social, official, and family connections give him exceptional opportunities to observe the greed and stupidity of those in high places, and he is tempted to join Lenin in his journey through Germany to take charge of the Russian Revolution. Soon after this Julian is captured. After the armistice, he makes his way from the detention camp to Russia, in search of Zena. Now he has an opportunity to observe the efforts of the other European nations to subdue Russia, just as a century before the French had been crushed by an allied Europe. Once more in England, Julian finds that the whole world has become cowardly and venal. At the end of the story he is leaving for America, not that he thinks America is any less rotten than the Old World, but, it would seem, because one can speak a little more freely on this side of the Atlantic. And he ends with a prophecy that there will be a change for the better within the lifetime of those about to be born.

There are two matters that strike one as being worthy of special consideration in "Europa in Limbo." As a narrative, in spite of the numerous forced situations and coincidences and such matters, "Europa in Limbo" makes good reading. It moves; things happen; it is interesting. As a fair evaluation of forces and events shaping the destiny of the world over a given period, "Europa in Limbo" must awaken a wide divergence of opinion.

Mr. Briffault can see practically nothing that is admirable in the War except the physical courage of some of the soldiers. He regards all those in high places, both in the field and in the chancelleries, as being either stupid or vicious, or both. He believes and cites instances that are historical and need a lot of explaining; that the business men who made the guns and boots, and furnished food for the troops were not only quite friendly with the capitalists on either side, but were able to do favors for one another—at the expense of the men in the trenches—through their ability to bring pressure to bear upon their governments. He accuses them of prolonging the War, and thinks that the conflict would have gone on much longer, to the benefit of these gentry, had not the Russians demonstrated the danger of an aroused world.

Some readers will nod in agreement, and some will violently condemn the author. It is not likely, however, that any intelligent man can read the book with indifference, for, right or wrong, the author is fearless and honest.

Since most good histories of the South proceed brilliantly through the Colonial and ante-bellum periods, and then bog down somewhere around Appomattox, something like "Road to Reunion, 1865-1900" needed to be written. And Paul H. Buck has here recounted the efforts of North and South toward "reunion" temperately and well. In spite of his Harvard connections, Mr. Buck realizes the meaning of Reconstruction to the South and to the nation; and he has given credit to Rutledge B. Hayes for "bringing the war to a close" with the withdrawal of Federal troops from Southern property. The scope of "Road to Reunion," however, is too broad to entirely escape controversial ground, which may call forth comment from ultra-conservative factionists, but which also makes the book a genuine contribution to American history.

Some forty years after the War between the States, Myrtle Lockett Avery wrote of the fall of the Confederacy and of the first months of Reconstruction. The result was "Dixie after the War," which pictured vividly the everyday life of Richmond and Charleston, South Carolina, but which also included anecdotes, experiences and letters of interest to the South as a whole. After being out of print for nearly twenty years, this old favorite has recently been reissued. It should assume an honorable place among the flood of Civil War novels, biographies and histories that threaten to swamp us today.

Out of the Deep South comes a first novel, "Point Noir," by Clete Huggins, a young girl from Louisiana. In spite of its deep account of the story of the old planter, Paul Sevinne, and his children, this is tragedy, Miss Huggins does well with her story, for it captures the reader's attention and retains it to the end. However, it is disconcerting to find a Southern author placing a mulatto girl in a white high school in Alabama or thereabouts, and later sending her shopping with a young aristocrat in a Louisiana town. If Miss Huggins knows her South, then we have much to learn.

extent, can be called a Virginia wonder, and hardly can be called a wonder at all. The seventh also is found nearly everywhere and certainly in every State.

Having thus eliminated four of the Register's Virginia wonders as either not wonders or not wonders that Virginia can claim as her exclusive possession, it behooves the wielder of the blue pencil to supply the deficiency. In an attempt to do that it suggests:

(4) A school system that is supported in great part by a tax that a large number, including many friends of public education, think should be abolished.

(5) An electorate so indifferent that only a small fraction of eligibles take the trouble to cast their ballots in the most important elections even.

(6) A State administration that believes wholeheartedly in a balanced budget and manages to attain it most of the time and approximately even in the midst of depressions.

(7) A delegation in the national Congress which attains a high rank in the opinion of colleagues without going along blindly with a majority of them.

No apology is presented for listing some pleasant things; it is a list of wonders we are submitting, not of monstrosities solely.

TAX EXEMPT BONDS

During the Cleveland Administration, the Supreme Court of the United States invalidated the income tax law of that time. The decision produced a serious financial problem for the government, but there was no disposition to pack the court or challenge its opinion. The Constitution at that time did not permit a Federal income tax. What has come to be known as the Sixteenth Amendment to the Constitution was submitted to the States by the Sixty-first Congress, on January 12, 1909, and was declared to have been ratified by three-fourths of the States on February 25, 1913.

It reads:
"The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever sources derived, without apportionment among the several states, and without regard to any census or enumeration."
The amendment was ratified by 42 of the 48 States, and was rejected by Connecticut, Rhode Island and Utah. In Virginia the question was raised by Speaker Richard Evelyn Byrd whether income taxes should not be reserved as a source of taxation to the States, instead of being surrendered to the Federal government. Virginia was one of the few States that then imposed an income tax. Shortly after the Sixteenth Amendment became effective in 1913, the Supreme Court held that bonds of the United States and of the States and localities were tax exempt—that is, that interest paid on such bonds was not subject to income tax.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, in a letter to Treasury officials, has suggested that this ruling was made very soon after the amendment was ratified and before there was general experience with a Federal income tax law, and before the vast volume of Federal bonds were issued during war and depression. It is his suggestion that the Treasury submit a new case to the Supreme Court raising anew the question of tax exemption on income from governmental securities. Dr. Butler as one of the leaders in the movement for adoption of the Sixteenth Amendment, believes that under the "larger enlightenment" and more extended experience with income taxation, the Supreme Court would now take a different view and reverse the interpretation that the Federal government could not tax income from State and municipal bonds even though the amendment to the Constitution gives specific power to Congress to levy a tax on incomes "from whatever sources derived." Dr. Butler says the decision made years ago is "indefensible," and that the court should now be called upon to determine that the amendment means what it says.

Dr. Roosevelt Magill, Undersecretary of the Treasury, in a recent statement favored a new constitutional amendment such as has several times been proposed by Senator Byrd of Virginia, specifically declaring against tax exemption of securities of any kind. Professor Edwin S. Corwin, of Princeton, some years ago sided with Dr. Butler in holding that "the words of the amendment are perfectly explicit and the sense of them could not be made clearer by a dozen constitutional amendments," Congress, he held, has the power to tax income from State and municipal securities, so long as the rates of tax are the same as on other income and could correspondingly permit the States to tax Federal securities, so long as State taxes are not discriminatory.

The conservative Ogden Mills, President Hoover's Secretary of the Treasury, once said that this tax exemption and a protective income tax at high rates could not exist side by side. And the conservative Andrew Mellon said its result was that "a very large class of capital investments escape their just share of taxation."

Where both conservatives and liberals agree, it would seem in order to apply both remedies, to make an immediate test of the exemption ruling, while at the same time submitting to the States a comprehensive amendment that will require the taxation of all property alike, within its class.

Apples and Tomatoes Novel Combination

Apple puree adds an elusive flavor to this molded tomato aspic which forms a colorful well for Waldorf salad. The tomato and apple aspic also may be molded in a shallow pan, cut in squares when jellied and served as an accompaniment for roast pork or ham.

APPLES never cease to be a culinary wonder. They have a way of turning up in the most surprising disguises to add zest to a dish that denies the epicure.

Tomato aspic is the latest dish to acquire a keener palate appeal through the subtle blending of apple puree with the mixture. The result is an aspic that from all physical characteristics has undergone no change. There is a marked improvement in flavor, however, for the apple puree adds an elusive, indescribable quality that definitely gives the tomato aspic more character.

A ring of tomato and apple aspic forms a colorful circle and interesting contrast for Waldorf, mixed salads. The tested recipe follows:

Tomato and Apple Aspic
1 cup canned or 1 tablespoon sugar cooked tomatoes 3 bay leaves crushed through 8 cloves strainer 2 tablespoons gelatin
1 cup cold water 1/2 cup cold water crushed through a 1/2 teaspoon salt strainer 1/2 teaspoon pepper Soak gelatin for five minutes in cold water. Boil the tomato puree for a few minutes with the bay leaves, cloves and sugar. Add the hot tomato puree to the dissolved gelatin, straining out the spices.
Add apple puree, salt and pepper, and pour into molds which have been rinsed with cold water. Set in refrigerator to stiffen. The mixture may be poured into a pan and when stiff cut into squares for serving.
Serve on a lettuce leaf or with a garish of chichory or water cress with mayonnaise.
Yield: 4 to 6 individual molds.

The SHAPESHOT GUILD MIRROR PICTURES

HAVE you ever taken mirror pictures; that is, for example, a picture of sister or the "girl friend" standing in front of a mirror perhaps "dolling up" a bit or maybe just admiring herself?

It is the unusual that attracts attention but it is necessary to use your eyes and a little imagination and ingenuity to ferret out the exceptional and get pictures that show individuality.

When making mirror pictures and focusing for reflected images only, it is necessary to add the distance from the mirror to the subject, to the distance from the mirror to the lens of the camera and then set the focus accordingly.

If it is desired to include the subject in the picture with the reflected image the focus should be set for the distance from the mirror to the lens.
The smaller the lens opening the greater the depth of field and the sharper will be both images. Of course, the nearer the subject is to the mirror the less is required in the matter of "depth."

Let us suppose that sister Mary is two feet and the camera six feet from the mirror. If you want to include sister, as well as her reflected image, in the picture, you set the focus at eight feet. A photoflash lamp simplifies your exposure problem and permits a small enough lens opening to gain a sufficient range of sharpness.

After locating your subject in the finder and setting the focus of your camera at the proper distance, set the shutter for "time," place a photoflash bulb in an ordinary floor lamp within reaching distance from the camera, tilting the shade slightly upward and toward the subject. If you cannot tilt the shade, remove it from the lamp. It is best not to have any bright lights burning near the lens of the camera. Set your lens opening according to the table on the photo flash lamp container. Take your position at the camera, press the cable release to open your shutter and immediately turn on the photoflash and then quickly the shutter—and the picture been taken. Simple, isn't it?

A section for unusual pictures will brighten the pages of any album.

Type of picture a No. 16 photoflash bulb will furnish enough light.
In amateur photography, experimenting becomes the spice of life and you will be surprised at the interesting effects you will get in working out "stunt" pictures on gloomy, rainy days when outdoor activities are taboo. Results, in some instances, may be rather grotesque but you will have a lot of inexpensive amusement and pictures that show individuality. Anyone can take the ordinary run of pictures but it requires a little ingenuity to get the unusual. That is what you should "shoot" for, and the resulting pictures will be far more interesting than ordinary record pictures and breathe life itself into your photograph album.

SCHOOL LUNCHES

There, probably hasn't been a box or picnic lunch packed without a sandwich of some kind in it since the time the Earl of Sandwich first started this grand way of combining bread with other foods. With the opening of schools, the Earl's idea is in for another long season because the school lunch follows on the heels of the summer picnics.

The packing of school lunches often becomes routine because of its frequency. If the packing of the lunch is allowed to slip into a rut, the appetites at the consuming end are very apt to do the same, with the result that soon the growing children are going without many essential foods they need to carry on their school work and build strong healthy bodies.

There will always be favorites in sandwiches that seem to be the backbone of the lunch box, but faithful as they are, there is also need for variety and "newness to keep the appetites from lagging.
This ever present need for change may be accomplished in many different ways. Besides many tasty sandwich fillings, there are several different types of bread that lend themselves well to sandwiches. Another attractive and novel sandwich may be prepared by spreading two or three slices of bread and stacking one upon the next, then slice down through the stack and a ribbon style will be produced.

Save your smaller mayonnaise or jam jars to pack cottage cheese, stewed fruit, baked beans, and an infinite variety of salads. Jars equipped with the new type knife-opening caps are best because of the ease with which they may be opened.

Milk is such an important item in the daily diet it must not be overlooked in the school lunch.
If not supplied at the school, it may be carried in vacuum bottles and can take several forms for the sake of variety. Cream soups of all kinds incorporate milk to an advantage and may be carried well in a vacuum bottle. Chocolate milk and cocoa both make appropriate milk beverages for a lunch box.

The lunch box should be carefully selected to meet the needs of the individual. The best are inexpensive and the care after purchase is indeed an important item. A child may well be taught to prepare and pack his or her own lunch, and at the same time it would be well to teach them to cleanse the lunch box carefully after each time it is used. The lunch box should be kept immunely clean by a daily washing with warm suds, scalding of all its parts, and an occasional ex-posure to the sun and air.

Following are some suggestions that may serve as a guide for lunch box menu planning. If the lunch box menus are planned in advance, the chances for better balanced menus are greater, and at the same time less effort at the last minute is required.

Sandwich Bread Suggestions
Nut bread; date nut bread; orange bread; apricot bread; fig nut bread; prune bread; Boston Brown bread; wheat bread; bran bread;
whole wheat bread; raisin bread;
corn bread; rye bread and white bread.

Sandwich Filling Suggestions
Peanut butter and mayonnaise; peanut butter and marshmallow cream; peanut butter with minced onion; peanut butter with crisp bacon; peanut butter with fruit preserves or jelly; cottage cheese with fruit preserves or jelly; cottage cheese with salmon; cottage cheese with onion and nuts; cottage cheese with chopped olives; cottage cheese with crushed pineapple.

Desert Suggestions
Graham crackers spread with melted milk chocolate; graham hard candy and milk chocolate.

Food Extras
Lettuce rolls filled with meat or vegetable filling; stuffed celery (cheese spreads); potato chips; open faced sandwiches in animal shapes; deviled eggs stuffed with meat filling; raw vegetables—carrots, tomato.

PLANS ARE MADE FOR SEAL SALE

Tuberculosis Association Office Confused With Red Cross By The Public.

Preparations are in progress today at the Virginia Tuberculosis Association headquarters in Richmond to launch the annual Christmas Seal campaign, but care is being exercised to avoid confusion with the Red Cross Annual Roll Call.

Miss Leslie Combs Foster, executive secretary of the association, explained that an agreement exists between the American Red Cross and the National Tuberculosis Association to prevent confusion between the two campaigns which come annually before and during the holiday season. Under this arrangement the 31st annual Christmas Seal sale will start this year on November 26, the day after Thanksgiving. The Red Cross will begin its roll call on Armistice Day and close on Thanksgiving.

Confusion Reported
Christmas Seals, the income from which is used exclusively to eradicate and control tuberculosis, still are confused in the minds of some people with "Red Cross seals," according to Miss Foster. Apparently, she said, this is due to the early history of the Christmas seals.

"In 1908," Miss Foster continued, "the Red Cross undertook the sale of Christmas seals. Two years later, the Red Cross took the National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated associations into partnership for the conduct of the Christmas Seal sale. This arrangement continued for ten years, until 1920, when the Red Cross decided to devote its entire energies to its roll call, which is its method of raising funds as a means of rendering aid in time of great disaster and national emergencies.

Symbols Explained
"Since then, the National Tuberculosis Association has been the proprietor of the Christmas Seal and each year it authorizes the Virginia Tuberculosis Association and other similar organizations to conduct the Seal campaign, the funds from which are used exclusively in the war against the white plague."

"That explains," Miss Foster added, "why Virginia is confronted with the appeals of the two crosses every fall. It is interesting to note that the Red Cross is a duplication of the Swiss flag in reverse colors. The emblem of the Christmas Seal is a double-barred cross, otherwise known as the Lorraine cross, a symbol of mercy which dates back to the Ninth Century. Every Christmas Seal issued since 1920 has emphasized the Lorraine cross in its design."

4-H Clubs Taking Parts In Contest

More than 15,000 4-H Clubs in 40 States have completed their year's work in the National 4-H Social Progress Contest, and the returns are now being assembled by county agents. For the past nine months, some 300,000 farm boys and girls have been plugging points for citizenship, neighborliness, appreciation of good music, understanding of world affairs and fine literature and other requirements in the contest, which is sponsored by the Radio Corporation of America and its service, the National Broadcasting Company.

Thousands of communities are waiting expectantly the results of the judging, which will award to the top club a trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago, November 26-December 4. Fine radio sets and Victor records will be awarded state-winning Clubs. County winners will have their choice of a copy of the famous Victor Book of the Opera or an album of four Victor records on which the most popular 4-H songs have been specially recorded.

A feature of the contest was writing an original radio playlet by each club. Interesting helps were broadcast on the National Farm and Home Hour over NBC networks and embryo writers were supplied with a book, "Hints on Writing for Radio." The best play in many states will be broadcast locally over NBC associated stations, and the national winning script will be given a nationwide NBC network broadcast during the Club Congress.

ART EXHIBITION OPEN TO PUBLIC

Characterized as one of the most valuable art exhibitions to be staged in Virginia art history is the Burch-Schulze collection of paintings by American masters of landscape and the figure, which was thrown open to the public on Sunday at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts. "This collection represents the backbone of American art and art study," said Thomas C. Colt, Jr., director in making the announcement of the exhibition in Richmond this week.

The collection is being loaned to the museum by Mrs. Edgar Francis Burch of "Blue Shingles," near Richmond, and her father, Paul Schulze, art connoisseur and collector of Chicago, who in 1924 with Mrs. Schulze gave a gallery of American masters to the Art Institute of Chicago in memory of their son who was killed while bearing the Peace Message over the American lines.

Sargent Paintings Listed
Included in the list of canvases to be shown from October 10 to November 22 are examples of the work of John Singer Sargent, Geo. Inness, the father of American landscape painting; John H. Twachtman, Willard Metcalf, Childre Hassam, Julian Alden Weir, Garden Symons, Adolph Redfield, Robert Henri, Ralph Blakelock, Paul Dougherty, Theodore Robinson, Emil Carlsen, Charles H. Davis, Arthur B. Davies, W. L. Lathrop, Melville Dewey, William Mitchell, Bruce Crane, Ben Foster and others. Forty canvases, several of them personal gifts from the artists, will comprise the exhibition which has been selected from the Burch-Schulze collection valued at more than $350,000.

Owing to the importance of the exhibition from the standpoint of art education in Virginia, art students and pupils of public and private schools are being urged by museum officials to view the exhibition only made possible through the generosity of Mr. Schulze and Mrs. Burch.

Modern Paintings
The canvases are by men who were born shortly after the middle of the last century and who became outstanding in the world of art from the beginning of the century. Today the works cover a period in American art history, officials stated, that is considered the golden period.

Governor George C. Peery and other state and city officials were present at the private member and press preview and reception which inaugurated the 1937-38 art season at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts. Mr. and Mrs. Schulze and Mr. and Mrs. Burch were the guests of honor.

Catholic Rural Life Conference Planned

A national convention which should be of vital interest to the farmers of Virginia and all those interested in agricultural problems and their problems, is to be held from November 7-10 in Richmond. It is the convention of the National Catholic Rural Life Conference, an organization within the Catholic Church, interested primarily in the welfare of its own communicants, but approaching the study of the economic, educational, religious and sociological problems of rural America with a broad, patriotic view of helping the nation by helping those upon whom the security and well-being of a nation rest.

During the four days of the convention questions of importance to rural America will be discussed by leaders in the field. Talks which promise to create widespread interest will be delivered by Dr. Carl C. Taylor and Dr. O. E. Baker, both of the United States Department of Agriculture, and Mr. Herbert Agar, Associate Editor of the Courier-Journal of Louisville, Kentucky. These sessions will be held at the Convention headquarters, the John Marshall Hotel. A general and cordial invitation is extended to all interested persons to attend any and all of these sessions.

BOONE HIGHWAY MONUMENT BUILT

call "Boone," the highway follows closely the trail blazed by Daniel Boone from Tidewater Virginia to a spot approximately on the present Missouri-Kansas border. Although the highway beyond that point has no connection with the exploits of Daniel Boone, it was a popular route of travel for later-day explorers and colonists, and, as a consequence, the entire east-to-west road is full of historical appeal and interest for those who follow the course of American development.

History also records that Daniel Boone visited Tidewater Virginia—actually saw the sea—after his first expedition into what was originally projected as the new state of Transylvania.

The marker at Virginia Beach contains two plaques, one bearing the head of an Algonquin Indian chief and the other the figure of Daniel Boone. Also included in the monument is a symbolical bear and stones picked up at many points along the Boone Trail. The arrowhead erected here has been dedicated to the memory of C. Whittle Sams, late of Norfolk, outstanding student of Indian lore.

Inscription On Marker
An inscription on the marker tells the story of the trail in these words:

"Near this spot over 300 years ago there passed an ancient trail used by the Algonquin Indians in their hunting and war. It reached from Boston Harbor in the north-eastern states to the lower end of Roanoke Island.

"Another trail from the Yadkin River country in North Carolina reached the sea at this point. This trail, in part, passed over the old trading path, crossing at Trading Fort near Salisbury, N. C.

"Still another trail, and a much longer one, crossed Virginia from this point, passing near where Richmond and Lexington are now located. It passed over the Blue Ridge Mountain, into Kentucky and on to the west.

"This trail is now known as U. S. 60 and is a national thoroughfare, reaching the Pacific Ocean. Daniel Boone and his companions traveled this trail from Kentucky to Tidewater Virginia."

By a curious coincidence, it was pointed out yesterday, the date set for the unveiling of the local marker is just one day after the birthday of Daniel Boone, who was born in Berks County, Pennsylvania, on October 23, 1734, and four days after the twenty-fourth anniversary of the founding of the Boone Trail Association, on October 20, 1913.

The average farm in the southern states is only 74 acres in size as compared to 203 acres in other states, the 1935 farm census revealed. Of 6,812,350 farm operators in the U. S., 37.4 per cent or 2,547,952 were in the 11 southern states. The average cash income for each of their farms was $462 as compared to $1,189 for the other 37 states.

Grocers Feature Virginia Apples

Miss Virginia (Marjorie Thorsen) being welcomed to the Canned Foods Marketing Conference of the Independent Grocers' Alliance by Miss IGA (Mary Dunbar). The conference was called September 27 and 28 in the Knickerbocker hotel, Chicago, for the purpose of formulating a nationwide IGA program to help move immense packs of Virginia applesauce now in prospect as a result of the season's bumper apple crop.

Aid in moving large packs of Virginia apples in prospect as a result of the season's bumper crops will be extended through a nationwide program mapped out by the Independent Grocers' Alliance of America at its Canned Food Marketing Conference, recently held in Chicago.

In the conference discussion of bumper farm yields, J. Frank Grimes, IGA president, expressed the opinion that gradual lowering of food costs to consumers may be in prospect for consumers toward the end of the year.

"Despite these expected lower prices," he told the organization's executives and buyers, "the new ample production this year insures the farmers of having one of the best cash income years in recent history and the prosperity of the farmer will have a helpful influence on business throughout the winter."

The program as formulated by IGA will take form in a country-wide canned food sales event through the organization's 6,000 retail members late in October.

FIRST CONCERT DATE MOVED UP

Norfolk Symphony Orchestra To Open Season In Auditorium On November 4.

The first concert of the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra, originally planned to be held the last week in October, has been moved to November 4. The change was made due to the fact that the City Auditorium, where the concerts are to be held, will not be available on the earlier date.

An addition has been made in the list of guest artists to appear with the Symphony from time to time throughout the season. Norman Cordon, young singer of the Metropolitan Opera Company, has been engaged to bring his talents to Norfolk for the April concert. Henri Deering, internationally celebrated pianist, and Joyce Wasserman, American violinist, also will be heard during the season.

Ticket sales are passing expectations, according to Mrs. A. R. Turnbull, General Chairman of the drive. Tickets for the series of five concerts are priced the same as last year, and Virginia Beach will be well represented in the capacity audiences that are expected.

Conductor Henry Cowles Whitehead reports that members of the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra are enthusiastic about the music for the opening performance, feeling that it will certainly please all who attend. With the increasing interest in classical music a capacity crowd is anticipated at the opening concert November 4.

This is the first time that the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra has been able to open its season in the City Auditorium.

W. P. Ford and Sons Modernize Building

W. P. Ford and Sons are modernizing their store at 324 Church Street and all work is expected to be completed by the end of this month.

New display windows are being installed of black tile with aluminum trimmings that will add greatly to the exterior of this popular furniture store. All inside walls are being redecorated in a color scheme that will lend a new beauty to the interior of all floors.

An invitation is extended to all customers as well as the public generally to visit the modernized store where seven floors filled with all that is new in furniture will be found. A modern electrically operated elevator also has been installed.

W. P. Ford and Sons have occupied this same building for the past twenty years.

Many factory workers of Moscow, Russia, are learning to fly in their spare time.

A letter of appreciation has been received by Capt. W. B. Jackson, chairman of the Princess Anne Chapter of the American Red Cross, from National Headquarters in Washington, D. C.

The letter expresses gratitude and commends the local chapter for the contribution which was raised by this chapter for the Mississippi River Flood Relief Fund, amounting to $1,491.86, which is approximately $500 above the quota given the community.

Demonstrating their belief in the future growth and development of Virginia Beach, James M. Jordan, Jr., E. M. Hardy and A. L. Returning to Virginia Beach with seven out of twelve cups and numerous ribbons awarded at the Society Horse Show at Suffolk Tuesday, the Princess Anne Hunt Club's entries crowned themselves with glory. Competition at the Suffolk show is always keen and the Virginia Beach club demonstrated the quality of animals being owned and trained here. The performance of the local entries is considered nothing less than marvelous as the club is very young and this exhibit was the first away from their home ring.

The campaign to raise $5,000 for the eradication of mosquitoes at Virginia Beach next year is progressing rapidly under the direction of Mrs. J. James S. Barron, chairman of the public health committee of the Woman's Municipal League of Virginia Beach. Two thousand dollars has been pledged up to the present time, it is reported, and although the final goal is high, the women are very much encouraged and are depending upon the cooperation of property owners and citizens to respond quickly to the call for subscriptions.

Princess Anne farmers and members of the 4-H Club of Princess Anne County brought home many blue ribbons and cash prizes from the Richmond State Fair by their splendid exhibits. Members of the 4-H Club won sixteen prizes, aggregating $110 and establishing a new record for any one county.

SAFEST VEHICLE AIM OF INDUSTRY

Recognized As Motor World's First Responsibility To Traveling Public.

Recognizing that its first responsibility is in building the safest possible vehicle, the Automotive Industry believes further that primary responsibility for highway safety rests with public officials given authority by law to build, maintain and control the use of streets and highways. This is stated in a brochure released for general circulation explaining the purpose, function and program of the "newly-organized Automotive Safety Foundation."

Its announcement is "to foster the general welfare and to promote the mutual interests of the public and the automotive industry by encouraging the safe and efficient use of streets and highways; by stimulating research into the causes of street and highway accidents; by disseminating information on the safe use of motor vehicles, effective methods of preventing accidents, ways and means of relieving traffic congestion and facilitating traffic with safety and on other matter affecting the motor vehicle and its use."

Safe-Driving Program

Officers of the Foundation are: Paul G. Hoffman, president; C. C. Callon, vice president; F. B. Davis, Jr., vice president; A. O. Dietz, Jr., vice president; Byron C. Fox, treasurer, and Alfred Reeves, assistant treasurer. Norman Damon is the director.

In explaining the function, the brochure says: "The Automotive Safety Foundation was organized June 2, 1937 to carry forward on behalf of four major branches of the automotive industry, a comprehensive program to increase the safe and efficient use of the highways, initiated upon an expanded scale in January, 1936.

"Activities of the Foundation are financed currently through voluntary contributions from automobile, bus and truck manufacturers; parts and accessory manufacturers; rubber tire manufacturers; and finance and discount companies.

"Operating Responsibility"
"The industry believes that control of the twin problems of accidents and traffic congestion can be achieved by official assumption of 'operating responsibility' through effective coordination of related official activities of construction, maintenance, enforcement and education, aggressively supported by an informed public opinion and by all divisions of the motor industry.

"Always concerned with safety on the highway, the industry has long been active in support of constructive safety efforts. More recently it has realized that, both from humanitarian and business impulses, an even greater contribution toward effecting safety highway practices can be made by combining four major branches of the industry in a broadened program of activities."

LOCAL MISSION PLANS ARE MADE

Strengthening Of Foundations Of Christian Faith Aim Of Statewide Program.

Secure in the knowledge that the first annual Virginia State Preaching Mission, which opens a four-day session in Richmond Thursday, November 4, will prove a success, officials of the State Mission Committee are devoting their efforts to perfecting plans for the follow-up missions to be held in every Protestant church in the State beginning November 8 and ending December 5.

Two phases constitute the program of the follow-up meetings, the first being the one and two-day missions to be held from November 8 to November 28, and the second, and culminating effort of the movement, being the Eight-Day simultaneous Missions from November 28 to December 5. Indications point to a large participation in both phases.

Cooperation Sought
Emphasis is placed by the State Mission Committee, of which Dr. J. Manning Potts, presiding elder of the Richmond District, Methodist Church, South, is chairman, on the Eight-Day Missions, which will be conducted generally as local church efforts.

These simultaneous efforts, Dr. Potts declared, do not imply competition, but rather indicate a strong cooperation.

"We regard them all as branches of the Church of God working simultaneously to the same ends," he said. "We believe this united effort will mark a new day with the Christian churches of the State."

Varied Services
Each church is at liberty to conduct the week according to its own ideas, the only stipulations being that they act simultaneously and that each pastor do his own preaching. While many ministers already have held revival services, Dr. Potts emphasized the fact that the Eight-Day Missions are for the purpose of supplementing these services and are in no way conflicting. They are designed, he said, for the purpose of stressing the need of religion and the church to the members already in the church, as well as for obtaining new members.

The purposes of the Eight-Day Missions are the "strengthening of the foundations of the Christian faith on the part of every member of the local congregation; to reawaken and reinterest the 'marginal member'; to make new disciples for Christ; to bring into active fellowship those who have permitted their membership to slip; to send forth Christians into the world with a zeal for the redemption of every area of life that all human relationships may reflect the spirit of Jesus Christ and the redemptive purposes for which He came."

As a guidance for sermon texts for the Eight-Day series, the State chairman has suggested that ministers preach on some book of the New Testament such as one of the Gospels or the Book of Acts, and has further recommended that, as many churches are now planning campaigns for pledges, the general theme of "Stewardship" may prove appropriate, with emphasis being placed on such topics as "Stewardship of Time," "Stewardship of Talent," "Stewardship of Resources" and "Stewardship of Life."

BAYNE THEATRE PREVUES

Jack Benny, Ida Lupino, Gail Patrick and Richard Arlen—a quartet of stars whose amatory adventures and misadventures furnish a large part of the hilarious comedy "The Prisoner of Zenda," which will be shown today and tomorrow, October 15 and 16.

"The Prisoner of Zenda," an all-time favorite of the swashbuckling tale of love, intrigue and adventure in the courts of Europe, with Ronald Colman, Macleanie Carroll and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. in the leading roles, is coming to the Bayne Theatre for two days, Sunday and Monday, October 17 and 18. Colman plays a dual role in this colorful tale, appearing both as the adventurous Rudolf Rassendyll and as King Rudolf V, the monarch he impersonates. The supporting cast includes Mary Astor, C. Aubrey Smith and David Niven.

The breezy comedy of a newspaperman who went berserk when he was suddenly deluged with unlimited funds, brings Edward Everett Horton, Lynne Overman and Louise Campbell to the screen on Tuesday, October 20 in "Wild Money." The thrilling tale of how one man's daring rid the Old West of its worst gang of cattle rustlers is told in Clarence E. Mulford's "Hopalong Riders Again," which also will be shown on Tuesday, with William Boyd again cast in his familiar role of "Hopalong."

Nora Lane and Lois Wilder carry the female romantic leads.

"Varsity Show," Warner Bros. musical extravaganza, will have its local premiere Wednesday, October 20 and continue through Thursday, October 21, starring the ever-popular Dick Powell and introducing in grand manner to motion picture audiences, Fred Warding and his Pennsylvaniaans. Included in the stellar cast are Ted Healy, Lee Dixon, Patricia Lane, Rosemary Lane, Walter Catlett and Roy Atwill.

Date Of Cattle Sale At Staunton Changed

The date of the feeder calf sale at Staunton has been changed to Wednesday, October 20, two days after the breeders' sale at Warrenton October 18, Kenneth Litton, assistant animal husbandman of the Virginia agricultural division, said yesterday.

Virginia stockmen were advised by him of the following important dates: October 4-6, Baltimore fat stock show and sale; October 18, Angus show and sale at Warrenton; and October 20, feeder calf and farmer bull sale at Staunton.

SCOUT PROGRAM TO BE BUSY ONE

Carnival, Party And District Rally Are Scheduled For Next Two Weeks.

Next Friday night, at the Boy Scout Hall on Nineteenth Street, Troop 60, of Virginia Beach, will sponsor a "Penny Carnival" for the parents and friends of the troop members. Each patrol is arranging booths for games, side-shows and stunts that will be decorated to represent a carnival. A large attendance is expected.

The troop's annual Halloween Party will be held at the Scout Hall on the following Friday, October 29. This is announced as a featured event of the troop calendar which is looked forward to each year with anticipation.

The second Princess Anne District Rally will be held on the grounds of the Court House School on Saturday afternoon, October 23, beginning at three o'clock. Troops from Nimmo, Kempville, Charity, London Bridge and Virginia Beach will participate in a program of mass games and contests.

Fire-building, knot-tying and message relays will feature the scouting work to be demonstrated, and other games and contests will offer considerable fun to the participants and spectators. The afternoon program will be followed by a campfire, which will be conducted by members of the Tidewater Council. Boys living in sections of the county in which scout troops have not yet been organized have been invited to attend the district rally.

Tonight, a new Boy Scout troop will be installed at London Bridge. Louis R. Lester, Scout Executive of the Tidewater Council, will be present to install the troop and to present the boys with their scouting credentials.

Health Notes

"While the diphtheria death rate has been reduced from 14.1 in 1915 to 4.6 in 1936, the fact remains that by far the majority of fatalities last year were needless. It simply represents the old repeated fact that human indifference or ignorance rather than science is to blame. With toxoid immunization to prevent this distressing childhood condition and antitoxin to treat cases already developed, medicine has developed powerful enemies to diphtheria. But weapons to be of any value must be used. And the fact that in Virginia so far this year there have been approximately six hundred and twenty-four youngsters who have contracted diphtheria, resulting in thirty deaths, simply means that the fullest possible power of these defenses is not being employed," state Dr. I. C. Riggin, State Health Commissioner.

"The ideal objective is to have every child in this Commonwealth protected against diphtheria by toxoid immunization. While the percentage of Virginia's children thus protected is large, there are still many who, because of parental thoughtlessness or misconceived notions, have not been made invulnerable to a diphtheria attack in this harmless and painless manner. This is a handicap that no parent has the right to impose upon their offspring."

"Antitoxin, on the other hand, represents the effective and modern treatment for the disease itself. In this connection, several physicians recently were required to defend its efficacy. It happened that in a certain locality several diphtheria deaths occurred (incidentally none of the children had been immunized against the disease); and this, in spite of the fact that antitoxin had been used."

"In the great majority of cases, antitoxin will cure diphtheria. But the point to be emphasized is that it must be given in time. In the cases referred to parental neglect and indifference had been so great that not one of the children received the benefit of this treatment until the disease had made terrific headway."

"It follows that a physician should be called when a child develops a sore throat. The sore throat may not, and in most cases will not be, incipient diphtheria; but it does not pay to take the chance. As already indicated, antitoxin only is effective when diphtheria is early recognized and before it gets out of hand."

"In short, toxoid to immunize against the disease and the prompt administration of antitoxin in the early detected cases can, and it is hoped eventually will, reduce the annual number of diphtheria deaths to the much-to-be desired vanishing point."

"Music of Romance" King

Eddy Duchin

FAMED exponent of heart-throbbing music, Eddy Duchin, who recently opened his winter activities with the "Music of Romance" program heard every Wednesday evening from 9:00 to 9:30 P.M., EST, over an NBC-WJZ network, has been acclaimed by the critics as the "Music of Romance" King in some of the most laudatory reviews ever given a performer.

There have been many claimants to this title, but there is little doubt that the handsome maestro has been definitely acknowledged the first in line. His romantic interpretations are symbolic of the beauty enhanced by the world's only Elizabeth Arden.

SPORTSMEN ASK LOCAL SUPPORT

Better Hunting And Fishing In Virginia Held Sole Aim Of Organization.

Letters have been received from individual sportsmen and sportsmen's organizations in every section of Virginia accepting the invitation to attend the permanent organization meeting of the Virginia Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs which will be held in Lynchburg next Wednesday. The federation belongs entirely to the sportsmen. It is not political. It has no paid officers. Its sole objective is to work for better hunting and fishing of all kinds in Virginia.

A number of the letters emphasized the point that only by cooperation can the desired objectives of the hunters and fishermen throughout the State be attained, for, as has often been shown, the sportsmen of any one locality working alone, have been able to accomplish almost nothing. The clubs and individuals themselves feel it decidedly to their interest, they declare, to form a federation. Each club will then have behind it the full weight and strength of all the organized hunters and fishermen in Virginia—an influence heretofore unprecedented in this state.

Another important objective of the federation, its officers have pointed out, would give the farmers and other land-owners the recognition to which they are entitled and put them on an equal footing with all others in the working out of game and fish programs.

The Lynchburg meeting will be held at the Virginia Hotel. It will begin at 10 o'clock in the afternoon and from available advance information it bids fair to be the largest gathering of hunters and fishermen ever assembled in Virginia.

Predictions made early in the spring by prominent contractors and distributors of building supplies that this amount would be surpassed in the opening months of the new year were borne out by the reported totals, and the further prediction that not less than $10,000,000 would be spent locally in the twelve-month period may become a reality. Real estate agents believe that the building boom will be continued right through the winter, and it was pointed out, even though actual construction of homes and businesses should show some decrease from expectations, the development of the sewage disposal plant at a cost of $1,000,000 is almost certain to insure the desired objective.

Similar gains have been reported from all sections of the Norfolk area, which includes the cities of Norfolk and Portsmouth, Virginia Beach, Norfolk and Princess Anne counties. The total amount spent to date on construction activity stands at $3,210,853.00, or an increase of $1,404,798.00 over the corresponding period of 1936. Figures for Princess Anne County were not included in the survey released this week.

The invitation to hold the secretaries' conference here was extended jointly by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce and by Roland Eaton, managing director of the Cavalier Hotel.

STORY WITHOUT WORDS

IS the water hot or cold—and is the man mad? Three guesses, and you're right. The water is cold, and the man's mad. He's all set for a soothing, cleansing hot water shower, and there's no hot water—not a drop. And the day is ruined.

Such major household travelties are one of the reasons why modern homes are depending more and more upon electric hot water service. The modern Hotpoint electric water heater insures an unending supply of hot water for the morning shower, as well as for all other hot water needs of the home. It is entirely automatic, requiring no attention after it is installed, and it's economical to operate. It's a sure cure for the "cold water blues."

TRAFFIC SIGNALS AID TO DRIVING

is in the intersection, he shall clear the intersection. As bad almost as those who actually run a red light, Mr. Rhodes thinks, are those drivers who violate the meaning of the amber light, either at the beginning or the end of the green period. Certainly not good driving manners, it is a frequent cause of accidents.

Stop signs and traffic signals are installed only after a careful engineering survey, which has determined the need for them. They are for your protection," Mr. Rhodes concluded. "Obeyed, they will accomplish their purpose. Violated, they cause accidents."

MISLABELED RYE SOLD AS ABRUZZI

Use Of Certified Seed Recommended To Farmers By State Agronomist.

W. H. Byrne, Virginia agricultural extension agronomist, warns farmers that many varieties of rye are still sold as Abruzzi, and asks the aid of growers in stamping out this deception. Abruzzi rye is winter hardy in Virginia and grows upright, is about two weeks earlier than other rye, and makes good pasture, especially for sheep and calves. Many varieties of rye sometimes mislabeled as Abruzzi are winter hardy but do not have this habit of growth.

Conditions have improved in recent years. Fewer dealers are offering mislabeled rye under the name of Abruzzi. The federal bureau of plant industry has been active in enforcing the truthful labeling provisions of the federal seed act which applies to all interstate shipments.

The seed of the different rye varieties are similar in appearance, therefore it is impossible to distinguish between varieties by examining the threshed grain, Mr. Byrne says. Seed from outside the state, complete labeling is a safeguard. Seed offered at abnormally low prices is open to suspicion. It is wise to inquire as to origin and to keep records showing representations made by the seller.

When misbranding is suspected it should be called to the attention of the State Department of Agriculture at Richmond, which enforces the state seed law. If the shipment appears to have violated the misbranding prohibitions of the Federal seed act, it will be able to report the case to the U. S. Department of Agriculture for prosecution.

To be sure you are getting true Abruzzi, advises Mr. Byrne, use certified seed.

Book Is Published On Checker Match

Authentic records of the playing which featured the world's champion checker matches, held last December at the Miramar Inn in South Palm Beach, recently were published in book form for checker enthusiasts and the publication dedicated to J. Stanley Smith, owner of the Miramar, and three other officials of the championship tourney. The play was held under the auspices of the American Checker Association.

In the forward to the play-by-play records, mention is made of the valuable services contributed by Mr. Smith and his associates—Judge C. D. Blackwell, of West Palm Beach; Newell W. Banks, of Detroit, Michigan, a former national champion, and Joseph Brown, of Woonsocket, Long Island—and contains an interesting writeup of the attractions and advantages found at the Miramar. Reference also is made to Mr. Smith's association with Albee Hall at Virginia Beach during the summer season.

In the championship play, Asa A. Long, of Toledo, Ohio, defeated Edwin F. Hunt, of Nashville, Tenn., in a series of forty matches.

Oceana PTA Studies Annual Bazaar Plans

Furthering of plans for the annual bazaar, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association of the Oceana School, will be discussed at the October meeting of the association, which will be held in the school auditorium on Tuesday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. The bazaar is the major money-raising event sponsored by the Oceana School, and an attempt will be made to make this season's project the most successful ever held.

Chairmen of the committees charged with the preparations for the bazaar were named as follows: Candy, Mrs. Rackley; country store, Mrs. Brothers; program and entertainment, Mrs. Rufford; booths, Mrs. Edward Woodhouse and Mrs. A. A. Booth; gifts, Mrs. Young; bingo, Mrs. Frank Porter; soft drinks, Mrs. Morrison; and ice cream, Mrs. Fokett.

Troop Installation At London Bridge

Installation of Troop 60, Boy Scouts of America, at London Bridge is scheduled for tonight, according to an announcement made yesterday by the Rev. R. W. Eastman, who will serve temporarily as Scoutmaster. Louis Lester, Boy Scout Executive of the Tidewater Council, will be in charge of the installation ceremonies, and he will be assisted by members of the Kempsville troop.

G. L. Wright and "Red" Smith will act as assistant Scoutmasters. Members of the troop committee are Floyd T. Deary, George W. Lawrence and Thomas K. Helvin. The London Bridge Baptist Church is sponsoring the new troop.

Eight boys have announced their intention to join the troop, and others are expected to be recruited within the next several weeks.

Installation of the London Bridge troop is in line with the policy recently adopted by the Princess Anne District Council to organize at least one Scout troop in each of the county's communities.

WILD DUCK CROP BEST IN YEARS

Largest Migration In Recent Times Expected To Head Southward Soon.

The largest migration of wild ducks in three years will be heading southward as duck hunting seasons open in northern states on Saturday, according to a survey by the More Game Birds Foundation.

The wetfoot increase, however, will be nothing for duck hunters to become excited about, the Foundation warns. America's wild ducks hit the bottom of the worst wildfowl depression in history in 1934 and almost any turn for the better can not be recorded as an increase.

Heavier rainfall in north central states which reflooded drought-stricken sections of the great mid-continental "duck factory" brought larger duck crops during the summer breeding season. Minnesota records a 50 per cent increase, mainly of teal; Nebraska and South Dakota, 25 per cent, and

South Dakota 50 per cent.

Aiding the waterfowl comeback in this hard hit duck producing section have been $21,769.37 of federal funds and $1,348,851 of "Duck Stamp" fees used for waterfowl refuge establishment the past three years.

"However," the Foundation points out, "drought and agricultural reclamation of over 70,000,000 acres of wild duck areas have relegated the United States to a minor status as a duck producer. Eighty-five per cent of our waterfowl now have been driven into Canada to breed—principally in limited sections of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta."

Situation "Precarious"

In Manitoba, according to a survey by the Manitoba Fish and Game Association, of the 55 most important wildfowl breeding grounds, 31 areas produced more ducks than last year, 22 had approximately the same duck crops, while 12 had less ducks. Northern Saskatchewan and Alberta produced good crops the past summer but droughts again took toll of waterfowl in southern sections.

Despite the small increase this year the waterfowl situation is still precarious, the Foundation believes. "Not until ruined portions of the Canadian 'duck factory' are restored can we again have really good duck shooting in the United States," the Foundation declares.

Equally satisfactory for table use or oven service is this new set of kitchen china decorated with a vivid fruit pattern in permanent American ceramic colors that resist high temperatures, contact with acids or constant washing. These revolutionary qualities are made possible by chemical research. Designs of fruit and stylized flowers decorate casseroles, nests of mixing bowls, cookie jars, pie plates and servers and even refrigerator cases.

Strip crops and terraces are the traffic lights of a good system of erosion control. Close-growing crops halt the rush of run-off water across sloping fields and force it to deposit its load of contra-band soil. Terraces detour the water accumulated in each terrace interval and send it winding as a safe speed along the terrace channel.

Farming on the contour means getting the maximum erosion control value out of every farming operation by making every plow furrow, every grain drill produce a miniature reservoir to increase absorption of run-off water.

Rocks don't "grow" in a field, many believe. They just stay where they are while the soil moves off and leaves them as a result of erosion.

OCEANO-TO-OCEAN TRAIL MEMORIAL TO BE UNVEILED ON SUNDAY P. M.

Arrowhead On Seventeenth Street Marks Beginning Of Daniel Boone Highway.

DEDICATION EXERCISES TO BEGIN AT 3 O'CLOCK

Principal Address To Be Made By Dr. Squires; Mayor Smith Releases Program.

The arrowhead marking the beginning of the Daniel Boone Trail, one of the most important coast-to-coast highways spanning the United States, will be unveiled with suitable ceremonies on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. Final details of the program were completed on Wednesday at a meeting of the Town Council committee held in Mayor Roy Smith's office.

Squires To Talk

Dr. W. H. T. Squires, of Norfolk, outstanding historian of the Tidewater area of Virginia, will make the principal address. The subject on which he will speak, "America's Typical Pioneer," will feature the life and exploits of Daniel Boone, to whose memory the transcontinental highway is dedicated. The Hon. Lindsay Warren, of North Carolina, member of the House of Representatives, also is expected to make a brief address.

Because of his previous sailing for an inspection of the Canal Zone, Congressman Norman R. Hamilton, of the Second Virginia District, will be unable to attend. His regret at his inability to be present was expressed in a letter received several days ago by Mayor Smith.

Mayor To Preside

Brief tributes to C. Whitte Sams, student of Indian lore, and to John A. Lesner, one of the foremost advocates of good roads in Virginia, will be paid by Mrs. Frank Naylor, of Norfolk and Don Seiwel. Mental plaques incorporated in the symbolic marker are dedicated to these Virginians because of their interest in early American life and their promotion of smooth highways in to all sections of the country.

Mayor Roy Smith will be in charge of the exercises and will touch briefly on the historical background of the dedication. The presentation of the marker to the town and the explanation of the Daniel Boone legend will be handled by Major J. Hampton Nash, national director of the Boone Trail Association, sponsors of the markers along the more than 3,000 miles of highway.

Annual Oceana Bazaar to Open November 3 for Three Nights

Orchestral Concert, Dance Recital And Fashion Show Are Arranged By Committee In Charge; Record Attendance Is Forecast And Many New Features Are Promised.

The annual Oceana Bazaar, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association of the Oceana School, will be held this year on the nights of November 3, 4 and 5, Wednesday through Friday, it was announced this week by the committee in charge. A bigger, better and more entertaining program than ever has been witnessed in past years has been promised for this season's event, which regularly attracts residents from all sections of the county.

On the opening night, the featured attraction will be a prominent orchestra. So successful was the concert given last year by the Junior Symphony Orchestra of Norfolk, under the direction of Felix Hardin, according to the committee, that a similar entertainment was approved for this season's opening night.

Dance Program

Thursday night's feature will be presented by the Thomas Schoof of Dancing. All types of modern dancing will be presented on the program, including the "Big Apple," latest craze in the dancing world. Many of the numbers on this evening's program will feature county students enrolled in the school.

CLUB'S BIRTHDAY PARTY TUESDAY

Achievements Of Woman's Organization During Twelve Years Are Recalled.

The Woman's Club of Princess Anne County will celebrate its twelfth birthday with a luncheon to be held at the Pine Tree Inn, on Virginia Beach Boulevard, next Tuesday—October 26. The luncheon will be open to every woman in the county, and refreshments made by Mrs. Roland Thorpe at her home on One Hundred and Fifteenth Street, Virginia Beach.

Reviewing the career and activities of the Woman's Club since its inception, Mrs. Edward H. Herbert, who is serving her third year as president, said:

Organized In 1925

"The Woman's Club of Princess Anne County was organized in the summer of 1925, when a local organization of Kempville District women resolved to reorganize their unit into a county-wide club. In October of that year, a group of 33 women representing the various districts of the county met at the Virginia Truck Experiment Station and formed the present organization. So widespread was the interest in the club and so eagerly did the women of Princess Anne grasp the opportunity for a common meeting ground that in a short time the rolls included 300 members.

"Mrs. A. E. Ewell was the first president. She was followed by Mrs. R. B. Taylor, Mrs. F. W. Fitzgerald, Mrs. H. O. Brown and Mrs. Webster Hitehawk. Guided by these women, whose names have long been synonymous with county service, the club always has exerted a broad cultural and benevolent influence on the life of the county and has many outstanding achievements to its credit.

Outstanding Achievements

"Two of its most interesting achievements have been the public health nursing unit and the public welfare department. After a long campaign, the former finally was achieved in 1927, and the unit has been of untold value in protecting the good health of the county residents. Then in 1926, largely through the efforts of the club, the public welfare department was established and a competent welfare worker engaged.

"Through the efforts of the Woman's Club, many warm garments have been collected and distributed. (Continued on Page Eight)

Again, as in past years, the final night's entertainment will be furnished by a fashion revue, regarded by many as the highlight of the three-day carnival. High school students will serve as models for the apparel which will be brought from several of Norfolk's leading clothing stores.

Door prizes and other awards have been donated by merchants of Virginia Beach and Norfolk, and colorful booths will display attractive merchandise for sale in this area. Candy and refreshments will be offered for sale, and the program has been so arranged as to maintain continued activity from the time the doors are opened each night until late 'night' forces a conclusion to the party.

Funds Used By School

This is the only entertainment sponsored during the year by the Oceana PTA and all funds realized from the bazaar are used by that group for needed improvements to the school building and on the grounds. Plans are made for the project long in advance of the announced dates, and the cooperation and support of the entire community is assured because of the success of past bazaars.

CHAPTER PLANS FOR ROLL CALL

County Unit To Meet On Monday At Court House; State Session Thursday.

In preparation for the annual Red Cross Roll Call, to be staged between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving, representatives of the Virginia Chapters will meet in Richmond in an all-day session next Thursday to hear reports on the accomplishments of the year and to formulate final plans for this fall's campaign. Governor George C. Peery and Douglas Greaser, national director of public information for the Red Cross, will be the featured speakers.

On Monday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, the board of directors of the Princess Anne Chapter will meet at the Court House to complete plans for the local campaign. Edward H. Herbert, recently re-elected as chairman for the new year, will preside over the meeting, which is expected to appoint delegates to the Richmond session later in the week.

$228 Spent For Relief Work

In preparation for the meeting, Mr. Herbert stated that a total of $228.87 had been spent this year for relief work in the county. Of this amount, $80.85 recently was authorized for the purchase of shoes for underprivileged school children and the project placed in the hands of Mrs. Pay Bailey, director of public welfare. Much of the other funds expended went for the purchase of emergency medicines, directed by Miss Lillian Ashley, public health nurse, or by Mrs. T. L. Riberidge, who is in charge of the chapter's home service committee.

With the hope of lowering the infant mortality rate throughout the county, Mr. Herbert added, considerable attention had been given to the providing of layettes for needy expectant mothers. These layettes have been entrusted to the care of the district chairmen, from whom they may be secured as needed.

Flood Relief Funds

In addition to the money spent locally, the sum of $1,766.39 was raised during the spring for flood relief. All of this money was sent to the national headquarters in Washington for distribution throughout the flooded areas of the middle west.

NEW MINISTERS ASSIGNED HERE BY M. E. BISHOP

Bland, Harrell and Bright Transferred To Other Charges By Conference.

WILLIAMS WILL REMAIN

Farwell Sermons To Be Preached On Sunday.

Three of Princess Anne County's four Methodist ministers will bid farewell to their congregations on Sunday, leaving during the following week to take up their pastoral duties in other cities and towns in Virginia. Those affected by Bishop Arthur J. Moore's orders are the Rev. B. B. Bland, the Rev. H. A. Harrell and the Rev. C. J. Bright. The Rev. R. I. Williams, now completing his third year as pastor of the Salem and Haygood Churches, will continue for another year in his present charge.

Mr. Harrell, who came to the county in 1922, served as pastor of the South Princess Anne Circuit, which includes the Charity, Knotts Island, Beech Grove and Bethel Churches. His new duties will take him to the Ocean View Church, where he will succeed the Rev. A. Wark Culp, who has been sent to the Memorial Church, in Richmond.

Justice Jacobus Harrell

The Rev. H. R. Justice, appointed to succeed Mr. Harrell on the southern circuit of the county, has served the congregations at Central and Fox Hill Churches for several years. By a conference, he, in turn, will be succeeded by another Princess Anne minister, the Rev. C. J. Bright, now rounding out his fourth year at the Tabernacle and Ninian Churches.

A graduate of Randolph-Macon College, in Ashland, Mr. Bright came to this community from the Whitwell Methodist Church, near Danville. His services to the Princess Anne Circuit were reported this week to have been most satisfactory, and considerable regret has been expressed over his imminent departure. He will preach his farewell sermon on Sunday.

Mr. Bright will be succeeded by the Rev. C. L. Ledford, according to the Bishop's announcement. He will come here from the East Pit. (Continued on Page Eight)

OCEANA-CRADOCK GAME SATURDAY

Inter-County Clash Will Be Called At 2:30; Rooters To Accompany Cavaliers.

Given a renewed burst of confidence by last Friday's victory over the Portlick eleven by the score of 38 to 0, the Oceana football team will journey to Cradock on Saturday afternoon to meet the leaders in the Norfolk County football race.

The game was moved up to Saturday, with play scheduled to begin at 2:30 o'clock, when it was learned that a larger crowd of spectators could be anticipated. Because of the improved showing of the locals over the past several years, many rooters are planning to accompany the Oceana Cavaliers to Cradock, hopeful that another substantial victory can be recorded.

Cradock Whips Churchland

Last Friday afternoon, when Oceana was piling up its wide lead over Portlick behind the capable work of Dekker and Bulman, quarterback and halfback, Cradock was turning in an equally creditable performance by whipping the Churchland eleven 13-0. Several fumbles by the Cradock players might have proved costly, but Churchland was unable to take advantage of the breaks and failed to score.

In its first two starts of the season, Oceana held Suffolk to a scoreless tie and was defeated by South Norfolk two weeks ago. Each Upon reported yesterday that his squad was in good condition for tomorrow's encounter.

National Potato and Truck Goals Are Sought by County Growers; Farm Bureau Chapter Organized

J. B. Senter Elected President Of Countywide Cooperative Association.

PROSPERITY OF FARMER HELD AMBITION OF UNIT

Full Stoppage Of WPA Activity During Harvest Season Urged On Supervisors.

Organization of the Princess Anne Farm Bureau as an integrated unit of the State and National agencies was approved by county growers at a meeting held in the Court House School building last Monday night. J. B. Senter, of Lynnhaven District, was elected president of the organization and J. B. Dudley, of Pungo District, was named vice-president.

The board of directors, which will serve until the close of this year, was chosen as follows: William F. Hudgins and B. W. Shelton, Jr., Kempville District; J. B. Senter and R. W. Bonney, Lynnhaven; L. H. Hill and M. B. Flanagan, Seaboard; L. A. Williams and J. B. Dudley, Pungo; and J. N. Baxter and J. S. Ives, Blackwater. John B. Dey, of Lynnhaven, was elected to the board from the county at large.

Bureau Program Outlined

H. W. Olin, who served as temporary chairman stated that 165 applications for membership had been received to date and that many more farmers had expressed interest in the organization, which has as its major aim the development of a general prosperity for rural America through the promotion of agricultural measures designed to produce such prosperity. BEACH RESIDENT DIES IN NORFOLK

John R. Doles, Former U. S. Deputy Marshal, Succumbs At Age Of 74.

John Robert Doles, aged 74, a resident of Virginia Beach for the past six years, succumbed in a Norfolk hospital Tuesday afternoon after a illness of about six months. Funeral services were conducted yesterday afternoon at two o'clock from the funeral home of E. Lee Cox and Brother, with interment in the family plot in Elmwood Cemetery.

The son of Dr. Robert Maury Doles and Elizabeth Heffington Doles, Mr. Doles is survived by two stepdaughters, Mrs. B. G. Rorer, of Virginia Beach, with whom he made his home, and Mrs. A. J. Daugherty, of Richmond; one stepson, Ernest F. Stone, of Norfolk; two brothers, Robert M. Doles, of Zuni, and Shelly L. Doles, of Norfolk, and several nieces and nephews.

Graduate Of V. M. I.

A native of Southampton County, Mr. Doles was graduated from the Virginia Military Institute, Class of 1881, when he was 18 years of age. Standing second in the group of 34 graduates, he was at that time the youngest man to receive a diploma from the famous "West Point of the South."

It was recalled here yesterday that he received the Jackson Hope medal for scholarship and his diploma from President Chester A. Arthur in special services held in New York City. President Arthur had but lately succeeded to the office of Chief Magistrate upon the assassination of his predecessor, President James A. Garfield, and the occasion for his presence at the graduation exercises was his participation in ceremonies attendant upon the returning of a flag captured by a V. M. I. cadet regiment at the battle of Newmarket twenty years (Continued on Page Five)

Annual Plant Sale Saturday Morning

The fall plant sale, sponsored annually in Virginia Beach by the Princess Anne Garden Club, will be held on Seventeenth Street, near the Roland Court, on Saturday morning beginning at nine o'clock.

Mrs. Edward Hardy, chairman of the plant sale committee, will be assisted by Miss Margaret Braten, Miss Julia de Witt, Mrs. Roland Thorpe and Mrs. Floyd Dornire.

HOSPITAL DRIVE ENDS TOMORROW

Sum Of $541 Raised In Virginia Beach; No Reports Received From County.

The sum of $541.15 has been raised to date in Virginia Beach toward the county's $3,000 goal for the Tidewater Hospital, Mrs. B. B. Potest, chairman of the local campaign, stated yesterday. All sections of the town were canvassed thoroughly, she reported, and the sum collected represents almost all that is collectible here.

No further reports, either from the balance of the county or from the area generally, were received this week, although it is understood that the $3,000 goal is far from realization. Since that amount was established as the minimum needed to open the hospital for tuberculosis sufferers, located on the Virginia Beach Boulevard at Thalia Creek, the date of the hospital's opening is most uncertain.

Campaign Closes Saturday

The campaign for funds will close on Saturday, Mrs. R. G. Barr, general chairman for the county, said. Any contributions available after that date may be paid directly to C. L. Fisher, cashier of the Virginia Beach Branch of the National Bank of Commerce, or to Rufus Parks, in Kempville District. Mrs. Barr also requested that the importance of reaching the established goal be stressed through the columns of the News, including beds and laboratory equipment, has been established at $20,000, and this sum, plus the amount necessary to insure maintenance of the hospital for a period of eight months, when the State is expected to provide the operating expenses, makes necessary the collection of the $35,000 now being sought.

The State Commissioner of Health has given assurance to the hospital committee that he will ask for an increase in State subsidy for sanatoria at the convening of the next legislature early next year, but such funds will not be available until the opening of the new fiscal year on July 1. In exchange for State support, ten of the fifty beds will be set aside for State patients.

Other than these ten beds, the counties and cities of this area will share as follows: Norfolk City, 10 beds, Suffolk and Portsmouth 4, Princess Anne, Norfolk, Southampton, Isle of Wight and Nansemond Counties, 4, and South Norfolk 2. Thirty-four of the beds will be for the use of white patients and 16 for colored tubercular patients.

Concluding Sermon In Series Sunday

The concluding sermon in the series preached on "The Ministry and Message of the Holy Spirit" at the London Bridge Baptist Church by the Rev. W. J. Meade will be delivered on Sunday morning. The topic of the sermon has been announced as "The Power of the Spirit."

Outside Agencies Score For Tendency To Force Increased Production.

STATEMENT PRESENTED TO SENATE COMMITTEE

Would Include Commodities In Proposed Agricultural Adjustment Act.

Scoring "forces outside of the regular farm group, such as produce dealers, fertilizer companies and others through trades and partnership agreements" for the "critical situation which the potato and truck crop growers face" as a consequence of over-production, representatives of the Farm Bureaus of Princess Anne, Norfolk, Accomac, Northampton, Westmoreland, Northumberland and Lancaster Counties this week petitioned the Agricultural Committee of the United States Senate for the establishment of quotas for these farm products and a program for the maintenance of parity prices.

The committee met in Winston-Salem, N. C. early this week and heard testimony from many important farm groups in the southeastern states. Porter Hardy, Jr., of Norfolk County, represented the local groups at the hearing. Dr. H. H. Zimmerly, director of the Truck Experiment Station, headed the committee charged with the drafting of a suitable report.

Statement To Committee

The statement, in part, was as follows:

"The growers of early potatoes and truck crops in Virginia are presenting this appeal for your consideration because of a drastic need for the maintenance of parity prices of potatoes and truck crops. The growers of these commodities in Virginia, and we believe in most of the large producing areas in the South, have not only failed to obtain parity prices but in general have failed to obtain production costs during the past five years. The result is that most of the growers are deeply in debt, the farms are heavily mortgaged, and the Farm Credit Administration at Washington and the banking interests consider the industry unsound.

"We believe the critical situation which the potato and truck crop growers face has been largely due to production beyond the requirements of the consumer. The excess production has been stimulated largely by forces outside the regular farm group, such as produce dealers, fertilizer companies, supply companies and others through trades and partnership arrangements. Since the supplies which they furnish cover only a part of the production cost, they are able to make a profit at a supply level and a market level which causes the growers actually to lose money.

Tendency To Expansion

"The tendency of the group is toward acreage expansion because the larger the acreage the more supplies they sell at a profit, even though the price of the commodity is below production cost when rent of land, labor and the use and depreciation of livestock and equipment are considered. Therefore, drastic acreage control and production quotas are needed to prevent over-production in these areas where potatoes and truck crops are largely financed by speculative credit. In addition, regulation of this type of credit is imperative if the industry is to exist on a sound financial basis.

Better Hunting And Fishing In Virginia Held Sole Aim Of Organization.

Letters have been received from individual sportsmen and sportsmen's organizations in every section of Virginia accepting the invitation to attend the permanent organization meeting of the Virginia Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs which will be held in Lynchburg next Wednesday. The federation belongs entirely to the sportsmen. It is not political. It has no paid officers. Its sole objective is to work for better hunting and fishing of all kinds in Virginia.

A number of the letters emphasized the point that only by cooperation can the desired objective of the hunters and fishermen throughout the State be attained, for, as has often been shown, the sportsmen of any one locality working alone, have been able to accomplish almost nothing.

The clubs and individual sportsmen feel it decidedly to their interest, they declare, to form a federation. Each club will then have behind it the full weight and strength of all the organized hunters and fishermen in Virginia—an influence heretofore unprecedented in this state.

Another important objective of the federation, its officers have pointed out, would give the farmers and other land-owners the recognition to which they are entitled and put them on an equal footing with all others in the working out of game and fish programs.

The Lynchburg meeting will be held at the Virginia Hotel. It will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and from available advance information it bids fair to be the largest gathering of hunters and fishermen ever assembled in Virginia.

Predictions made early in the spring by prominent contractors and distributors of building supplies that this amount would be surpassed in the opening months of the new year were borne out by the reported totals, and the further prediction that not less than $1,000,000.00 would be spent locally in the twelve-month period may become a reality. Real estate agents believe that the building boom will be continued right through the winter, and it was pointed out, even though actual construction of homes and businesses should show some decreases from expectations, the development of the sewage disposal plant at a cost of $168,000.00 is almost certain to insure the desired objective.

Similar gains have been reported from all sections of the Norfolk area, which includes the cities of Norfolk and Portsmouth, Virginia Beach, Norfolk and Princess Anne Counties. The total amount spent to-date on construction activity stands at $3,210,853.00, or an increase of $1,404,796.00 over the corresponding period of 1936. Figures for Princess Anne County were not included in the survey released this week.

STORY WITHOUT WORDS

Is the water hot or cold—and is the man mad? Three guesses, and you're right. The water is cold, and the man's mad. He's all set for a soothing, cleansing hot shower, and there's no hot water— not a drop. And the day is ruined.

Such major-household troubles are one of the reasons why modern homes are depending more and more upon electric hot water service. The modern Hotpoint electric water heater insures an unending supply of hot water for the morning shower, as well as for all other hot water needs of the home. It is entirely automatic, requiring no attention after it is installed, and it's economical to operate. It's a sure cure for the "cold water blues."

TRAFFIC SIGNALS AID TO DRIVING

In the intersection, he shall clear the intersection.

As bad almost as those who actually run a red light, Mr. Rhodes thinks, are those drivers who violate the meaning of the amber light, either at the beginning or the end of the green period. Certainly not good driving manners, it is a frequent cause of accidents.

MISLABELED RYE SOLD AS ABRUZZI

Use Of Certified Seed Recommended To Farmers By State Agronomist.

W. H. Byrne, Virginia agricultural extension agronomist, warns farmers that many varieties of rye are still sold as Abruzzi, and asks the aid of growers in stamping out this deception. Abruzzi rye is winter hardy in Virginia and grows upright, is about two weeks earlier than other rye, and makes good pasture, especially for sheep and calves. Many varieties of rye sometimes mislabeled as Abruzzi are winter hardy but do not have this habit of growth.

Conditions have improved in recent years. Fewer dealers are offering mislabeled rye under the name of Abruzzi. The federal bureau of plant industry has been active in enforcing the truthful labeling provisions of the federal seed act which applies to all interstate shipments.

Mislabeled Common
The seed of the different rye varieties are similar in appearance, therefore it is impossible to distinguish between varieties by examining the threshed grain, Mr. Byrne says. On seed from outside the state, complete labeling is a safeguard. Seed offered at abnormally low prices is open to suspicion. It is wise to inquire as to origin and to keep records showing representations made by the seller.

When misbranding is suspected it should be called to the attention of the State Department of Agriculture at Richmond, which enforces the state seed law. If the shipment appears to have violated the misbranding prohibitions of the Federal seed act, it will be able to report the case to the U. S. Department of Agriculture for prosecution.

To be sure you are getting true Abruzzi, advises Mr. Byrne, use certified seed.

Book Is Published On Checker Match

Authentic records of the playing which featured the world's champion checker matches, held last December at the Miramar Inn in South Palm Beach, recently were published in book form, for checker enthusiasts and the publication dedicated to J. Stanley Smith, owner of the Miramar, and three other officials of the championship tourney. The play was held under the auspices of the American Checker Association.

In the forward to the play-by-play records, mention is made of the valuable services contributed by Mr. Smith and his associates—Judge C. D. Blackwell, of West Palm Beach; Newell W. Banks, of Detroit, Michigan, a former national champion, and Joseph Brown, of Woonsocket, Long Island—and contains an interesting writeup of the attractions and advantages found at the Miramar. Reference also is made to Mr. Smith's association with Almarie Hall at Virginia Beach during the summer season.

In the championship play, Asa A. Long, of Toledo, Ohio, defeated Edwin F. Hunt, of Nashville, Tenn., in a series of forty matches.

Oceana PTA Studies Annual Bazaar Plans

Furthering of plans for the annual bazaar, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association of the Oceana School, will be discussed at the October meeting of the association, which will be held in the school auditorium on Tuesday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. The bazaar is the major money-raising event sponsored by the Oceana School, and an attempt will be made to make this season's project the most successful ever held.

Chairmen of the committees charged with the preparation for the bazaar were named as follows: Candy, Mrs. Rackley; country store, Mrs. Brokers; program and entertainment, Mrs. Purford; booths, Mrs. Edward Woodhouse and Mrs. A. A. Booth; gifts, Mrs. Young; bingo, Mrs. Frank Potters; soft drinks, Mrs. Morrison, and ice cream, Mrs. Foskett.

Troop Installation At London Bridge

Installation of Troop 60, Boy Scouts of America, at London Bridge is scheduled for tonight, according to an announcement made yesterday by the Rev. R. W. Eastman, who will serve temporarily as Scoutmaster. Louis Lester, Boy Scout Executive of the Tidewater Council, will be in charge of the installation ceremonies, and he will be assisted by members of the Kempsville troop. G. L. Wright and "Red" Smith will act as assistant Scoutmasters. Members of the troop committee are Floyd T. Deary, George W. Lawrence and Thomas H. Helvin. The London Bridge Baptist Church is sponsoring the new troop.

Eight boys have announced their intention to join the troop, and others are expected to be recruited within the next several weeks. Charter members of the new troop are Walter B. Angell, Joseph C. Byrd, Floyd T. Deary, Jr., Charles T. Deary, Francis B. Gilmer, Alton R. Stokes, Richard L. Stronk and Thomas Helvin, Jr.

Installation of the London Bridge troop is in line with the policy recently adopted by the Princess Anne District Council to organize at least one Scout troop in each of the county's communities.

WILD DUCK CROP BEST IN YEARS

Largest Migration in Recent Times Expected To Head Southward Soon.

The largest migration of wild ducks in three years will be heading southward as duck hunting seasons open in northern states on Saturday, according to a survey by the More Game Birds Foundation.

The wetfoot increase, however, will be nothing for duck hunters to become excited about, the Foundation warns. America's wild ducks hit the bottom of the worst wildfoot depression in history in 1934 and almost any turn for the better can not be recorded as an increase.

Rainfall Helpful
Heavier rainfall in north central states which reflooded drought-stricken sections of the great mid-continental "duck factory" brought larger duck crops during the summer breeding season. Minnesota records a 50 per cent increase, mainly of teal; Nebraska and North Dakota, 25 per cent, and South Dakota 50 per cent.

Aiding the waterfowl comeback in this hard hit duck producing section have been $21,769.337 of federal funds and $1,248,851 of "Duck Stamp" fees used for waterfowl refuge establishment the past three years.

"However," the Foundation points out, "drought and agricultural reclamation of over 70,000,000 acres of wild duck areas have relegated the United States to a minor status as a duck producer. Eighty-five per cent of our waterfowl now have been driven into Canada to breed—principally in limited sections of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta."

Situation "Precarious"

In Manitoba, according to a survey by the Manitoba Fish and Game Association, of the 55 most important wildfowl breeding grounds, 21 areas produced more ducks than last year, 22 had approximately the same duck crops, while 12 had less ducks. Northern Saskatchewan and Alberta produced good crops the past summer but droughts again took toll of waterfowl in southern sections.

Despite the small increase this year the waterfowl situation is still precarious, the Foundation believes. "Not until ruined portions of the Canadian 'duck factory' are restored can we again have really good duck shooting in the United States," the Foundation declares.

EQUALLY satisfactory for table use or oven service is this new set of kitchen china decorated with a vivid fruit pattern in permanent American ceramic colors that resist high temperatures, contact with acids or constant washing. These revolutionary qualities are made possible by chemical research. Designs of fruit and stylized flowers decorate casseroles, nests of mixing bowls, cookie jars, pie plates and servers and even refrigerator sets.

Strip crops and terraces are the traffic lights of a good system of erosion control. Close-growing crops halt the rush of runoff water across sloping fields and force it to deposit its load of contra-band soil. Terraces detour the water accumulated in each terrace interval and send it winding at a safe speed along the terrace channel.

Farming on the contour means getting the maximum erosion control value out of every farming operation by making every plow furrow, every grain drill provide a miniature reservoir to increase absorption of run-off water.

Rocks don't "grow" in a field, many believe. They just stay where they are while the soil moves off and leaves them as a result of erosion.

OCEAN-TO-OCEAN TRAIL MEMORIAL TO BE UNVEILED ON SUNDAY P. M.

Arrowhead On Seventeenth Street Marks Beginning Of Daniel Boone Highway.

DEDICATION EXERCISES BEGIN AT 3 O'CLOCK

Principal Address To Be Made
By Dr. Squires; Mayor
Smith Releases Program.

The arrowhead marking the beginning of the Daniel Boone Trail, one of the most important coast-to-coast highways spanning the United States, will be unveiled with suitable ceremonies on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. Final details of the program were completed on Wednesday at a meeting of the Town Council committee held in Mayor Roy Smith's office.

Squires To Talk

Dr. W. H. T. Squires, of Norfolk, outstanding historian of the "Tidewater area" of Virginia, will make the principal address. The subject on which he will speak, "America's Typical Pioneer," will feature the life and exploits of Daniel Boone, to whose memory the transcontinental highway is dedicated. The Hon. Lindsay Warren, of North Carolina, member of the House of Representatives, also is expected to make a brief address.

Mayor To Preside

Brief tributes to C. Whittle Bams, student of Indian lore, and to John A. Lesner, one of the foremost advocates of good roads in Virginia, will be paid by Mrs. Frank Naylor, of Norfolk and Don Selwell. Mental placques incorporated in the symbolic marker are dedicated to these Virginians because of their interest in early American life and their promotion of smooth highways in all sections of the country.

Mayor Roy Smith will be in charge of the exercises and will touch briefly on the historical background of the dedication. The presentation of the marker to the Town and the explanation of the Daniel Boone legend will be handled by Major J. Hampton Rich, national director of the Boone Trail Association, sponsors of the markers along the more than 3,000 miles of highway.

Annual Oceana Bazaar to Open November 3 for Three Nights

Orchestral Concert, Dance Recital And Fashion Show Are Arranged By Committee In Charge; Record Attendance Is Forecast And Many New Features Are Promised.

The annual Oceana Bazaar, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association of the Oceana School, will be held this year on the nights of November 3, 4 and 5, Wednesday through Friday. It was announced this week by the committee in charge. A bigger, better and more entertaining program than ever has been witnessed in past years has been promised for this season's event, which regularly attracts residents from all sections of the county.

On the opening night, the featured attraction will be a prominent orchestra. So successful was the concert given last year by the Junior Symphony Orchestra of Norfolk, under the direction of Felix Hardin, according to the committee, that a similar entertainment was approved for this season's opening night.

Dance Program

Thursday night's feature will be presented by the Thomas School of Dancing. All types of modern dancing will be presented on the program, including the "Big Apple," latest craze in the dancing world. Many of the numbers on this evening's program will feature county students enrolled in the school.

Again, as in past years, the final night's entertainment will be furnished by a fashion revue, regarded by many as the highlight of the three-day carnival. High school students will serve as models for the apparel which will be brought from several of Norfolk's leading clothing stores.

Door prizes and other awards have been donated by merchants of Virginia Beach and Norfolk, and colorful booths will display attractive merchandise for sale in this area. Candy and refreshments will be offered for sale, and the program has been so arranged as to maintain continued activity from the time the doors are opened each night until late night forces a conclusion to the party.

Funds Used By School

This is the only entertainment sponsored during the year by the Oceana PTA and all funds realized from the bazaar are used by that group for needed improvements to the school building and on the grounds. Plans are made for the project long in advance of the announced dates, and the cooperation and support of the entire community is assured because of the success of past bazaars.

CLUB'S BIRTHDAY CHAPTER PLANS PARTY TUESDAY FOR ROLL CALL

Achievements Of Woman's Organization During Twelve Years Are Recalled.

The Woman's Club of Princess Anne County will celebrate its twelfth birthday with a luncheon to be held at the Pine Tree Inn, on Virginia Beach Boulevard, next Tuesday at one o'clock. The luncheon will be open to every woman in the county, and reservations made by Thursday at her home on One Hundred and Fifteenth Street, Virginia Beach.

Reviewing the career and activities of the Woman's Club since its inception, Mrs. Edward H. Herbert, who is serving her third year as president, said:

Organized In 1925

"The Woman's Club of Princess Anne County was organized in the summer of 1925, when a local organization of Kempsville District women resolved to reorganize their unit into a county-wide club. In October of that year, a group of 35 women representing the various districts of the county met at the Virginia Truck Experiment Station and formed the present organization. So widespread was the interest in the club and so eagerly did the women of Princess Anne grasp the opportunity for a common meeting ground that in a short time the rolls included 300 members.

"Mrs. A. E. Ewell was the first president. She was followed by Mrs. R. B. Taylor, Mrs. F. W. Fitzgerald, Mrs. H. O. Brown and Mrs. Webster Hiteahaw. Guided by these women, whose names have long been synonymous with county service, the club always has exerted a broad cultural and benevolent influence on the life of the county and has many outstanding achievements to its credit.

Outstanding Achievements

"Two of its most interesting achievements have been the public health nursing unit and the public welfare department. After a long campaign, the former finally was achieved in 1927, and the unit has been of untold value in promoting the good health of the county residents. Then in 1936, largely through the efforts of the club, the public welfare department was established and a competent welfare worker engaged.

"Through the efforts of the Woman's Club, many warm garments have been collected and distributed. (Continued on Page Eight)

County Unit To Meet On Monday At Court House; State Session Thursday.

In preparation for the annual Red Cross Roll Call, to be staged between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving, representatives of the Virginia Chapters will meet in Richmond on an all-day session next Thursday to hear reports on the accomplishments of the organization during the past year and to formulate final plans for this fall's campaign. Governor George C. Peery and Douglas Griesemer, national director of public information for the Red Cross will be the featured speakers.

On Monday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, the board of directors of the Princess Anne Chapter will meet at the Court House to complete plans for the local campaign. Edward H. Herbert, recently re-elected as chairman for the new year, will preside over the meeting, which is expected to appoint delegates to the Richmond session later in the week.

$228 Spent For Relief Work

In preparation for the meeting, Mr. Herbert stated that a total of $228.87 had been spent this year for relief work in the county. Of this amount, $60.88 recently was authorized for the purchase of shoes for underprivileged school children and the project planned in the hands of Mrs. Fay Bailey, director of public welfare. Much of the other funds expended went for the purchase of emergency medicines, directed by Miss Lillian Ashley, public health nurse, or by Mrs. T. L. Etheridge, who is in charge of the chapter's home service committee.

With the hope of lowering the infant mortality rate throughout the county, Mr. Herbert added, considerable attention had been given to the providing of layettes for needy expectant mothers. These layettes have been entrusted to the care of the district chairmen, from whom they may be secured as needed.

Flood Relief Funds

In addition to the money spent locally, the sum of $1,766.39 was raised during the spring for flood relief. All of this money was sent to the national headquarters in Washington for distribution throughout the flooded areas of the middle west.

At the regional conference next Thursday, summaries of the work accomplished by the individual chapters will be presented. (Continued on Page Eight)

Farewell Sermons To Be Preached On Sunday.

Three of Princess Anne County's four Methodist ministers will bid farewell to their congregations on Sunday, leaving during the following week to take up their pastoral duties in other cities and towns in Virginia. Those affected by Bishop Arthur J. Moore's orders are the Rev. B. B. Bland, the Rev. H. A. Harrell and the Rev. C. J. Bright. The Rev. R. I. Williams, now completing his third year as pastor of the Salem and Haygood Churches, will continue for another year in his present charge.

Mr. Harrell, who came to the county in 1932, served as pastor of the South Princess Anne Circuit, which includes the Charity, Knotts Island, Beech Grove and Bethel Churches. His new duties will take him to the Ocean View Church, where he will succeed the Rev. A. Wark Cundy, who has been sent to the Memorial Church, in Richmond.

Justus Jucoski Harrell

The Rev. H. R. Justus, appointed to succeed Mr. Harrell on the southern circuit of the county, has served the congregations at Central and Fox Hill Churches for several years. By a coincidence, he, in turn, will be succeeded by another Princess Anne minister, the Rev. C. J. Bright, now rounding out his fourth year at the Tabernacle and Ninnah Churches.

A graduate of Randolph-Macon College, in Ashland, Mr. Bright came to this community from the Whitwell Methodist Church, near Danville. His services to the Princess Anne Circuit were reported this week to have been most satisfactory, and considerable regret has been expressed over his imminent departure. He will preach his farewell sermon on Sunday.

Mr. Bright will be succeeded by the Rev. C. L. Ledford, according to the Bishop's announcement. He will come here from the East Pit. (Continued on Page Eight)

OCEANA-CRADOCK GAME SATURDAY

Inter-County Clash Will Be Called At 2:30; Rooters To Accompany Cavaliers.

Given a renewed burst of confidence by last Friday's victory over the Portlick eleven by the score of 38 to 0, the Oceana football team will journey to Cradock on Saturday afternoon to meet the leaders in the Norfolk County football race.

The game was moved up to Saturday, with play scheduled to begin at 2:30 o'clock, when it was learned that a larger crowd of spectators could be anticipated. Because of the improved showing of the locals over the past several years, many rooters are planning to accompany the Oceana Cavaliers to Cradock, hopeful that another substantial victory can be recorded.

Cradock Whips Churchland

Last Friday afternoon, when Oceana was piling up its wide lead over Portlick behind the capable work of Dekker and Bulman, quarterback and halfback, Cradock was turning in an equally creditable performance by whipping the Churchland eleven 13-0. Several fumbles by the Cradock players might have proved costly, but Churchland was unable to take advantage of the breaks and failed to score.

In its first two starts of the season, Oceana held Suffolk to a scoreless tie and was defeated by South Norfolk two weeks ago. Each Upon reported yesterday that his squad was in good condition for tomorrow's encounter. (Continued on Page Five)

National Potato and Truck Goals Are Sought by County Growers; Farm Bureau Chapter Organized

J. B. Senter Elected President Of Countywide Cooperative Association.

PROSPERITY OF FARMER HELD AMBITION OF UNITY

Full Stoppage Of WPA Activity
During Harvest Season
Urged On Supervisors.

Organization of the Princess Anne Farm Bureau as an integrated unit of the State and National agencies was approved by county growers at a meeting held in the Court House School building last Monday night. J. B. Senter, of Lynnhaven District, was elected president of the organization and J. B. Dudley, of Pungo District, was named vice-president.

The board of directors, which will serve until the close of this year, was chosen as follows: William F. Hudgins and E. W. Shelton, Jr., Kempsville District; J. B. Senter and R. W. Bonney, Lynnhaven; L. H. Hill and M. B. Flanagan, Seaboard; L. A. Williams and J. B. Dudley, Pungo; and J. N. Baxter and J. S. Ives, Blackwater. John B. Day, of Lynnhaven, was elected to the board from the county at large.

Bureau Program Outlined

H. W. Omlin, who served as temporary chairman, stated that 165 applications for membership had been received to date and that many more farmers had expressed interest in the organization, which has as its major aim the development of a general prosperity for rural America through the promulgation of agricultural measures designed to produce such prosperity. Annual Plant Sale Saturday Morning

The fall plant sale, sponsored annually in Virginia Beach by the Princess Anne Garden Club, will be held on Seventeenth Street, near the Roland Court, on Saturday morning beginning at nine o'clock.

Mrs. Edward Hardy, chairman of the plant sale committee, will be assisted by Miss Margaret Braten, Miss Julia de W. M., Mrs. Roland Thorp and Mrs. Floyd Dornire.

HOSPITAL DRIVE ENDS TOMORROW

Sum Of $541.15 Raised In Virginia Beach; No Reports Received From County.

The sum of $541.15 has been raised to date in Virginia Beach toward the county's $3,000 goal for the Tidewater Hospital, Mrs. S. B. Poter, chairman of the local campaign, stated yesterday. All sections of the town were canvassed thoroughly, she reported, and the sum collected represents almost all that is collectible here.

No further reports, either from the balance of the county or from the area generally, were received this week, although it is understood that the $35,000 goal is far from realization. Since that amount was established as the minimum needed to open the hospital for tuberculosis sufferers, located on the Virginia Beach Boulevard at Thalia Creek, the date of the hospital's opening is most uncertain.

Campaign Closes Saturday

The campaign for funds will close on Saturday, Mrs. R. G. Barr, general chairman for the county, said. Any contributions available after that date may be paid directly to C. L. Fisher, cashier of the Virginia Beach Branch of the National Bank of Commerce, or to Rufus Parks, in Kempsville District. Mrs. Barr also requested that the importance of reaching the established goal be stressed through the columns of the News.

The cost of furnishing the hospital, including beds and laboratory equipment, has been established at $20,000, and this sum, plus the amount necessary to insure maintenance of the hospital for a period of eight months, when the State is expected to provide the operating expenses, makes necessary the collection of the $35,000 now being sought.

The State Commissioner of Health has given assurance to the hospital committee that he will ask for an increase in State subsidy for sanatoria in the convening of the next legislature early next year, but such funds will not be available until the opening of the new fiscal year on July 1. In exchange for State support, ten of the fifty beds will be set aside for State patients.

Concluding Sermon In Series Sunday

The concluding sermon in the series preached on "The Ministry and Message of the Holy Spirit" at the London Bridge Baptist Church by the Rev. W. J. Meade will be delivered on Sunday morning. The topic of the sermon has been announced as "The Power of the Spirit."

Outside Agencies Sought For Tendency To Force Increased Production.

Would Include Commodities
In Proposed Agricultural Adjustment Act.

Scoring "forces outside of the regular farm group, such as produce dealers, fertilizer companies and others through trades and partnership agreements" for the "critical situation which the potato and truck crop growers face" as a consequence of over-production, representatives of the Farm Bureau of Princess Anne, Norfolk, Accomac, Northampton, Nansemond, Northumberland and Lancaster Counties this week petitioned the Agricultural Committee of the United States Senate for the establishment of quotas for these farm products and a program for the maintenance of parity prices.

The committee met in Winston-Salem, N. C. early this week and heard testimony from many important farm groups in the southeastern states. Porter Hardy, Jr., of Norfolk County, represented the local growers at the hearing. Dr. H. H. Zimmerly, director of the Truck Experiment Station, headed the committee charged with the drafting of a suitable report.

Statement To Committee

The statement, in part, was as follows: "The growers of early potatoes and truck crops in Virginia are presenting this appeal for your consideration because of a drastic need for the maintenance of parity prices of potatoes and truck crops. The growers of these commodities in Virginia, and we believe in most of the large producing areas in the South, have not only failed to obtain parity prices but in general have failed to obtain production costs during the past five years. The result is that most of the growers are deeply in debt, the farms are heavily mortgaged, and the Farm Credit Administration at Washington and the banking interests consider the industry unsound."

"We believe the critical situation which the potato and truck crop growers face has been largely due to production beyond the requirements of the consumer. The excess production has been stimulated largely by forces outside the regular farm group, such as produce dealers, fertilizer companies, supply companies and others through trades and partnership arrangements. Since the supplies which they furnish cover only a part of the production cost, they are able to make a profit at a supply level and a market level which causes the growers actually to lose money."

Tendency To Expansion

"The tendency of the group is toward acreage expansion because the larger the acreage the more supplies they sell at a profit, even though the price of the commodity is below production cost when rent of land, labor and the use and depreciation of livestock and equipment are considered. Therefore, drastic acreage control and production quotas are needed to prevent over-production in those areas where potatoes and truck crops are largely financed by speculative credit. In addition, regulation of this type of credit is imperative if the industry is to exist on a sound financial basis."

"Statistics supplied by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics clearly show that during the period of 1928 to 1936 potato prices dropped to a low level when the total production has been much above 300,000,000 bushels or the acreage much above 3,000,000."

NOTES ON THE MILK SUPPLY

Difficult as it is for the average individual to believe, the production and distribution of milk and milk products constitute a major industry in these United States that is bigger than steel or automobiles. Figures gleaned from a recent report of the Milk Industry Foundation show that more than 47,000,000 quarts—a mere matter of 130,000,000 quarts each day of the year—are produced annually by American farmers and dairymen, the entire industry employing some 4,000,000 people and touching the dietary habits of each and every man, woman and child in the country.

Three-fourths of the farms of America contribute to this staggering total, the income from which amounts to nearly one-fifth of the agricultural income of the nation. An increase of $432,000,000 in the size of dairy farmers' milk checks from 1932 to 1936 is indicative of the present prosperity of the industry, which provides the largest single source of cash to the American farmer.

Thus, to express the amount of milk produced annually in more tangible form, a canal across the continent 3,000 miles in length, 40 feet wide and 2½ feet deep would be filled to the very brim by one year's supply. Or, if that suggests too much territory, imagine a lake 100 miles long, 1,000 feet wide and three feet deep. Either way it would be a "heap" of milk, worth a fortune to its owners!

Further statistics reveal that of this total only about 14 of the 47 billion quarts of milk are consumed in fluid form and as cream in American towns and cities. Butter takes the equivalent of 15 billion quarts of milk a year; the cheese manufacturers need 2½ billions more; canned milk manufacturers use about 2 billion quarts; ice cream makers about another billion, and 500 million additional quarts go into a variety of milk by-products. The remaining 12 billion quarts are for "on the premises" consumption, used by the farm families for their daily needs and for the feeding of stock.

In the event that more statistics are wanted, the per capita consumption of milk and dairy products is estimated to be as follows: milk, including cream, 160 quarts; butter, 18 pounds; cheese, 6 pounds; ice cream, one and two-thirds gallons, and canned milk, 16 pounds.

With the exception of the Scandinavian countries, no other nation consumes such individual amounts of milk and dairy products, and no other country can compete with the stringent sanitary provisions now generally thrown about the production of dairy products in the United States.

It also is interesting to know that Americans lead the world in ice cream consumption and that the per capita consumption of the frozen dessert has quadrupled in the past thirty years. Further, although we are still far from a nation of ranking cheese eaters, the American people are consuming twice as much as was the case two decades ago.

As the widespread use of milk and dairy products grows, the natural result is a higher type of prosperity for the dairyman and individual farmer who sells his daily output. Prices have continued to rise in recent years, old inequities and unfair practices slowly are being stamped out, and superior cattle are being developed in all parts of rural America. The tale of such progress reveals a story of steady progression, of intelligent, unified action to make both production and distribution methods superior to those of the past, and, finally, of proper returns to the source of the ever-growing supply.

SHORTSIGHTED ACTION

Heartily as we applaud the development of a local chapter of the Farm Bureau and wish it godspeed in its efforts to achieve a substantial prosperity for the agricultural areas of the country, we cannot do otherwise than regret the chapter's first official action in asking for the cessation of all WPA projects in the county for the next several months.

If this recommendation is taken literally and is brought to the attention of the Works Progress Administration headquarters in Richmond, it may mean an undesired and undesirable delay on the construction of the new training school for Negro students. It may mean the elimination of the sewing rooms and the vast good that has been achieved in the manufacture of garments for persons unable otherwise to clothe themselves. It may mean the unwarranted halting of the East Ocean View water system project. It may halt all activity on the development of farm-to-market roads. It may eliminate all cooperation between the WPA and the county schools in the beautification and allied projects. It may, in brief, convey to the general headquarters the belief that the residents of this county are not sufficiently concerned with the needy citizens to warrant outside assistance.

We do not believe that such was intended even by the sponsors of the motion. We understand and appreciate their desire to have every possible farm laborer in the fields during the rush harvesting season. We know from first hand experience that relief jobs often have been regarded as more attractive than field work, even by competent laborers, but, we assert, the social welfare organization recently established in the county is competent to deal with this aspect of the problem without involving outside sources and without penalizing necessary county projects every bit as meritorious as the prompt garnering of autumn crops.

It was such a shortsighted policy that stopped the vast good being accomplished in the county on the drainage and mosquito programs. Many farmers have expressed themselves as opposed to that unfortunate action, and, as a consequence, we fail to understand the reason that prompted this latest petition to the Board of Supervisors.

The farmer, the factory worker and men in all types of industry and professions must learn the lesson of Live and Let Live. By no conceivable stretch of the imagination can it be argued that all men and women now on the WPA rolls are fitted for farm labor, and the threat to their tenuous security contained in the Farm Bureau's action smacks strongly of total unfamiliarity with the existing facts.

Had a committee from the bureau taken up this problem with the welfare department, we feel certain that a satisfactory understanding would have been reached—an understanding agreeable to all concerned.

ANNUAL APPEALS NEAR

Within the next three weeks the annual Red Cross Roll Call will get under way, to be followed by the appeal of the Tuberculosis Association through its selling campaign. Both are causes deserving of the most united support, and we would recommend that persons now figuring their fall budgets set aside the few dollars that will be sought by the two agencies' workers.

Although life total sums expended by the Red Cross and the Tuberculosis Association annually run to many millions of dollars, the campaigns are so planned that the average individual is asked only for a minimum subscription of one dollar. When the vast amount of life and soul-saving that these units accomplish is considered, no reason can be advanced for failure to support the campaigns.

So, before the Red Cross drive gets under way, we would urge that the desired subscriptions be put aside and held for the solicitors. The privilege of aiding this nation's unfortunates—and none can say when disaster will strike at our doors—should be the motivation behind each contribution, and none able to assist should turn a deaf ear to the pleas soon to be made. Many worthy charitable appeals are made at this season of the year, but none can surpass in real merit and bona fide performance the records of these two national organizations.

Remember the Red Cross and the Tuberculosis Association this fall!

Poetry

WHO SHALL ESCAPE THE LORD?

If he be agile and alert
A man may baffle many a hurt,
If he be merry and aware
A man shall mock at many a snare.

But though he guard his conscience
From siege without and hot offense,
Though he be shrewd to save his skin,
How shall he quit the foe within?

For no more shall escape a man
From this assault than fly he can
By any sudden turn or twist
The bright blood pounding in his wrist.

He still shall carry on his flight,
Unrecognized, his piteous plight
Within the core, without a name,
The ineradicable flame.

AFTER THE CENTURIES

I have lived centuries to atone
For worshipping idols of gold and stone—
Now with my freedom I claim my own!

Here on the shore where the spent waves glide,
Impatiently waiting the changing tide,
I thrill to the sound of the sea bird's cry,
Raucously hoarse as their ancient cry.

In old Atlantis—Now strange fish swim
Under and over her templed rim.
I shall go back to Atlantis and Under green water as all her land;

I shall go back when the tide runs out,
Tumbled and tossed and heaved about—(Much as I left her long ago, Caught in the Cosmic undertow.)

I have lived centuries to atone
For worshipping idols of gold and stone—
Now with my freedom I claim my own!

THE KINGDOM OF THE GLORIOUS

The agony upon her face
Proclaimed that regiments of pain
With bayonet and cruel mace
Were warring with the flesh. How vain

My longing, love, and austere grief
To bring her respite or relief.

Then through the cloed and shadowy door
Came one who doeth all things well,
And the fierce conflict waded no more
Within that pallid citadel;

And as I looked a luminous grace
Banished the anguish from her face.
God's finger touched her and she slept,
Oh, blessed thought for you, for me,

Whose hearts have ached, whose eyes have wept,
That life and love might clearer see
How flesh and blood cannot inherit
The glorious Kingdom of the Spirit!

IMMORTAL

Today a yellow rose reached out
And caught me as I passed,
It seemed to smile in loveliness
The while it held me fast.

A yellow rose, my love and I
Once played a wistful part . . .
It pricked me lightly on the arm,
But pierced me to the heart.

As long as yellow roses blow
And memory cannot die,
We are immortal, you, dear one,
A yellow rose . . . and I.

PRODIGALS AND THEIR CATCH-PHRASINGS

Thomas Lomax Hunter, caustic Cavalier of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, recently turned his attention to the catch-phrases that are so much in vogue today among the more enthusiastic of the New-Deal advocates. Interesting thoughts have been the result, and, because they are so generally overlooked in current discussions of politics and economics, we take pleasure in reprinting the column for the benefit of our few readers.

Wrote Mr. Hunter in his column, "As It Appears to the Cavalier:"

Prodigals always seem pretty fellows and are popular while their money lasts. The prodigal son could have been elected to the Legislature had he run for that office while he was throwing his parties and showing the girls and boys a good time.

The prudent politician who would lead his people out of debt and keep them out of debt, and who tries to accumulate a surplus rather than a deficit, has a much more difficult time and finds it harder to get popular favor and appreciation than the gaudy politician who is throwing money around with a lavish hand.

This prodigal statesman gets and enjoys the reputation of being a generous fellow, although the money he is wasting is not his own money but a fund wrung from the taxpayers of the land. The largest-loving crowd applauds the squanderer, calls him friend of the people, and protector of the poor.

Only the wise have wit enough to see that social security cannot be built on debt. The security of the people as a whole, or of the individual, is the same in that both are menaced by a depletion of credit. A national emergency or an individual emergency can be much better met by a nation or an individual if the nation and the individual are solvent and have a bit of money put away for the rainy day.

The real friend of the people is he who protects them against waste, keeps their budget balanced, insists on paying as he goes and keeping the country unmortgaged. In the end the people, having wandered in the wilderness of waste and eaten the bitter bread of debt, will return to him. Honesty, in the end, is the best politics.

It is inevitable that what the people think they are getting for nothing they will presently discover they must pay back with compound interest, plus the amazing cost of prodigal administration. Always it is the people who are the suckers. They have an ever-enewed appetite for flattering delusions.

"Redistribution of the wealth," intrinsically dishonest as is its whole ideology, is a tempting bait. People quite generally approve of it, provided always that the redistribution ends before it reaches them. There are many who have accumulated $100,000 who think it an outrage on honest people that a man should own a million. Beneath these are many who think that the limit of wealth should be set at $50,000, and so on down. What these optimists, who don't care what happens so long as it doesn't happen to them, fail to see, is that, once this piratical policy is established, it will go on to its logical conclusion at which its limit will be my last dollar. What right have I to a dollar if my neighbor has none?

It is a part of that general philosophy which flatters the unfit and imprudent with the dangerous doctrine that they are entitled to something which belongs to some one else. One of its slogans is "this country owes every man a living." All this country owes every man is protection in the right to earn his own living. In return every man owes his country an honest and diligent attempt to do this, and he is a social parasite and undesirable citizen if he fails to do this.

Another catch-phrase of this philosophy of loot is "underprivileged people." The apostles of this doctrine are adroit in avoiding the definition of their terms. Who is underprivileged in America, and why? Certainly there are no laws in this land which bestow privileges on anybody, and none which deny them to anybody. In Britain people have privileges bestowed by law, but our Constitution makers abolished that when they set up this government.

This phrase, too, is meant only to bait indignance by intimating that the fact that others have goods and if richer, is an outrage and injustice and the further fact that it is not privileged to help itself to those goods of others is proof that it is underprivileged. Pickpockets have always subscribed to this doctrine.

Another fraudulent catch-phrase is the "forgotten man." There is no forgotten man except the man who has never done anything worth remembering. The man who has done something worth remembering will not be forgotten. Abraham Lincoln was born in a cabin and a very inferior cabin. Yet he was not an underprivileged man. Upon him was bestowed the high privileges of doing immortal things for humanity. He is a "remembered man," an unforgettable man.

Surely mere money will not keep a man from being forgotten. The unimportant rich and the unimportant poor pass together in the night and oblivion tucks them in. Privilege may mean the opportunity to sacrifice one's self for others. The underprivileged man whom political pied pipers pipe so seductively is he who insists that other people sacrifice themselves for him.

One of the slick phrases invented to effect this is "the economic royalists." Who are they? I will wager you have never heard an accurate definition of the term. Actually they are the rich who are opposed to you politically. Economic royalists cannot mean a man who owns broad acres, who was born with a silver spoon in his mouth, who lives in luxury, waited on by servants, the hem of whose garments poverty has never touched. It can't mean that. To have it mean that would be to bring embarrassment to its inventors who invented it for the purpose of having political profit out of it.

BOOKS TO OWN

ASPECTS OF SCIENCE. By Tobias Dantzig. Macmillan. 208 pp. $3.00.

(A Review by William A. Kepner, Professor of Biology, University of Virginia.)

"Aspects of Science" appears to have arisen out of a reaction on the part of the author to to theological Calvinism and to scientific determinism. It stands in sharp contrast to most scientific books. To have presented this contrast is timely because of the revolution that even the layman realizes is occurring in scientific thought.

This contrast emerges in the difference that exists between the scientists whose task is descriptive and those whose task is analytical.

On the one hand, we have scientists who recognize only material objects from planetesimal particles to protoplasm; on the other hand, there are those who consider the universe as rational. The first group claims that "mechanism works," while the second group claims that it is inadequate. Tobias Dantzig belongs to the second group. He denounces both the theological fatalism and scientific fatalism: "Whether or not fatalism be consistent as a theory, the very idea of applying it to life would be a contradiction in adjecto."

Dantzig has little patience with the biologists, for example, who define their science as the science of life, and then quickly reduce (Continued on Page Three)

THE TRAP

As Others See It

NO MERCY

Of horrors in the Sino-Japanese war there is no end. The latest to be disclosed is that neither the Japanese nor the Chinese make a practice of taking prisoners. Almost invariably each side, after a victory, announces that the defeated forces were annihilated. The uniformity of these communications has aroused the suspicion of the correspondents covering the battlefield that probably no quarter is asked or given.

Of this practice of absolute war an illuminating but horrifying explanation is offered by Pearl S. Buck, the eminent interpreter of the East to the West, in an article in the October issue of Asia entitled "Western Weapons in the Hands of the 'Redneck East'." The hands, she points out, has not had its civilisation a humanitarian development. Individual life is worthless. Consequently there have been no social programs for the control of famine and disease, which take such frightful toll of life. The Oriental's interest, she says, turned toward art and philosophy, and it is a curious fact that these tend to detach a person from life, so that where the highest development in art and philosophy is found, there is found also the greatest callousness toward human beings. Thus there is no "such thing" as fair play in war of distress, and the lives of noncombatants or prisoners are "of no more value than any other, which is to say they have no value at all." Only the group matters, and groups can be replaced.

The Chinese and Japanese, who have "nothing in them to balance the inhuman power of the weapons the West has sold them . . ." (Our feeling that a human creature has the right to live we cannot wrap up in separate packages and ship with every bomb and shell), are practicing war logically and therefore with utter ruthlessness. This accounts for the astonishment and anger of the Japanese at the reaction of Western opinion to the bombing of Chinese cities and the killing of thousands of noncombatants. To the Japanese it is unintelligible that a nation at war should be expected to refrain from use of a weapon in the way in which it can contribute most to victory.

To be sure, this disregard of human values has been emulated by some of the Western Powers bent on gaining their own ends, but Occidentals still instinctively recoil against such cruelty. Each day's news, alas, bears out Mrs. Buck's conclusion that "to have the means of death in one's hands with no fear of death in one's heart is the ultimate of terror not only for those engaged in such warfare but for everybody else."

ON GAMBLING

Every now and then the editor gets a rash of Contest-fever. At the present writing he has entries in slogan-derbies covering every type of product from soap to the electric standard of living. If he wins them all he will have a Packard Car—a new radio, a $12,000 home and some $25,000 in cash. Such a remote contingency would probably unsettle his mind. The family, however, is not worried particularly. The editor has entered contests of and on for the past fifteen years. If he can win so much as a $25 consolation prize in this year's batch he will about have his postage back. The editor goes into contests because it is one way he can satisfy his gambling instinct with little wear on pocket-book or conscience.

We're naturally a gambling people and this age is probably more gambling bent than any since the days of the Louisiana lottery. A recent magazine writer calculates the annual American gambling bill at something close to $10,000,000,000 and that includes every form from pitching pennies at a crack to sky-high limit poker. Of course we in Virginia are a highly moral people. We don't permit Roulette wheels (except at the State Fair); horse-race book-making (except at Curlew neck) and the newspapers can't publish stories about Church Bingo binges (although there seems to be no moral or legal bar to news about the latest Derby Sweepstakes winner.)

A friend of ours is of the conviction that the next five years will see a National Lottery sponsored by the government, conducted by the postoffice and approved by all agencies as a popular and efficient substitute for taxes.

We can't arouse any great moral indignation against gambling in a world in which every crop that's planted, every business that's launched, every investment that's made is an odds-on bet against the personal and natural chances of failure. But the something-for-nothing hope that's behind the gambling instinct is a great deterrent to any man's chances.

We all have it in one form or another: The hope that a rich uncle will leave us a million; the hope that they'll strike oil on the swamp forty we bought from a glib salesman; the hope that a big contract will come walking through the door some morning; the hope that the cats and dogs we bought during the stock market boom will come to life and cross par; the hope that we'll have a bumper crop when the crops of the world are failing; the hope that somehow or other the wheel of chance will hit our number; the jack-pot will fall on our nickel; or that the next hand we pick up will be a Royal flush.

Not one in a million gets anything by wind-fall, gets anywhere by hitch-hiking Lady Luck. And until we realize that all we have or ever hope to have is the natural, normal gain of our own labors we shan't be very content or efficient.—Ashland Herald Progress.

SEEKING OUR JOBS AS PART OF THE WHOLE

The business world wants the small liberal arts college to supply it with "men who are citizens first and business men second." Dr. Luther A. Harr, Pennsylvania state secretary of banking, made this remark before some 600 educators who had gathered at Muhlenberg College the other day for an academic symposium. He went on to expand his statement by saying that the business world needs men with these qualifications:

"Men with an awareness of the pressing problems of our distressed world; men with the desire to grapple with the most dangerous and difficult issues; men with (Continued on Page Three) life to terms of protoplasm. After such reduction of life to terms of matter, little room is left for the planning of mice and men. His claim is that there is a place in the conception of the universe for that plans.

Manometers, calorimeters, pistons, styll and other apparatus, with which classical scientists attempt to reduce experience to numbers, record only the quantitative aspects. No matter how refined one's apparatus be, it will not give complete information. Indeed, the data obtained through the scientists' apparatus, if depended upon entirely, may lead to unpleasant results. Nietzsche "cherished no illusions as to the eventual outcome of the perpetual counterfeiting of the world by number: 'The movement,' he wrote in his diary of 1876, 'will end in the creation of signs; it will end with waiving all pretenses to understanding, nay, in renouncing the very concept of cause and effect.'"
The Maryland mathematician, Danzig, insists that mind as well as objects to which numbers may be applied must be recognized. The impressions recorded by instruments cannot be reduced to "elemental... sensations in which the mind-element is absent... These elemental sensations... are mostly myths... Indeed, however closely one approaches the 'inner fringe' of sensory experience, one finds the mind ever-present and ever-active. For even those impressions which we habitually regard as direct impressions turn out, on closer examination, to be compounded of a number of sensations, welded into a single judgment by the co-ordinating and corrective faculty of the mind... Were it not for this co-ordinating and integrating faculty of the human mind, the world that impinges on our senses would appear to us not as a universe, but as a fleeting chaotic smudge."
Our mathematical scientist is placing mind back in the universe. He does not consider life to be an epiphenomenon, the "rattle of machinery," or a "disease" that threatens to destroy the mechanical universe. To him the universe is not only determined but rational as well. The universe is like that that a rational being would devise. While determinism pervades the universe, yet what man devises makes a difference. Man's mind has become a factor in the course of events in this rational universe. Mathematician Danzig denounces, in terms that to many may appear sacrilegious, the teachings of theologians. He refers, for example, to "the blood that was shed in vain." Despite this caustic criticism of the theologian, his book lends support to the teachings of Christ that man should seek life and not things that can be reduced to numbers.
The author will not be surprised to learn that this reviewer has already recommended "Aspects of Science" to mathematics and teachers for parallel reading in their courses. He will be surprised to learn that this reviewer will as strongly recommend "Aspects of Science" to those modern disciples of Christ who are aspiring to have men realize more life through living in love and charity with their fellow men. These disciples will discover that Danzig, too, is appealing to men to live rationally with one another so that they may share the "abundance" of this universe.

Science is popular. Not only "popular science," doctored up like patent medicine "ads" for lay consumption but scientific experiments of every sort. Man is beginning to realize that science is searching out nature's bag of wonders, and that the findings of science are materially altering his life and habitation, even his habits of thought.
An interesting catch-all of science is "The World and Man as Science Sees Them" a symposium by thirteen authors. First, Prof. Forest Ray Moulton, the editor of the work, describes the origin of our planetary system as the result of another star's approaching near enough to our sun to drag off the material from which the earth is made. The physicist-authors explain how man's knowledge of "particles and waves" is being applied to the arts of sciences, for example, radio. The chemist tell of a wizardry that, fulfilling the aspiration of the ancient alchemists, is actually transmuting the elements. Zoologist, botanist, paleontologist and physiologist describe the evolution of

WITH the arrival of fall a new vogue has been introduced to the table. It is a line of table electric. Complete meals can be cooked on the table. Among the new items is the Table Chef in which can be baked, fried, stewed, broiled or baked (tempting dishes—and it's a chasing dish too).
The bride above is starting the day right by having breakfast prepared right on the table with a set of the new electric. The Table Chef in the foreground is being used as a double-broiler to cook their coffee. Coffee is made in the new electric. Great Coffee Maker and served from it. At the far end of the table is an Electric Buffet Warming Oven to keep their toast or waffles hot and crisp.

As Others See It

enough historical background not to be deluded by the sirens of Fascism or the vigorous claims of Communism; men who realize that business is not the be-all and end-all of life, but a part of a larger whole."
All of which shapes up to quite a set of specifications: It is much like telling the colleges: "We need a smarter and more altruistic set of human beings—won't you please start grinding them out?" It is a good trick if the colleges can do it.

And yet something along the line of what Mr. Harr is asking for is very greatly needed—not only in the world of business, but in all other walks of life as well. For we are under the necessity nowadays, more than ever before, to realize that all of us as Americans are in the same boat together, that we can't drift our way out of our troubles, and that we need something more than a mere application to the problems of our own bread and butter.
Life has grown almost unimaginably complex in this modern world. The national welfare depends on the mutual adjustment of an infinite number of individual selfish desires—which boil down, in the end, to the varying ways in which each of us tries to get as many of the good things of life as he can possibly lay his hands on.
Our success, or lack of it, in that age-old human quest depends largely on the sort of country we have—its degree of prosperity, its ability to evolve policies that will keep the economic machine working, its readiness to remove disabilities from the shoulders of the unfortunate. And yet these things, in their turn, grow out of the way

It's Time to Make Apple Catsup

DON'T consider your preserves pantry completely stocked until you have filled one shelf with bottles of homemade apple catsup. This delicious sweet spicy concoction adds just the desired tang to roast ham or pork, baked chicken or duck. The tested recipe follows:

- 4 cups thinly sliced apples
- 2 cups 5% vinegar
- 2 cups brown sugar
- 1 medium sized onion, finely chopped
- 1 teaspoon red pepper
- 1 teaspoon black pepper
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon ground cloves
- 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon

Put apple sauce in preserving bottle. Add other ingredients in order named. Bring mixture to a boil and simmer gently until onions are tender and clear. Seal in sterile catsup bottles.
Yield: 3 pints.

in which we as individuals go about the business of earning a living.

We are links in a chain which describes an endless circle. No trade, business or profession can settle its problems without reference to the larger whole. It is hardly going too far to say that our national future depends on our ability to see our personal concerns in their relation to the national picture. If the colleges can help us to do this, then more power to them.—Portsmouth Star.

Halloween Carnival
The Young People's Class of the First Baptist Church will sponsor a Halloween carnival to be held in the Sunday School rooms of the church on Friday night, October 30.

Plans have been made to make this an unusually interesting affair. Refreshments will be served at various booths.

There are three types of mahogany—West Indian, tropical American and African. The first is ordinarily considered the best.

The Cook's Nook

EVERY COUNTRY HAS ITS COOKS — BETTER HAVE YOUR SHARE TODAY

Cookie, cookie or cooky—spell it anyway you like, but cherish the name for it's the appellation of one of the finest, favorite, fondest foods we have!

The Dutch gave us the word (from "koekje," meaning little cake) but every country except Iceland has its cookie—from the "Basker Lekker" of Switzerland to the "Hallowi Dulce" of Iraq. A thousand cookie recipes are claimed to be in regular use throughout the world, and a brand new cook book allots 175 pages to "cookies and more cookies."

There are four kinds of cookies: rolled, dropped, filled and ice box. There's a cookie for every purse and for every taste. Since children are the largest cookie-consumers, and space denies reproducing a thousand recipes, we are presenting recipes for you which are (1) unusual (2) especially popular with children and (3) full of fruit—wholesome and delicious as well as "yum-inspiring"! Here you are:

Cocoanut Vanities

(For the Tea Party!)

2 cups sifted cake flour.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
1/4 teaspoon salt.
1 tablespoon grated orange rind.
4 tablespoons butter.
1 cup sugar.
1 egg, unbeaten.
1/4 cup milk.
1/2 cup fresh Florida orange juice.

1 egg white, stiffly beaten.
1/2 can fresh-keeping cocoanut. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift together 3 times. Add orange rind to butter and cream thoroughly. Add sugar gradually and cream together well. Add egg and beat very thoroughly. Add flour alternately with milk and orange juice, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Turn into greased pan, 15x10 inches. Cover with thin layer of meringue made by beating sugar into egg white. Sprinkle with coco.

1 teaspoon baking powder.
1 cup thick unsweetened applesauce.
Cream shortening. Add sugar gradually, creaming continuously. Whip in egg. Mix dry ingredients thoroughly and add alternately with the applesauce. (Use fresh full-flavored applesauce made with McIntosh apples for a smooth rose-colored sauce.) Blend thoroughly and drop from spoon on buttered cookie sheet about 2 inches apart. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until nicely browned. Remove cookies with a spatula before they cool. 4 doz. cookies.

Brownies
(With a Butterscotch Flavor)
1/2 cup butter.
1/2 cup dark karo.
1/2 cup brown sugar.
1 egg.
3/4 cup flour.
3/4 cup nutmeats.
Cream the butter and sugar; add karo, well beaten egg, flour and nuts. Four into a square pan, and bake in a moderate oven 20-25 minutes.

Banana Rolled Oats Cookies
1 1/2 cups sifted flour.
1/2 teaspoon baking soda.
1/2 teaspoon salt.
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon.
1/2 cup shortening.
1 cup sugar.
1 egg, well-beaten.
3/4 cup finely diced banana (about 2 bananas).
1 1/2 cups rolled oats.
1/2 cup chopped nut meats.

Sift together the flour, salt, soda and spices. Rub shortening to a creamy consistency with the back of a spoon. Stir the sugar-a few tablespoons at a time into the shortening beating until fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Add banana, rolled oats and nut meats and mix thoroughly. Then add flour mixture to banana mixture and blend well. Drop by teaspoonful onto greased baking pans, about 1 1/2 inches apart. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for 15 minutes. Makes about four dozen cookies.

PLEA DIRECTED TO SENATE BODY

request:

"(1). That potatoes be included among the major commodities listed in the proposed Agricultural Adjustment Act.

"(2). That the national soil-depleting base acreage or national goal for potatoes shall not exceed 3,000,000 acres.

Production Bases

"(3). That this acreage be allotted by the Secretary (of Agriculture) among the states and counties on the basis of the production during the past ten years with adjustments for abnormal weather conditions and trends in acreage during that period. Allotments shall be made to farmers within the respective counties and be equitably adjusted according to past production, tillage acreage, type of soil and production facilities. Payment shall be made commensurate to that paid to growers of other major commodities for maintaining the acreage with in the allotted quota or goal. Growers normally producing less than 150 bushels of potatoes shall not be subject to acreage allotment, marketing quotas or be made special payments as co-operators.

"(4). That the Secretary be empowered to proclaim marketing quotas for potatoes at thirty days' notice whenever he determines from available statistics that the supply from certain areas or during certain periods will exceed the normal supply by more than 10 per cent.

Unfair Practice Clauses

"(5). That it shall be considered an unfair practice for any farmer to market in excess of this allotted quota and that it shall be a violation of the law to engage in an unfair agricultural practice that affects interstate commerce and that for such violation the penalty will be 50 per cent of the parity price.

"(6). That all truck crops for fresh marketing and for canning, including tomatoes, sweet potatoes, strawberries and watermelons be considered in one group as a major commodity and be given a national soil-depleting base acreage or goal based on the production during the past ten years with adjustments for weather conditions and trends in acreage and on consumer demand, and that allotments be made to states, counties and to the individual growers in each commercial producing county.

"That the national soil-depleting base acreage or national goal for truck crops for fresh market and for manufacture, including sweet potatoes, tomatoes, strawberries and watermelons but not including Irish potatoes, shall not

More Than the Comforts of Home For Mothers When They Travel

CHILDREN can be happier and more comfortable now on trains than they ever are at home for there is an increasing number of air conditioned trains, whereas there are relatively few residences, as yet, equipped with these desirable facilities for greater ease and better health.

The railways of the United States have been the greatest single factor in showing the general public the advantages of air conditioning. William E. Henderson, executive vice-president of the Air Conditioning Manufacturers' Association, recently pointed out.

"The roads, furthermore, have not been content to rest with the addition of air conditioning as the first great improvement in their equipment. To the crew of every cross-country train of one popular line, for instance, has been added a competent, attractive young woman, a registered nurse, to cater to the women passengers, look after the youngsters.

With all the responsibilities of maternal care taken over by these willing helpers, mothers can relax, enjoy to the fullest, as they ride, the same comfort provided for them at home by enterprising and thoughtful theater managers, stor proprietors and all the other business men who are air conditioning their establishments.

Next year's fashions in fun, gowns, girls, love, music, dances and Technicolor are introduced by "Walker Wagner's Vogue of 1938," the gay musical extravaganza starring Warner Baxter and Joan Bennett, which will be shown at day and Monday, October 24 and 25. Helen Vinson, Mischei Cow, Alan Mowbray and Jerome Cowan as head the supporting cast. The story casts Baxter as a he-man courtesier, while Miss Bennett plays a beautiful New York debutante who jilts a multi-millionaire on her wedding day to become a mannequin. Helen Vinson contributes complications as Baxter's extravagant, stage-struck wife. Mowbray plays the jilted millionaire.

SENTER ELECTED HEAD OF BUREAU

The Farm Bureau is now on foot. Mr. Ozlin explained, adding that desired benefits could be secured from such statewide cooperation and support of an acceptable program.

The organization and program of the Farm Bureau movement were explained in detail by G. F. Holsinger, president of the State organization. The strength of any such agency, he told the assembled farmers, lay largely in the number and type of persons who are loyal to it and in the development of a strong program that would insure local support. If agriculture is to be prosperous, he said, not only the farmer but the entire country will benefit, and he added, the policy of the bureau is to develop a cooperative organization and to see that the national, state and county policies are adapted to the interest of the public.

WFA Ban Sought

Explaining further the organization of the Farm Bureau, Mr. Holsinger said that the county chapter would be entitled to one member on the state board of directors for each 250 farmers enrolled locally. A similar representation is to be had on the committee of vegetable growers.

Considerable discussion was provoked by the motion made by H. C. N. Batten that the board of Supervisors be asked to discontinue WFA projects in the county for the next two months in order that farmers would be assured of sufficient labor in gathering their crops. The motion was seconded by John B. Day and opposed by O. S. Chaplain and J. B. Senter as an improper action. A recorded vote showed the majority of those present favorable to the motion, which was recorded as carried.

The next meeting of the bureau will be subject to the call of the president, when articles of incorporation and by-laws will be presented for adoption.

BEACH RESIDENT DIES IN NORFOLK

Following his graduation, Mr. Doles was appointed associate professor of mathematics at his alma mater. In 1883, he was graduated in law from Washington and Lee University, returning to his native county where he practiced law for ten years.

In 1898 he took up his residence in Norfolk, where he was associated with the E. A. Watkins and Brothers Lumber Company. Mr. Doles subsequently was appointed deputy United States Marshal under C. J. Smith during the administration of President Warren Harding, a position which he maintained until his retirement in 1934.

BAYNE THEATRE PREVUES

The conflict of elemental human passions, set against the background of the sea during the hazardous days of sailing ships and the unlawful slave traffic of the 1840's, provides one of the screen's greatest sea dramas in "Souls at Sea," which opens today, October 22, for a two-day engagement with Gary Cooper and George Raft in the co-starring roles. For the love of a woman, Frances Dee, Gary Cooper willingly plays the role of murderer on the high seas and brings down upon his head the charge of manslaughter, with a trial which was the high drama of two continents in 1842. George Raft is the tough matey who goes down with the ship. In the supporting cast are Henry Wilcoxon, Olympe Braden, Robert Cummings, Porter Hall, Virginia Weidler and others.

Next year's fashions in fun, gowns, girls, love, music, dances and Technicolor are introduced by "Walker Wagner's Vogue of 1938," the gay musical extravaganza starring Warner Baxter and Joan Bennett, which will be shown at day and Monday, October 24 and 25. Helen Vinson, Mischei Cow, Alan Mowbray and Jerome Cowan as head the supporting cast. The story casts Baxter as a he-man courtesier, while Miss Bennett plays a beautiful New York debutante who jilts a multi-millionaire on her wedding day to become a mannequin. Helen Vinson contributes complications as Baxter's extravagant, stage-struck wife. Mowbray plays the jilted millionaire.

Tuesday, October 26, the Bayne Theatre present "Exclusive," the drama of a newspaperman war, with Fred MacMurray, Frances Farmer, Charlie Ruggles and Lloyd Nolan playing the principal roles. A clash of principles between a father and daughter, both of them newspaper people, forms the plot for the story. The climax is reached when the girl's ideas cause a man to take his life and brings down the wrath of the city upon her employer.

Gladys George, John Beal, Warren William and Reginald Owen head the cast in "Madam X," the screen version of the dramatic stage play, an appealing emotional drama of a French lady who is led mildly astray, and is cast out by her husband, but is defended by her own son. This picture is scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, October 27 and 28.

CRUSH-RESISTANT RAYON VELVET

New York-Paris Fashions

THE latest developments of rayon adapt it to an even greater variety of fabric and give it more style importance than ever. This smart afternoon frock of crush-resistant rayon velvet is an example. It is jet black with deep, rich austere pile. The new square neckline is softened by a band of similar narrow net binding to that which outlines the skirt. The light front flare to the skirt accents the narrow styling. High metal brocade turban, top handle perforated mode and gold kid bag and long black mode gloves complete the ensemble.

Literary Unit Made Objective By PTA

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Court House School held its regular meeting in the school auditorium last Wednesday afternoon, when the organization selected a literary unit as its chief objective for the year. Mrs. F. A. Gibney, president of the chapter, was elected as delegate to the State Convention.

Plans were made for a Halloween Party, to which friends and patrons of the school will bring contributions for the luncheon. An attractive program will be offered to the audience.

As part of the meeting's program, the new officers of the Student Cooperative Association were installed. A social hour was held at the close of the business session.

Lynnhaven Cattle Given Recognition

Two cows in the herd of C. F. Burroughs of Lynnhaven have completed official records in the Herd Improvement Division qualifying them for admission to the Advanced Register of the American Guernsey Cattle Club, according to Kary B. Musser, secretary. A six year old cow in the Burroughs herd, Foremost's Queen of W. S. R. 317729 produced in 365 days 11655.1 pounds of milk and 453.7 pounds of butter fat in class AHI. Another Guernsey King and one-half year old Itchen's Four's Bonnie Lassie 2d 356292 produced in 365 days 8340.7 pounds of milk and 392.3 pounds of butter fat in class BHI.

A woman of 40 who is 5 feet 8 inches tall should weigh around 146 pounds. A man of the same age should weigh about 156 pounds.

Politene killed Kenneth Burford, age 18, of Melbourne, Australia, when he jumped to offer his seat to a woman in a train and fell through the car door.

In Days Gone By

Ten Years Ago With The Virginia Beach News

The Parent-Teacher Association of Virginia Beach entertained at a very enjoyable card party Wednesday evening at the Fel-Mar. There were fourteen tables of bridge with prizes for highest score. Mrs. J. Frank Newsome, Mrs. Walter D. Mills, and Mrs. Robert G. Barr composed the committee on arrangements. Mrs. S. A. Brock, Mrs. Millard Butt, Mrs. Robert W. Dall and Miss Ruby Drinkwater assisted in serving refreshments.

The offices and plant of the Virginia Beach Weekly will be moved this week to our new building on Atlantic Avenue between 20th and 21st Streets. Additional equipment is being installed and the staff has formulated plans to give their readers in the next few months, a bigger and better publication. We do not expect to miss a publication caused by the necessity of moving but it may cause next week's issue to be a little late.

M. R. (Cy) Young returned to his home at Oceana the first of this week after having been confined in a Norfolk hospital since September 25, where he was taken immediately after being shot by V. S. Williams, county officer, following a dispute between them.

Oceana high school's football team gave a splendid account of itself when they journeyed to Elizabeth City last Friday, although they were defeated 13-0. The local team was outwitted but showed spunk and training in the opposition against big odds. In addition to the team going to the north state, William Patton, Rev. Frank H. Scatterwood, F. A. Van Patten, Wallace Carman, E. V. Gresham and John H. Sparrow motored down to witness the game.

Local gunners, particularly those of Norfolk and Princess Anne County, will meet in Norfolk tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce on the thirteenth floor of the National Bank of Commerce building to protest against the recommendations of the advisory committee of the Virginia State Commission on Game and Inland Fisheries.

Virginia Beach Personals
Mr. and Mrs. Pay M. Thomas are expected to return this week from Savannah, Georgia where they attended the general opening of the General Oglethorpe Hotel, one of the newest hotels in the United States Corporation chain.

Robert Berry of Wilson Springs was the recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sale.

Miss Polly McClure is spending sometime visiting friends and relatives in Lexington and Fairfield.

Dr. Edgar H. Morrison left Monday by motor for Tarboro, N. C. where he will spend sometime visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Nelmeier, who have been visiting their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Etheridge at their home on 35th Street, Sea Pines, have returned to their home in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Lewis Doney of Charlotte, N. C. and Mrs. Frank Carpenter of New York are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Williams at the Pocomantas cottage.

Glen Rock Items
Mrs. Emma Steele left Saturday for Ravenwood, W. Va. to visit her niece, Mrs. Robert Varnum. She will later go to Clarksburg to visit her mother, who will return with Mrs. Steele to make her future home.

Carmel, 5-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Fiorini was seriously burned when her clothes were ignited from a bonfire. The child was taken to St. Vincent's hospital for treatment. Physicians say she did not swallow any of the flames.

Mr. and Mrs. Cadaguan and Mr. Cadaguan's mother have returned to their home here after spending the summer at their home in the north.

Kempsville News Items
Miss Gladys Chlinger left Tuesday for Cleveland, Ohio where she will spend the winter with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Fessenden.

STUDY OF BELLS SCHOOL FEATURE

Program Expected To Create Interest In Music And Sale Of Christmas Seals.

Bells and bell-ringing, inspired by this year's Christmas seals, will feature Thanksgiving programs in many of the State's schools, H. Laurie Smith, president of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association, said yesterday.

Paul Saunier, director of music in the Henrico County Schools, declared that bells developed a fine sense of tone among pupils, adding: "I feel that the bell program will be very valuable in creating an interest in Christmas Seals as well as music. I have always encouraged teachers in having children build sets of tuned bells as it develops a fine sense of relative pitch in connection with their study of scales."

$90,000 Raised Last Year
The 1937 Christmas Seals feature the figure of a town crier ringing a cheerful message for what has been accomplished in the cause of health. Sale of Seals in Virginia last year produced more than $90,000 to aid in the campaign to cure and control tuberculosis, and officers of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association expect that figure to be surpassed this year. The Virginia organization already has ordered a supply of 30,500,000 Christmas Seals, and Miss Leslie Combs Foster, executive secretary of the association, said that present indications point to an increase of that order to meet a greater demand for the penny stickers.

Arrangements for the participation of the schools in the bell programs are being made by county and city committees throughout the State. However, Miss Foster explained, seals are no longer sold in the schools, the programs being designed to promote interest in the war against tuberculosis among children and the parents.

However, children who wish to do so will be allowed to buy a little double-barred cross bangles—indicative of the constant fight on disease. Every pupil also will be asked to tell two people of the purpose of the Christmas Seals.

In the lighthouse district which covers the Mississippi river and its tributaries above New Orleans, there are 4,500 miles of river marked by aids to navigation. Lights, buoys and beacons in these channels number 6,925.

GROWERS URGED TO AID PROGRAM

Plan Wheat Crops For Coming Year This Fall, Extension Economist Advises.

Farmers in Virginia who are seeding wheat and other small-grain crops are advised by S. E. Cassell, assistant agricultural economist of the Virginia agricultural extension division, to make their plans this fall so that they can take part in the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program.

Cassell, who has been attending meetings on the development of the 1938 program, states that growers should plan to have an acreage of general soil-depleting crops for harvest in 1938 not in excess of 85 per cent of the base established for their farms under the 1937 program. This acreage will be about equal to the acreage set for general crops which can be grown under the 1938 program.

Adjustments Needed
In order to keep the acreage of general crops in line for 1938, Cassell says a part of the land which is ordinarily seeded to wheat for harvest may be seeded as usual and a portion of the crop used for pasture rather than to be harvested. Other fields, which are sometimes seeded to wheat, may be seeded to rye and used for pasture. In this way, he points out, a farmer still can include these small grains in his usual crop rotation as a winter cover crop and at the same time keep in line with the 1938 program.

There are some farms, state Cassell, on which the 1938 program will not require any adjustment from the usual acreage of general crops. Probably the only group of farms which will be included in this group are those of the subsistence type on which general crops are grown entirely for home consumption on the farm and those on which the general base is 20 acres or less.

Goals To Be Established
The 1938 program provides for the setting up of national goals for soil-depleting crops which represent the acreage on which farmers can expect, with average yields, to produce crops of such size that they can be marketed at fair prices. The goals will be worked out for the United States and broken down by States, counties, and individual farms.

Therefore, any farmer desiring to take part in the program and to contribute to the accomplishment of the national agricultural objectives should make an effort to plant crops within the goal of his farm, Cassell added.

Wheat and other small-grain crops are being seeded now and, while no separate goal is set up for wheat and other small grains, they are included in the general soil-depleting goal. This means that growers can plan to make adjustments in their general crops either by seeding wheat and other small grains for harvest in line with goals for 1938, or by adjustments in the acreage of other crops in the general soil-depleting goal.

Two types of menus are in use in restaurants today: table d'hôte and à la carte. Meals ordered from a la carte menu cost the sum total of the individual dishes. Meals ordered from a table d'hôte menu cost one set price.

ANTI-BILLBOARD SUPPORT GROWS

Fifty-Five Additional Nationally-Known Manufacturers Discontinue Signs.

Another group of nationally known manufacturers, fifty-five in number, has decided to discontinue advertising on rural roadside billboards, according to Mrs. George Sloane, of Warrenton, State chairman of the Associated Clubs of Virginia for Roadside Development. The names of these manufacturers have been added to the association's "White List" for distribution to the more than 40,000 Virginia women affiliated with the organization.

Included in this new group of manufacturers are makers of the following products: automobiles, eight kinds; gasoline, four kinds; motor oil, two; tires, two; fertilizers, paints, and seeds, eight; beverages, six; tobaccos, two; soaps, two; eleven food products, and ten miscellaneous commodities. Eleven hotels have also joined the group.

Mrs. Sloan further said that already 92 of the 100 counties in this state have been completely organized. With a local chairman in each, two bills, drawn for presentation to the next meeting of the legislature, limiting rural bill board advertising, have been prepared, and are under consideration by the legislative committee of the associated clubs.

Prayer Meeting

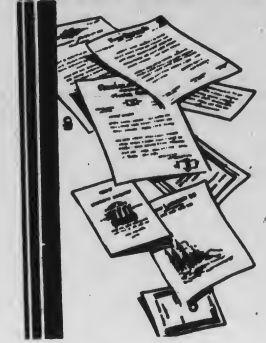

The regular Saturday night prayer meeting will be held this week at the home of N. C. Starkey, on Hanover Street, Glen Rock, at eight o'clock. The public has been invited to attend.

RED CROSS HEADS SAFETY DRIVE IN HOMES AND ON THE HIGHWAYS

Unusual Number Of Persons Trained During Past Year To Administer First Aid; Roadside Stations Sponsored By National Organization Boon To Injured Motorists.

A growing, tangible consciousness of the need for more experts in administering first aid has resulted in the training of an unusual number of persons during the past fiscal year, according to E. H. Herbert, chairman of the Princess Anne Red Cross Chapter.

"It is possible to note unmistakable signs of progress in making the country first-aid conscious," Mr. Herbert said. "This is not from statistics alone, but from the obvious interest that is being aroused among children in schools, employees of large industrial companies, owners of isolated farms, and parents as well."

"This interest last year led 256,884 persons to take specialized courses in first aid, certificates being awarded in classes varying from three to as many as fifty."

"The immediate treatment of those injured on the highways is one of the chief needs in the elimination of deaths and permanent injuries from automobile accidents," Mr. Herbert pointed out. "We have found the greatest danger spots to be those in rural rather than in urban areas, and to combat this danger we have inaugurated, and are rapidly expanding our system of first aid stations along the highways from Maine to California."

The Chairman explained that the American Red Cross had already established approximately 1,800 of these emergency highway first aid stations, placing them in filling stations, roadside inns, police sub-stations, and fire departments, at the same time training an adequate number of persons in the immediate vicinity or connected with the filling station or inn sponsoring the projects in order to keep them manned constantly.

Mobile Units Equipped

"Through the past year the Red Cross has also been concentrating on the establishment of mobile units in first aid," Mr. Herbert explained. "Several thousand trucks belonging to utility companies, highway police patrols, shipping concerns, and state highway departments are being equipped with first aid kits, while their drivers and other workers are being trained in the administration of first aid to care for accident victims until a doctor's care is available."

"Better employment conditions have brought increased demands for first aid training in the industries," Mr. Herbert said. "Our local chapter of the Red Cross, as well as the resources and the teaching staff of the national organization is concentrating on reaching an increasingly large number of persons in order to spread the teaching of first aid as widely as possible.

"It is a deplorable fact," he concluded, "that accidents on highways are increasing rather than decreasing. While we are doing all possible to cut these accidents down, we must recognize the fact that many of them seem to be inevitable, and our task is to prepare as many persons as possible to cope with them."

Serve Apple Souffle While Puffy and Warm

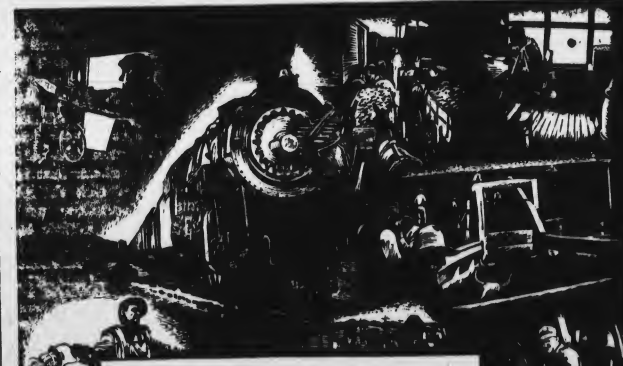

FEATHER light, puffed and brown, apple souffle is perfect served after a generous meal. Tuck it into the oven as the main course begins so it will finish baking just in time to emerge from the kitchen erect and warm. Top each serving with a splash of whipped cream or thin cooked custard.

The tested recipe follows:

Apple Souffle
8 tart apples
8 cups sugar
Dash of nutmeg and cinnamon
1 tablespoon lemon juice
4 eggs
1/2 teaspoon salt

Part, core and cut apples into small pieces. Cook apples with just enough water to keep from burning. Rub through a sieve. This should make three-quarters cup apple puree. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Beat in sugar, salt, spices and lemon juice, fold in apple puree and lastly egg whites which have been beaten until stiff. Pour into a shallow buttered pan (8" x 8" x 2"). Bake from 30 to 40 minutes in a moderately slow oven (325° F.). If a French type or very soft soufflé is preferred, bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) for 30 minutes. Yield: 6 servings.

Here are plain facts which touch the lives of us all:

American railroad rates are the lowest in the world; American railroad service is the best.

But the continuance of this efficient, economical service is imperiled today by the threat of laws which would check progress.

One such measure is the bill now before Congress to limit the length of freight trains to seventy cars—a needless restriction that would add more than one hundred million dollars a year to the cost of transportation, but would add nothing to railroad revenues, service or safety.

The unjustified burden of this threatened legislation should not be imposed upon American industry and agriculture and the consuming public.

Whether you are an industrialist, a farmer, a merchant, or a worker, if this measure passes Congress, part of the cost will come out of your pocket. Therefore, it is in your interest to express your opposition to the bill, and use your influence against its passage.

CLUB'S BIRTHDAY PARTY TUESDAY

tributed to the poor. In cooperation with both the nursing service and the welfare department, many children have been provided with warm garments and have been transported to hospitals and clinics.

"Through the Christmas Joy Fund, sponsored during the last two years in active cooperation with the Virginia Beach News, large sums have been realized and distributed in needed money, in baskets of food, toys and warm clothing at the Christmas season.

Living Standards Raised

"Through its civics committee, educational and health committees and other departmental services, it has worked for the promotion of education within the schools, in cooperation with the health and welfare units, and in cooperation with the various organizations in the county interested in relieving ignorance, poverty and suffering, thus materially raising the standards of living that here prevail.

"In the depression years the club directed most of its energies to the welfare of local children, providing nourishing food through the winter, transporting the ill and undernourished to and from the King's Daughters and tuberculosis clinics in Norfolk. This year it seeks to help in still another direction, and through the newly-formed birth control committee, of which Mrs. R. B. Taylor is chairman, in cooperation with local doctors, birth control clinics will be held.

Noted Speakers

"Last year, finding the clubhouse at the Beach a heavy burden to continue, it was decided to sell the building and invest the funds. Thus, for the first time in many years, the famous May Festivals were continued, but for

Oak Grove Baptists Plan Church Night

Tonight at 7:30 o'clock "Church Night" will be observed at the Oak Grove Baptist Church, according to an announcement made this week by the pastor, the Rev. Ralph W. Mapp. All members and their families have been urged to be present at the session, for which an appropriate program has been arranged.

Following group singing, Mrs. Betty Gornio will discuss "What My Church Means to Me." Miss Page Bright and Marion Bright will present the topic, "What the Young People May Mean to the Church." Miss Bessanne Spence will offer several recitations and a humorous address will be delivered by the Rev. E. F. Chassey. Refreshments will be served in the social hall.

Oak Grove Church was established in 1762, and is one of the oldest churches in this section of Tidewater Virginia.

a welfare project rather than for the benefit of the club. The Tidewater Victory Memorial Hospital was the recipient of the benefit last spring, held at Lawson Hall through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hodgman.

"Many noted speakers have addressed the club at its monthly meetings, and this year's general sessions will be held at the Court House in January, with a speaker of importance scheduled, and at the old Court House in Kempville. Plans for both of these meetings will be announced later.

"As usual, there will be a Joy Fund at Christmas and, in cooperation with the nursing and welfare units, many underprivileged children again will be cared for in the true Christmas spirit.

"Active plans for the May Festival, the time and place of which will be announced later, also are being considered. This year the funds will be used for the work of the Birth Control Clinic."

The SNAPSHOT GUILD SPECIAL PICTURE HOBBIES

ONE of the attractions of the hobby of amateur photography is that it provides an almost unlimited number of hobbies within the hobby; as many, in fact, as there are kinds of things that the eye can see. Ships, flowers, trees, clouds, locomotives, colonial architecture, historical monuments, gargoyles, machinery, babies, horses, dogs, cats, birds, insects are only a few subjects which have their devotees as special picture hobbies. Enthusiasm for photography combines with this collector's instinct, resulting in albums of photographs of the chosen subject that are a source of pride, pleasure and instruction.

In addition to the enjoyment of making the photographs, the value of a special picture hobby is that it usually leads to an accumulation of knowledge about the subject that is educational and broadening. If the photographer starts making pictures of flowers, he soon discovers that there are many things about flowers that he never knew before. He is likely to become quite a botanist. So with ships. He is likely soon to be studying up on marine architecture and enjoying it. Above is an amateur photograph from the album of an insect specialist. This is a hobby which affords him the extra enjoyment of walks into the woods and fields in his hunt for specimens. His photographs then on the spot and captures them to take home for indoor shots. He has become an amateur entomologist. Now he really knows about "bees' knees," "butterflies' eyes" and how many legs a caterpillar has. He finds that photographing insects in the open fields, garden or woods, is really a sport. Some kinds you can stalk successfully but he tells you that, more often than you would suppose, you have success by trying to wait for an insect to come within lens range and pose itself on flower, leaf or twig on which you have focused. If you locate yourself in a place where there are plenty of them, it won't be long before one of the multitude hops or flies into position in front of your waiting lens. Of course, if you do not have a close-focusing bellows camera, you should use a portrait attachment in order to get a large image, and in either case you will usually need to have an enlargement made from the important part of the negative.

The exposure should usually be twice that given regular outdoor scenes with the same light conditions. Being close to the subject there is less light reflected, and, as detail is essential, it is better to double the exposure time, and also to use a small stop. Your camera should be stationary on a support. You must expect some failures because of the refusal of an insect to stay in position long enough for the required exposure, but that adds to the value of the successful pictures. Grasshoppers, bees, spiders and their webs, the praying mantis and the butterfly offer good opportunities; so does the wax's nest, if you care to take a chance.

World's Greatest and Smallest Meet In New York's Radio City Music Hall

SMALLEST vacuum cleaner ever made is this tiny model-perfect instrument being exhibited in the dressing room by Jane Sproule, left, and Pauline Kaye, of the forty-two pretty girls who make up America's only permanent corps de ballet. They perform daily on the stage of Rockefeller Center's Radio City Music Hall in New York City, largest stage and theater in the world, before audiences that total 150,000 to 175,000 weekly. Some idea of the minute nature of the vacuum cleaner may be had by comparing it with the lipstick and pencil photographed alongside it, yet it is as perfect in every detail as any vacuum cleaner of those with which millions of American housewives daily freshen their floor coverings, upholstery and draperies. "The vacuum cleaner is a reproduction, exact in all respects, of a typical American home aid. It was made by an unidentified French craftsman, however, and was bought in Paris by Jules Charbonnet, owner of a world-famous collection of miniature reproductions recently shown at the Music Hall.

OCEAN-TO-OCEAN TRAIL MEMORIAL

program will include group singing by the students of the Willoughby T. Cooke and Oceana Schools, the unveiling of the marker by six small girls from the Beach School and the planting of ivy by another group at the base of the memorial. In addition, wreaths will be placed at the marker by Admiral J. J. Bryan, representing the Sons of the Revolution and by Col. William Blunt Rodman.

Procession of Flags

A procession of flags to the marker by Virginia Beach Troop 60, Boy Scouts of America, will open the dedicatory exercises. The invocation will be pronounced by the Rev. R. W. Eastman, of Galilee Church, and the benediction by the Rev. L. W. Meachum, of the First Baptist Church.

Next spring, six sundials will be placed on concrete posts already constructed in front of the marker at the head of Seventeenth Street. Symbolic of the scope of the Boone Trail, one of the sundials will denote Atlantic Ocean time, the second eastern standard time, a third central time, the fourth Rocky Mountain time, the fifth Pacific coast time and, finally, the last Pacific Ocean time. Thus, it will be possible for anyone to set his watch by any one of the markers and determine the exact time at any given location along the highway.

It is expected that both the marker and the sun dials will prove of interest to future visitors to Virginia Beach.

CARELESS TURNS ACCIDENT CAUSE

Many Disasters On Highway Due To Improper Driving, Rhodes Warns Motorists.

The shipshod manner in which many drivers make turns was held responsible this week by John Q. Rhodes, Jr., Director of the Division of Motor Vehicles, for many of the traffic accidents occurring daily in Virginia. Stating that too many drivers did not take the trouble to make the turn properly, he called it laziness that caused drivers to make a wide sweep when turning to the right and to "cut the corner" when turning left.

The Motor Vehicle Code provides that a right turn shall be made by keeping close to the right hand edge of the roadway or close to the right hand curb if it is a street. A left turn likewise shall be made by passing to the right of the center of the intersection.

Cause of Accidents

"Drivers who fail to do this are bound to get into the way of traffic coming toward them, and are causing accidents," he said, "Considering the fact that most turns are made at slow speeds, there should be no reason for a mishap, but when drivers fail to observe a few simple rules, they get into trouble."

First, give the proper hand signal and be sure that it is understood by other motorists and pedestrians who will be affected by your move. Get your car into the proper lane well before you reach the turn. This means, for a turn to the right, move to the right hand edge of the road, and for a left turn, move to the lane nearest to the center of the road, and on a three lane highway, move into the center lane. Slow down, continuing to give your hand signal, and be sure that the way is clear and that nobody coming from behind will hit you. Then turn, keeping close to the edge for a right turn and going around the center point of the intersection for a left turn.

A turn made in this manner marks the expert driver, said Mr. Rhodes, and distinguishes him from the dub. It also marks the safe driver, for it indicates a driver with consideration for others.

ANNUAL EXHIBIT PLANS ARE MADE BY COUNTY 4-H CLUBS' COUNCIL

Achievement Day Exercises Will Be Held At Oceana High School On Nov. 20.

SCHOOLS WILL PRESENT VARIETY OF PLAYLETS

No Sets Of Prizes Will Be Awarded To Victorious High, Elementary Schools.

The annual Achievement Day exercises sponsored by the 4-H Clubs of Princess Anne County will be held in the Oceana High School on Saturday, November 20, beginning at 10 o'clock. It was determined at a meeting of the 4-H Club leaders held last Thursday at the Court House. Complete plans for the exercises were agreed upon at the meeting.

Following the practice begun last year, the day's program will be completed before luncheon with the exception of the awarding of prizes. Exhibits representing all of the 4-H projects will be displayed in the gymnasium as one of the features of the day's schedule.

Leaders Attend

Those attending the meeting, which was called by H. W. Olin, county agricultural agent, were Miss Catherine Boyette, Oceana Club; Miss Catherine Fickett, Creeds; Marion Bright, Kempsville; Miss Christine Garrett, Bay-side; Miss Thelma Gunter, Ocean; Miss Dorothy Eason, Blackwater; and Miss Margaret Bailey, Charity.

The leaders decided that each club would take part in the program by presenting a short play, or playlet bearing on some phase of 4-H Club work. It also was agreed that two sets of prizes would be awarded, one to the high school scoring highest on the stunt and another prize to the elementary school judged the winner in its division. As in the past, the stunts will be scored for originality, adaptability, presentation and effectiveness.

Requirements Cited

County club dues must be paid by November 1, if the individual clubs are to be given full credit on Achievement Day. An intensive effort has been waged during the past week by the several units to bring their membership rolls and accounts up to date in order that no demerits will be applied to spoil their standing at the annual exercises.

Exhibits planned for display will embrace the following quantities: corn, white or yellow, ten ears; trifoliate potatos, 20; sweet potatoes, 10; squash, basket of vegetables; (Continued on Page Five)

Tony Ketsules Will Sail Today For Visit to His Native Home

Off To Patras For Two-Month Stay, Local Restaurant Owner Will Renew Boyhood Associations And Visit With His Family In Olive And Raisin Country.

A modern Aeneas in reverse, Tony Ketsules will set out today aboard the Baltimore Mail Line Steamer "Hamburg"—the owner of a prominent Beach restaurant might be expected to sail on a ship of that name—to rediscover his native Greece. Tony is bound for the city of Patras, capital of Achaia in southern Greece, a city whose origins stretch back into the dim reaches of antiquity.

Disembarking at Havre, France, Tony will travel for two and one-half additional days by rail to the famed olive and raisin country of Greece, where he will spend at least one month visiting his two brothers and three sisters and other of his boyhood friends. The locale of his visit, according to an old geography hastily consulted, is on the Gulf of Patras, an inlet of the Ionian Sea.

Tony recalled yesterday that he left his native land in 1914 at the age of eighteen years, just a few months before the outbreak of the World War. A boyhood friend of James Kandas, who had left for America several years before, an offer of a job in his confectionery in Lehigh, Pa., was sufficient lure to break the bonds which held him to his home, and, securing the necessary permission from his parents, he set out across the Atlantic for a strange and new world. Mr. Kandas' sister, Miss Polita Leidiota, who remained in Greece, had urged his departure, Tony said yesterday, and he is looking forward with considerable interest to reuniting her during the course of his first visit to the land of his origin. He will carry gifts to her from the widow of Mr. Kandas, who

MOTHERS ADVICE CLINICS TO OPEN

First Session To Be Held At Virginia Beach And Creeds On November 9.

The committee of the Mothers Advice Clinics, sponsored by the Woman's Club of Princess Anne County in coordination with the Princess Anne Medical Society and the Woman's Medical Auxiliary, held its first meeting on Tuesday afternoon and established the locale and time of the clinics, according to an announcement made yesterday by Mrs. R. B. Taylor, chairman of the committee. Mrs. Hazel Moore and Mrs. Agnes Belser, national and state field workers, respectively, were present at the meeting, and plans were formulated for the opening of the clinics, the purpose of which is to receive married women for advice and instruction in family planning and child spacing according to considerations of health and economic conditions.

Doctors Offer Offices

Until an office can be provided for the clinics, the county physicians have agreed to hold the consultations in their offices, each doctor alternating on the service. Clinical hours also were announced as follows:

Virginia Beach, beginning Tuesday, November 9, white patients, each second Tuesday, from one to two o'clock; colored patients, each fourth Tuesday afternoon at the same hour.
Creeds, beginning Tuesday, November 9, white patients, each second Tuesday afternoon, from one to two o'clock; colored patients, each fourth Tuesday afternoon at the same hour.

Dr. I. L. Hancock will be in charge of the Creeds' clinics, and at Virginia Beach, Drs. Dornire, Taylor, Woodhouse and Corpening will assist the committee in the distribution of medical advice according to the following schedule: Dr. Dornire, November, March and July; Dr. Taylor, December, April and August; Dr. Woodhouse, January, May and September; and Dr. Corpening, February, June and October.

On Beach Seven Years

Tony remained in Lehigh until 1920, when, following his first employment, he came to Virginia Beach again to be associated with Mr. Kandas in the thriving Kandas Town House business. With him came his growing family—a wife, one son and two daughters. In March, 1934, he opened his own business, the Roland Restaurant, which he still operates.

Threats of another European war have Tony a bit worried, and he promises to take the first boat back from Havre should he find conditions too unsettled when he finishes his eight-day crossing of the Atlantic. However, he is anticipating no such hasty climax to his junket, and, if all goes well, he will be back on the Beach early in January, ready to put on his apron and go to work.

BEACH COUNCIL ADOPTS BUDGET

Residents Oppose Proposed Widening Of Street; Concession Bids Called For.

Adoption of the budget for the fiscal year 1937-38 by unanimous vote on the second reading featured the October meeting of the Virginia Beach Town Council held at the Town Hall on Monday night. The proposed expenditure of funds has been debated at length at a previous session of the Council, and the measure was approved with little discussion.

Anticipated receipts total $227,500.00, of which amount $185,300.00 will be derived from general sources and the remaining $72,200.00 from the water and sewer departments. Included in the outlay for capital expenditures are the new police and fire departments, additional improved streets, curb and guttering and new fire equipment. A proposed bond issue of $200,000.00 will take care of the Town's share of the construction costs of the new sewage disposal plant.

Street Plans Protested

A delegation of Twenty-two Street property owners appeared before the Council to discuss the proposed widening of the street to a depth of eighty feet. Because of the opposition voiced by those residents of the north side—it was maintained that the proposed development would cut so deeply into their developed lawns that much of the beauty of the street would be destroyed—it was decided that only a two-foot strip should be added to the present roadway and a temporary curb and gutter be placed within these limits.

Following the Council meeting, however, opposition to this move developed, and it is understood that the motion approved by the Council might be rescinded at the next meeting, when a counter-motion will be made to delay all improvements until such a time as a permanent curb and gutter can be laid either on the true line as shown in the recorded plat of this section or on a line reached by compromise between the property owners and the Town officials.

Improvement Sought

Another petition for street improvements was presented by residents of Avenue E. Present conditions make driving over the street extremely hazardous, it was reported by the petitioners, and delay development of the locality. The matter was referred to the streets committee and that body was given power to act in accordance with the existing needs.

Council also voted to continue its sponsorship of the Transient Camp until December 1. A new motorcycle was ordered purchased (Continued on Page Eight)

WORKS PROJECTS TO CONTINUE IN OPERATION HERE

Supervisors Deny Plea That All PWA Activity Be Halted For Sixty Days.

FAVOR DRAINAGE PLAN

Tax Suit Against Norfolk To Be Pushed.

All county sponsored PWA projects will be continued throughout the fall months, it was agreed by the Board of Supervisors and district officials of the Works Progress Administration at a conference held on Monday morning. The only departure from the normal routine regularly operative on the projects, according to the conferees, will be the provision that project supervisors will be instructed to drop temporarily from the WPA rolls those able-bodied men with farming experience who are offered employment for not less than one week's duration by county growers, who are reported to be in need of farm workers during the harvest season.

Would Suspend Activity

The agreement to continue the projects with this temporary provision came after H. C. N. Batten, representing the newly-organized Princess Anne County Farm Bureau, appeared before the board to request that all WPA activity be suspended for a 60-day period. The motion of the bureau urged such suspension because of the inability of local farmers to compete with the relief jobs for necessary workers.

If and when an able-bodied man on relief is offered private employment and refuses it, he will be denied certification for further (Continued on Page Five)

FARM LABORERS ARE AVAILABLE

State Employment Service Ready To Assist Growers In Securing Field Hands.

Assistance of the Virginia State Employment Service to employers and unemployed of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County has been made more readily available through changes recently effective, it was announced this week by Paul L. Bryan, Jr., manager of the Norfolk office of the service.

The Beach and county, formerly under the jurisdiction of the Portsmouth office, have been transferred to the Norfolk office, and H. S. Myers, of Virginia Beach, recently added to the Norfolk office staff, has been placed in charge of this territory. Mr. Myers will be at the Beach Town Hall on Wednesday, from 2:30 A. M. to 3:00 P. M., to register persons who desire employment, and it is planned that he shall be at Princess Anne Court House one day a week after January 1 to perform similar service.

Many Register

The Virginia State Employment Service, an agency which serves employer and job-seeker without charge, has now on file the applications of 322 Princess Anne people who are seeking employment, and the Norfolk office has a total of more than 5,000 registrants. It is prepared to furnish, on short notice, competent persons to do any sort of work, including domestic service. The Norfolk office is located at 408 E. Plume Street.

In connection with the transfer of Princess Anne to his jurisdiction, Mr. Bryan made a survey of labor conditions in the county. He discovered, in talks with farmers, that there is a shortage of farm labor in parts of the county.

"If farmers will get in touch with us," said Mr. Bryan, "I believe we can be of assistance to them. We have on file a number of applications for farm jobs from Princess Anne and are also in touch with a good deal of farm labor in Norfolk. We will be delighted to serve Princess Anne farmers, and the service, of course, is without charge."

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION

Once again the time has come for our community to demonstrate its concern for maintaining a very necessary part of our civic welfare program—the work maintained by the Princess Anne Chapter of the American Red Cross.

It is not necessary for me to remind citizens of our community that the work of the Red Cross is a vital contribution to our community welfare. We have all seen, during the past year, how effective Red Cross work is, both from the standpoint of the year-round program and that done during times of great national emergency. Perhaps never before has the work of this great relief agency been so universally endorsed as in this year during the gigantic relief operations in the devastating flood area in the Ohio and Mississippi River Valley. It was a great work done in an efficient manner, and truly deserves our most sincere commendation. River Valley. It was a great work done in an efficient manner, and truly deserves our most sincere commendation.

Our community, I am pleased to say, carried its full share of the responsibility for making this great relief work possible, through contributions of our citizens.

The annual Roll Call of the Red Cross, through which such fine work is supported, is from November 11 to Thanksgiving Day. Memberships enrolled during that time will support the work for the year ahead of us. The Red Cross asks little from the community, yet contributes much to the general welfare of our people.

It gives me great pleasure, as mayor of Virginia Beach, to set aside the designated period as the time when all members will be asked to renew their memberships and those who have not enrolled before are urged to add their names to the ranks of Red Cross members in our community.

Beach Baby Popularity Contest Sponsored by M. E. Bible Class

Fourteen Local Youngsters Are Entered In Competition; Winner To Receive Loving Cup Upon Conclusion Of Contest On Or About Thanksgiving Day.

A contest to determine the most popular baby in the Virginia Beach community, sponsored by the Dawson Bible Class of the Methodist Church, was announced this week. Local stores and restaurants will serve as polling places for the submission of votes, and a baby has been chosen by each of the cooperating stores.

The winner of the contest will be given a suitable prize, probably a silver loving cup, and the contest will be brought to a close on or about Thanksgiving Day. The standing of the contestants will be announced in this newspaper each week, together with the names of the babies and the polling places set aside for them.

Proceeds from the contest will be turned over to the church by the Bible Class for needed repairs and improvements.

Contest Participants

Those participating in the contest were announced as follows: Lloyd Woodhouse, Atlantic Grocery Company; Martha Jean Blummond, Barr's Drug Store No. 3; Frances Dolores Martin, D. P. Store, Atlantic Avenue; Patricia

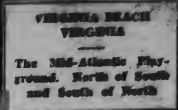

Lions Club Dance On Saturday Night

The Lions Club of Virginia Beach will sponsor a Halloween Dance at the Veterans Club on Saturday night, beginning at 7:30. According to those in charge of arrangements, this year's affair is expected to be as successful as the dance held last fall.

A Norfolk orchestra will provide the music for dancing, and the general public has been invited to attend.

Chinese Minister To Preach Sunday

The Rev. Sidney Quong, former pastor of the Chinese Baptist Church of Norfolk, will preach at the 11 o'clock service at the First Baptist Church of Virginia Beach on Sunday morning. Mr. Quong is a graduate of Hargrave Military Academy, Richmond University and Crozier Seminary. In his sermon, the Rev. Quong is expected to discuss some aspects of the present Chinese-Japanese situation.

Fentress Seeks To Deny Charges That He Failed To Obey Orders From Chief.

F. B. I. A. B. C. INSPECTORS TELL OF COOPERATION

Illegal Still Reported Seized Within "Smelling Distance" Of Halstead's Home.

Police officers of Princess Anne County, with the single exception of Claude H. Fentress—recently dismissed from the force upon the complaint of George Halstead, Chief of County Police—have been "consistent in their failure to cooperate" with Federal and State officers "in the suppression of the illicit liquor trade" known to exist in the county, the Board of Supervisors was told by spokesman for the agencies at the October meeting held at the Court House on Monday.

The accusation was heard repeatedly during the afternoon, when the deposed officer sought to impress the board with the alleged injustice of his dismissal by presenting witnesses who attested to his capabilities as an officer of the law and the thoroughness and efficiency which he brought to the accomplishment of his duties. Staff members of the Norfolk office of the Federal Investigation Bureau and an inspector for the State A. B. C. Board joined with several county residents in attesting to Mr. Fentress' "outstanding service" as a police officer.

Tells Of SM's Scheme

George Harmon, first witness for Mr. Fentress, spoke forcefully of the deposed officer's service to the FBI in the suppression of the illicit liquor trade, and said that he had been given "very little cooperation" by the other county officers. Indeed, he added, he "never had received one request for help" from a Princess Anne policeman other than Mr. Fentress.

The Federal inspector threw a bombshell into the meeting when he told of finding a still within 800 yards of Chief Halstead's home near Princess Anne Court House several months ago. Although from his experience, he asserted, "the odor of the mash should have been smelted by the Chief of Police and the noise of the operators of the still easily distinguishable," there was no report forthcoming from Mr. Halstead to either the State or Federal officers of the still's presence and no attempt made by the county police to seize it and the men responsible for it.

Chief Halstead On Stand

Mr. Fentress' defense was opened with his cross-examination of Chief Halstead, who made the complaint to the supervisors which resulted in his dismissal. Referring to the deposed officer's request for "specific instances" in which he had neglected his duties or failed to obey orders, as charged by the Chief, Mr. Halstead testified that he "had told Mr. Fentress of numerous complaints received" and "often had had his orders neglected."

The one specific complaint referred on Monday by Chief Halstead was voiced by Harry Newman, the officer who replaced Mr. Fentress in the Kempsville District, who reported an alleged conversation held early in the summer when Mr. Fentress was reported to have told him (Newman) that "the stills" as he pleased in his territory. Mr. Fentress denied having uttered such a remark, and Officer Newman left the stand.

No Instruction Of Bales

After presenting several letters from business men in the affected area attesting to Officer Newman's capabilities, all within the past several weeks and following the dismissal order, in reply to a direct question from Mr. Fentress, Chief Halstead said that he knew (Continued on Page Five)

"THE VOICE of a majority, swaying the course of government does not insure good government except it be the voice of a well-informed and well-intentioned people."

THE COUNTY'S $100,000 TAX SUIT

Although the county officials have agreed to press the suit for unpaid taxes on county property owned by Norfolk City, there is little likelihood that any measure of success can be anticipated. The adverse decision of the State Supreme Court in the Nansemond County case—identical in most respects to the local litigation—was a blow that will call for considerably more argument than now appears to be in the hands of the prosecuting attorneys.

In such cases involving municipalities, the tendency of the court has been to disallow the claims unless specific proof can be furnished that the profits derived from the use of such property are considerably greater than the public service rendered as a consequence of that use. This, if we understand the majority opinion, was the argument which defeated the Nansemond County officials, and it looms as the bar to a favorable decision in the local case.

There may be more merit to the proposal that the county attorneys confine their major arguments to the lawfulness of collecting taxes on the water again that runs from the Norfolk City Waterworks to the Town of Virginia Beach. Mr. Armistead, who will lead the county offensive, believes that a case may be made out for this tax since Norfolk City is under no obligation to furnish water to Beach residents.

However, much as we would like to see this annual tax of $3,500 collected by the county, we are skeptical of success. The same argument may be advanced to defeat it, and we believe that the court—with the Nansemond decision as its guide—will not be inclined to reverse itself.

COUNTY OFFICERS AND THE ABC LAW

Although those who convined to displace Claude Pentress from the county police force after thirty years of exemplary service might have anticipated some little reaction from his friends, none could have been prepared for the barrage of implied criticism of the present county constabulary that was hurled so vigorously into the laps of the Supervisors by Federal and State officers on Monday afternoon. A "candid camera" expert, had he been sitting in the room, would have secured a gallery of portraits that would have ranged from mild discomfort and embarrassment to—almost—an expression of guilt.

For the Federal and State investigators, immune from any reprisals from local politicians, rallied to the support of a trustworthy friend and spoke their minds on the lack of even a pretense of cooperation on the part of the other officers on the police force, including the Chief himself. "No other officer volunteered any cooperation to us in our search for those engaged in an illicit liquor traffic," "we never have had one request for help from any member of the present force," "none has ever accompanied us on a still raid"—here is evidence from responsible sources that might prove of interest to a Grand Jury intent upon the restoration of respect for the law by residents and officers alike.

And the Chief of Police, according to Mr. Pentress' unchallenged testimony, personally ordered him into the Chief's district on many occasions to raid a still. If Mr. Pentress was so badly needed in his own sector—certainly larger in every way than the district patrolled by Mr. Halstead—as the Chief has stated in his criticism of Mr. Pentress' activity, why did the Chief not personally see to the raids and personally clamp the handcuffs on the malefactors? The general public would like to know the answer to that riddle, and we are frank to say that we can't explain it.

Not knowing all of the facts, we hesitate to make mention of the still that Federal officers allege was captured within "smelling" and "hearing" distance of the Chief's home. Nonetheless, we do believe that the county residents are entitled to an explanation, since it was rather strongly implied by an FBI investigator that he couldn't have overlooked its presence.

Although we have failed to comment on the unexplained exclamation of Officer Halstead to the entirely new position of Chief of County Police, we should like to know the Board's reason for taking this authority away from the Sheriff—where it properly belongs—and placing it in the hands of an officer whose accustomed routine kept him far away from the locale of most misdemeanors and felonies. The voters believed Sheriff Salmon capable of handling the county's limited number of officers: why, then, did the Supervisors see fit to make the unexpected change?

But this is merely incidental to the main charge that county officers show no disposition to enforce the State ABC act. With Mr. Pentress we are in complete agreement that "it is as incumbent on county officers to enforce this law as any other now on the statute books." Obviously, such a course has not been followed. What defense can the Chief present to this accusation? If he assumes the responsibility of recommending the dismissal of an officer again whom NO VALID COMPLAINT has ever been leveled, then, certainly, he must assume the further responsibility inherent in this charge of non-cooperation.

Mr. Pentress often has been presented as a fanatic where illegal liquor is concerned. But Mr. Pentress, apparently, has done no more than his duty, and the recital of his actions while a member of the county police force reflects a measure of credit that is lacking elsewhere. His dismissal on what appears to be unwarranted grounds may be as damaging to the morale of other officers as that dismissal is discouraging to State and Federal officers charged with the enforcement of the liquor laws.

We hold little hope that Mr. Pentress will be reinstated to his old position. That action, as we see it, is a definite and discouraging blow to those county residents who believe in law enforcement and who like to believe that a similar view is held by those charged with that responsibility.

BEAUTIFYING TIDEWATER VIRGINIA

In an interesting article published in a recent edition of The Tidewater Trail, Clifford J. Millard, of Norfolk, wrote on a subject that should be of general interest to residents of the Beach and county communities. Said Mr. Millard in part:

"It is not grand that Japanese Cherry trees have been planted by the Commonwealth along some of the highways in Virginia? Short as is the time cherry blossoms remain on the trees, they have for years drawn multitudes to Washington in uncertain weather and before the usual vacation season.

"The Charleston Gardens are the mecca of thousands; the blossoms in the Piedmont sections of Virginia attract many visitors. The fruit tree blossoms in Virginia, Maryland and North Carolina are lovely. Other orchard states, by assiduous efforts, have increased the 'tourist travel' with satisfactory results.

"Tidewater Virginia, Maryland and North Carolina have seemingly overlooked their golden opportunity to beautify their highways during the summer vacation months.

and lovely as trees in Spain in the month of May."

"Was it the crepe myrtle? There appears to be proof that Cuba has native crepe myrtle trees of great beauty when in bloom. In her book, Mrs. D. Geraud Wright, daughter of General Wightall, has recorded the pleasure of finding crepe myrtles in bloom in Texas eighty years ago. Spanish-speaking people settled in Texas; they probably introduced the crepe myrtle shrubs and trees into their new home state.

"The garden clubs of Eastern Shore Virginia, Delaware and Maryland have demonstrated their success in ornamenting their respective highways by planting crepe myrtles. When Tidewater Virginia, by example and precept, shall have determined soon to move to make her visitors in vacation times happy to find our crepe myrtles in bloom for weeks, they and their hosts will be examples to our neighbors.

"If Branden Vandeventer, Norfolk's member of the State Commission on Conservation and Development, is supported in his effort to bring about the development of increasing tourist visitations, the entire Commonwealth certainly will be benefited by the increasing numbers of tourists in the late summer months.

"Crepe Myrtles bloom to perfection in the sunny spaces on the highways. The dogwood and early blooms and flowers are habitats of shady nooks. Let us plant crepe myrtle trees!"

SONNET

That grief beyond all comprehension known
Which comes in shrouds of blackness of the night
Smothering all the loveliness in sight,
Chilling the spirit like wild winds that moan—
How are the conquered ever to atone
When they no longer have the will to fight?
Why should a soul be made to soar in flight
Back to those skies where aged suns have shone?
Until that time, when vast oblivion
Must come to take all tired lives to rest,
We should be thankful—who are truly orest—
For many friendships made and contacts won.
With tolerance for all—this is the test
Of life which ends much as it was begun.

WHITE HORSE

Like a ghost he stood
In dusk against the wood
Beyond the meadow there;
His breath a vapor in the autumn air,
No movement but the wind along his mane.
Old horse, all day in pasture, rain or sun, wind or none;
Worn out and done,
No more the harness or the saddle, no more
The weariness of evening heavy at the old barn door;
Last years or months or days alone in pasture. Grow fat, laze in the sun, night after night stand in the meadow, quiet, still; before men come for you over field and pasture land.

KNOWING THE SWEETEST LYRIC

You beg a poem swearing constancy?
What words, beloved, can express the heart,
That fickle instrument foredoomed to be
First torture, then delight? If I should start
This pen to paper, still would it be vain;
For truth today tomorrow is untrue,
Misunderstood and powerless to explain
All that you are to me or I to you.
What rhymes we know let serve familiar things—
Trees bowed by storm, the moon that rides the night—
Holding unto ourselves the clamorings
Of heart and heart, the laughter, and the bright Reproachless tears, which I so freely give,
Knowing the sweetest lyric is to live.

At The Water's Edge

SPIDER ARCHITECT

After several years of attempting to do such, we are ready to confess that we know of no really satisfactory way in which to review a book of poetry merely by talking about it. Thus, as we glance again through Mary Sinton Leitch's latest volume, which takes its title from the first poem, "Spider Architect," seeking a cue for our introduction, we admit ourselves baffled and plan, instead, to reprint some few of the poems which we like especially well.

Not that Mrs. Leitch's poetry defies a review. Everything to come from her pen that we have read has been especially satisfying. We remarked in these columns two weeks ago that she writes of "homely things, best of all, perhaps, of the water which she loved so well," and into her poetry she instills such feeling, such perfect description, such interest—not to mention an entirely creditable meter and phrasing, which is the essence of poetry—that no one can read without experiencing the beauty and the realities of living which she depicts.

Best of all, Mrs. Leitch is not a poet with a "cause." So much of what is written today smacks of the revolutionist or the social sciences that, for what is to be obtained from a reading, one might just as well take down a textbook or the latest copy of the "New Masses." It might be said, and without the suspicion of triteness, that Mrs. Leitch's field is the world and the emotions and activities of man, and the beauty which one senses is essentially a simple beauty, which even the unschooled may understand. And yet, there is depth as well, and the combination is a delightful one.

We would recommend that a copy of "Spider Architect" be added to every library in the county. For ourselves, when winds howl outside our doors and the sea grows more restless than its usual course, we shall sit before our fire and, when wearied by our major reading of the night, we shall reach for our copy and read again some few of the poems that we love best. And that—view it as you will—is the only test of a really good book.

Fearing an accusation of flattery from the author, we shall say no more of her latest verse, except that we must add our expression of genuine appreciation for what she here has done. "Spider Architect" marks Mary Sinton Leitch as one of the really outstanding poets of this age.

Now we quote at random from the volume published by G. P. Putnam's Sons and illustrated most effectively by Dorothy Crose.

SPIDER ARCHITECT

What secret, spider architect,
Is yours that you can swing
Across the sky upon a bridge
Of rainbow ravellings;
With spiders built of gossamer
Can span this perilous water
And make of April sun and rain
Your bricks and your mortar?

Who ever heard of holding
A flying arch in place
With piers of water lilies
And Queen Anne's lace?
Who ever thought of using Moonbeams for metal,
Or dared to tread a shining thread
From thorn to lily petal?

Mist-spun . . . dew-spun . . .
My wanton hand has torn
The moon-spun, star-spun
Cable from the thorn:
Arch and tower have fallen;
One more bridge of dream
Leaves shreds of broken beauty
Above a dark stream.

INDEMNITY

To be stripped bare;—in one swift hour of flame
Beggared of all that gives to hand and eye
The invisible past, that sets it in a frame
For memory's keeping. Heavy now shall lie
Upon my years obliterating sands.
How close the heart is knit to wood and stone
I did not know, or how the empty hands
Can clutch the air in long night hours alone.
Yet as the waters ebb from flooded shores
But flow in surely toward the naked beach,
So now a freshening tide of beauty pours
Upon me. Only empty hands can reach
For flowers and stars; more richly now are mine
Dusk of the cedar, purple of the vine.

DRIFTWOOD

If you build me a fire of wood from the hill,
Of knotted dry boles of the pine,
I shall sit content with the child and wife
And shall think on my sheep and my kine;
I shall think on the udders heavy with milk,
On the meadow lands sweet with hay,
And the voices that call from the sea will fall
And die into silence away.

But build me a blaze of wet driftwood
Impregnate with dreams of the sea,
And I shall forget for the fire in my blood
My kin and my kine on the lea.
With the blue of the skies that are held in the deep,
And the green of the hollows where mermaids sleep,
With the pink of the coral that pillars an isle
Where the sun is golden on sands that smile,
With the white of the breast of an albatross
And the yellow of stars of the Southern Cross,
With the delicate opal of mist, the grey
Of a vanishing sail, with the dawn of day—
All—all in the flame, I shall stir, I shall wake
To the sound of the sagging sails that shake,
To the sting of the brine and the lash of the spray,
I shall sit by the fire and stare and stare
While the old wife nods in her rocking-chair.

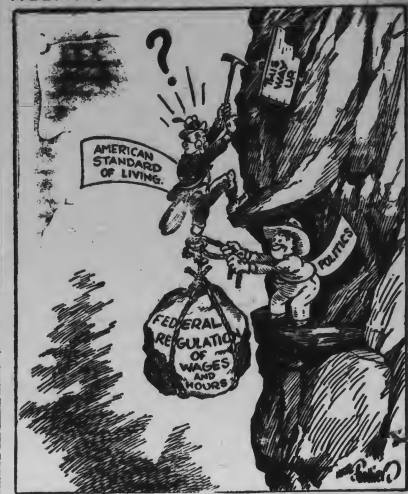

Let driftwood that gleams
With the old sea dreams
Still toss on the ocean's breast,
And build me a fire of dry pine knots,
For that is the safest and best,
I would hide in peace by my hearth at home,
So choose me some wood unwhashed by the foam
And light it and let me rest.

ON THE PRAIRIE

Always my heart has found the sea,
Though banished to a distant plain
The wind has brought the sound to me
Of surf, and salt has been the rain.

From woods and mountains near or far
Still I have seen the breakers comb.
Always for me the Evening star
Has risen: though inland, on the foam.

HELPING THE MOUNTAIN CLIMBER

Now there is no more sea, nor ought Save endless achingly prairie reaches,
Beyond the hope, beyond the thought
Of water broken on the beaches.

Lost . . . lost . . . the sea. On beautiful
Slow-moving tides the moon may spread
No more her silver as they hulk
The living and lament the dead;

Nor starry silences of night
May break in music on the shale.
For me shall burn no harbor light
Nor lean on any sky a sail.

No more upon my cheek the sting
Of spray; no longer on the gust.
The poised gulch crying . . . Storm can bring Naught to my heart but dust.

THE RANKEPUT

Some put a bullet through the head;
He laughed and built a cottage,
And long grown old on aquab, instead
Grows young on simple pottage.

So swift his wheels sped past a rose
He scarce perceived it fragrant,
But now he walks and sweetly knows
What nature give a vagrant.

And he who told the heavy hours
By dollars he was winning
Now lightly counts by jasmine flowers
Or by a spider's shining.

More could be quoted, for the entire volume is quotable, but the limitations of space take us away from Mrs. Leitch's verse. Heartily do we commend it to all who seek a bit of the beauty that is life itself.

As Others See It

GENIUS OF THE SATEVEPOST

The passing of George Horace Lorimer, the man who built the Saturday Evening Post, removes from the American scene an individual who influenced magazine publishing and public thinking in this country enormously. We once heard Norman Thomas, the Socialist, remark ironically in an address delivered at the University of Virginia: "I believe it was an ancient Greek who said, 'I don't care who writes the laws of a country, so long as you let me write its Saturday Evening Post.'" There was something valid in the implications of that remark, even though it might be difficult to identify the particular "Greek" in question.

The Satevepost has long since become an American institution, and millions who may never have heard the name of Mr. Lorimer look to it weekly for guidance. It is, in large measure, the mouthpiece of middle-class America, the authentic voice of the American business man who has assembled a fair share of this world's goods, who has a car or two in the garage, an electric refrigerator in the pantry, and settled convictions concerning economy which he does not wish disturbed by those whom he is accustomed to regard as "parlor pinks," if not outright "Reds."

Cyrus H. K. Curtis, who bought the magazine in 1897 when it had 1,800 readers, but Lorimer in charge two years later, and its circulation rocketed, just as that of Curtis' other periodical, the Ladies Home Journal, had done shortly before, under the editorship of Edward Bok. In Bok and Lorimer, Curtis was fortunate in securing two men who tapped the springs of American ambition in an era when this country was surging forward to what some called its "manifest destiny." They were geniuses in their sphere, and they revolutionized a major segment of the field of magazine publishing in the United States. The success of the Ladies' Home

Journal caused various other similar periodicals to be founded, while the equally astounding rise of the Satevepost likewise stimulated the establishment of competitors.

The result is that today there are a dozen or two magazines with circulations of 1,000,000 or more, and the mass appeal they are able to make is utterly unlike anything known in this country prior to the turn of the century. At the head of the list is the Satevepost, which will ever remain a monument to the ability of George Horace Lorimer. You may read it or you may not, but you must admit that it is one of the most powerful forces for molding public opinion ever developed in this or any other patch.

THE TIME TO INVESTIGATE

The reported rise of vigilante organizations in various parts of the United States is a development which no American jealous of our hard-won liberties and interested in the preservation of democratic institutions can view with any measure of equanimity.

In frontier days the absence of any effective law-enforcement agencies may have justified the creation of vigilante bodies. There is no such justification for them now. However well-meaning their announced purposes, they constitute a covert threat to civil liberties and tend by their activities to break down that law and order which they are presumably intended to serve.

It is entirely in order, therefore, for the Department of Justice, working in collaboration with the National Labor Relations Board and the La Follette Civil Liberties Committee, to undertake an investigation of the spread of vigilantism. Such an investigation is particularly in order in view of the unavailing findings of Senator La Follette and his colleagues in the field of industrial espionage. BOOKS TO OWN

THE ENEMY GODS. By Oliver La Farge. Houghton Mifflin. $2.50.

(A Review by Turner Rose, University of Virginia Extension Reviews.)

Oliver La Farge's Navajos have been gone from the literary scene just long enough to get the fullest possible welcome on their return. "Laughing Boy," Pulitzer prize winner of some years ago, brought a gratifyingly native breath to a season that was revelling in the exotic. The same may be said of the latest La Farge novel, save that to the exotic in contemporary print we are forced to add the neurotic as well. The Navajo must be cleaner in the Alvar country.

La Farge's vehicle is a young Navajo brought to the white mission schools and trying to adopt the white man's ways. The circumstances are not altogether clear from the novel, but apparently until the most recent years the government gave the missionaries the official concession for educating the Navajos. The result of this incredible system is what La Farge works out upon his present hero, Myron Begay. The question is whether the missionaries' influence would be stronger, in the end, than the pull of Myron's blood to the old tribal customs.

Myron decided to walk the Jesus Trail but his friend, Jack Tease carried ritual pollen and scattered it when he went to church. Lying in the dormitory and listening to Anais songs outside, Myron had an inclination to backslide. He knew, however, that he must be strong to become a great man—he was not going to be a blanket Indian—and that he must avoid listening to something the missionaries called "he a then sermons."

The background, and the chief beauty of the book is formed by the Navajo life. This, it is easy to see, is what La Farge loves: determined regard for beauty "beautiful before me, beautiful behind me, beautiful above me, beautiful below me, in beauty I walk"; the gravity of meeting, the dignity of the old men and of the family councils and of the immemorial tribal rites; the bright, clear colors of the desert and the mountains, the hard bed and the long roads by horseback.

Girls played a part in Myron's development as he grew older. He felt drawn to Ethel Harding, Buckskin's schoolgirl daughter, but when he met War Encending, called Juniper, he momentarily forgot the things Mr. Buca, the missionary, had told him, Juniper was all Navajo and all woman. He met her in an abandoned hogan when a sudden storm turned them both from their travels. Myron left her when the storm was over, for he could not make up his mind to become a blanket Indian again. Yet he intended to come back to her sometime. The essential weakness and indecision of Myron's life became evident. Appalled by his backsliding, he stayed long away from school, and finally went back only because his elders gravely told him the necessity of learning the Bellacanas' (white men's) power so as to aid his own race.

As Others See It

(Continued From Page Two) taking law enforcement into their own hands can flourish only when their activities are shrouded in secrecy. Therefore, the time to check any movement of this sort is before it gets fully under way. In most cases the mere knowledge that the Government is alert to the danger will be enough to dissipate it.

NON-INTERVENTION POKER

Italian insistence that withdrawal of "volunteers" from Spain must be on a man-for-man basis has infused the opening of the new discussions in the London Non-Intervention Committee with a familiar atmosphere of poker politics.

Most estimates agree in placing Italian troops in Spain at about 50,000 and nationals of other nations—among whom are some from countries where such service actually was a voluntary matter—at about 15,000. Five or six all others. Withdrawals of men for man would wipe out all foreign aid to the Loyalist government while leaving four-fifths or five-sixths of the Italian aid to General Franco intact.

France is asking for "proportional withdrawal." Italy counters by enlarging on the difficulties of arriving at the proportions, pointing out the need of a census and the hopelessness of finding a census taker. The logic of the Italian point of view is more apparent than real. Proportional withdrawal could be accomplished on a basis of existing estimates, modified, perhaps, and then indorsed by all parties to the non-intervention agreement. After all, if counting heads is the main point of the volunteer question, it is the Italian heads that remain in Spain that must interest Britain and France more than those that come out.

Nobody supposes, of course, if non-intervention were the sole object of the non-intervention discussions that longer than the two weeks originally suggested, by France for these talks would be necessary. But there is also the question as to which powers are going to have what an Italian paper calls an "advance mortgage" on the future government of Spain. Italy suspects Britain of hoping to place such a mortgage, even if General Franco's fascist insurgents win. Britain suspects Italy, on the other hand, of already having placed one.

And so the game goes. One odd aspect the playing has, however: Not one of the players dares put all his cards on the table, though everyone else's hand—Christian Science Monitor.

BAYNE THEATRE PREVUES

A sing band under Bing Crosby's baton: Martha Raye at her best, plus the hilarious convivings of comic Andy Devine and William Frayley, are pooled for the mad thirty-day race to a fortune promised by the freshest will ever left by man, in Paramount's gay comedy "Double or Nothing" which comes to this theatre for two days, today and tomorrow, October 29 and 30. Mary Carlisle gets into the race on a romantic angle.

Described as more thrilling than her recent "Marked Woman," or than "Dangerous," is "That Certain Woman," which brings Bette Davis to the local screen on Sunday and Monday, October 31 and November 1. It depicts the blonde star as the widow of a gangster killed in the notorious Valentine's Day massacre in Chicago. It takes Bette through many tribulations and persecutions, and shows her battling her way bravely toward peace and happiness. "That Certain Woman" has its romantic hero Henry Fonda and includes such distinguished players as Ian Hunter, Anita Louise, Mary Phillips and Donald Crisp.

Pette Eleanor Whitney plays the feminine romantic lead opposite Johnny Downs in the gay comedy romance "Blonde Trouble" which will be shown, Tues., Nov. 2. The cast also includes Lynn Overman, El Brendel, Terry Walker and Benny Baker. "Blonde Trouble" tells of a youngster who went to New York to make good in the song writing business and soon found himself up to his ears in trouble when a beauty, played by Miss Walker, who thinks he has money takes him over. Also scheduled for Tuesday is "King of Gamblers," a story of the slot machine rackets in a big city. Akim Tamiroff, in the title role is an underworld czar who lavishes the millions his crooked machines bring him on Claire Trevor, a Club entertainer. The girl falls in love with Lloyd Nolan, a newspaper man, and both connive to smash Tamiroff's racket. The cast also includes Larry Crabbe, Helen

OH, DON'T SAVE YOUR KISSES - WHEN THEY'RE MADE OF MERINGUE!

You can't save your kisses when they're made of meringue! Those dainty wisps called "kisses" that are cooky and candy and topping all in one. But learn to know the meringue family and you won't need to save them.

There are four kinds of meringue, which is itself a delicate mixture of beaten egg whites, sugar and flavoring. "Soft" meringue is the topping we put on pies (ah, ponder the glories of lemon and chocolate cream!) and sometimes on puddings and cakes. "Hard" meringues are baked longer, slower, to make a confection-like dessert or a shell to hold fruit and cream and filling. "Basic" meringue, often called "Italian" meringue, is made with syrup and the beaten egg whites and this mixture is used as the basis of sherbets and ice creams. Frostings are really meringues, and then there are Marguerites - crispy crackers spread with meringue and topped with fruit or nuts or jelly. Macaroons belong, with Kisses, to the Meringue family too! So never toss away your egg whites, use the yolks for mayonnaise or Hollandaise, but treasure those egg whites!

MERINGUE RECIPES

Date Meringues
2 egg whites.
3 cup sugar.
1/2 cup chopped almonds.
1 cup sliced pasteurized dates.
1/2 teaspoon vanilla.
1/4 teaspoon salt.

Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; beat in sugar 1 at a time. Add salt and vanilla. Fold in sliced dates and chopped nuts. Drop mixture by rounded teaspoons in smooth mounds on well oiled baking sheet or inverted pan. Bake in slow oven (175 degrees F.) for about 30 minutes. Meringues will be dry on the surface and very slightly colored. Cool for one minute before removing from pan with spatula or broad-bladed knife. 24 meringues.

Easy Lemon Meringue Pie
Follow directions on package of lemon-flavored kreme! for making lemon filling; while mixture is still warm pour into baked pie shell; cool. Make meringue by beating 2 egg whites until stiff but not dry; add 2 tablespoons sugar gradually, and continue beating until peaks will form when dropped from spoon. Spread on top of lemon filling in baked shell and brown in slow oven (300 degrees F.). Grapefruit Meringue Sherbet 1/2 cup sugar.

European Cream Filling for Meringue Cups

2 egg whites.
Four grains salt.
1/2 cup granulated sugar.
1/4 teaspoon vanilla.
Meringue Cups: Beat egg whites and salt until stiff but not dry. Beat in about 3 sugar gradually, fold in remainder of sugar and vanilla. Cover an oiled baking sheet or molding board with ungreased paper. Place mounds of meringue mixture on paper to make circles about 2 inches in diameter; shape into nests on paper, by swirling spoon around in center of meringue mixture until small hollow has been made. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees F.) for about 45 minutes, or until shells are dry on the surface. Remove from paper while warm; if meringues seem to stick, moisten the reverse side of paper slightly with damp cloth.

Notes On Making Meringue

Warm egg whites before whipping them for meringue.

Use granulated sugar for sweetening meringues-gives best results.

Don't forget the "pinch of salt" in making meringues.

Be sure to watch your recipe for the correct stage of beating egg whites.

INSURANCE FUND IS DUE WORKERS

Thousands Of Dollars Lying Unclaimed In Offices Of Social Security Board.

Thousands of dollars are now lying unclaimed in the United States Treasury because those to whom the money now due under the old-age insurance provisions of the Social Security Act have not filed claims for the amounts due them, Horace K. Dickson, Manager of the Norfolk Field Office of the Social Security Board, which serves this area, said this week.

A large number of workers in covered employment who have reached 65 since January 1, 1937, and the estates or relatives of eligible workers who have died since December 31, 1936, apparently are unaware the Social Security Board is making lump-sum payments now to those eligible persons who file claims, Mr. Dickson said.

Few Claims Filed

The same situation which exists in this section seems to exist throughout the country, inasmuch as up to August 1 the number of claims filed throughout the country for lump-sum payments totaled only a fraction of the 320,000 lump-sum payments actuarial experts estimated would fall due during the calendar year of 1937, Mr. Dickson said.

In Region IV, comprising Virginia, the District of Columbia, Maryland, North Carolina and West Virginia, there have been 1,712 claims filed to date. This is only a part of the number the Social Security Board believes are due and would pay if those eligible filed claims.

There have been 399 claims filed in Virginia. The Norfolk Field Office has received some 50 claims. The number of claims filed in other states in Region IV, up to the end of September, are: District of Columbia, 151; Maryland, 601; North Carolina, 389, and West Virginia, 332.

Confusion Cited

"It is probable that many persons to whom lump-sum payments are due have not filed claims because they do not know the Social Security Board is making such payments now. They may be confused by the wide notice given the fact that payment of monthly old-age benefits will not begin before January, 1942.

"Another reason may be that the sums due to many persons are small. The lump-sum payment amounts to 3 1/2 per cent of the total wages of the eligible worker. For example: Suppose wages totaled $1,000; the 3 1/2 per cent lump-sum payment would be $35; if wages totaled $100, the 3 1/2 per cent lump-sum payment would be $3.50. Many workers seem doubtful about what is meant by 'total wages.' Total wages, under the Act, means the sum of all wages paid by all employers for all the time an employee worked in covered employment after December 31, 1936, and prior to death or reaching 65, not counting wages over $3,000 from any one employer. Naturally the lump-sum payment due a man who reached 65 on January 3, after being paid for one working day, will not be as great as the amount due to the man who received an equally daily wage every working day since last December 31 till now.

Yet another reason many eligible persons have not filed claims seems to be they do not know they are eligible. Lump-sum payments now are due to two groups of persons:

Two Eligible Groups

"First, to the worker himself who has reached 65 since January 1, 1937, and who has been paid wages for work done as an employee since December 31, 1936, and before he reached 65, in any employment which is not specifically excepted under the old-age benefit provisions of the Act;

"Second, to the estate or relatives of a worker; no matter what his age, who has died since December 31, 1936, provided the deceased worker has been paid wages for work done as an employee after December 31, 1936, and before he reached 65, in employment which is not specifically excepted under the old-age benefit provisions of the Act.

"Every assistance will be given by the Norfolk Field Office of the Social Security Board to those who inquire about payments or who wish to file claims."

Maria Robbins, who died in Bath, England, aged 65, served five generations in the family of the late John Danvers.

For Autumn In Town When Leaves Turn Gold

New York-Paris Fashions

TWO new autumn frocks in "Acetate rayon" yarn, suave in design and with fabric charm that fits well with the mode of the later year, are shown above. At the left, is a pencil-slim mat crepe black coat frock with plastic button closing from revers to hem and worn with a bright hued Ascot. This looks well in star sapphire, blue, brown, Porto wine, or hawwood green. Accessorizing accessories complementing the simple frock include an off-the-face black French felt with cross front bandeau.

a soft antelope top handle bag and doekin gloves. The other gown is a simple one-piece corselet frock to be had in black and the same rich Fall shades as the other. Note the slimming effect of the slightly flared skirt and the smart complementing accessories, an off-the-face intricately manipulated French felt beret, top handle bag and short gloves. These are two effective back-to-school or town outfits that are in full accord with the prevailing mode.

WORKS PROJECTS WILL CONTINUE

WPA assistance so long as the job is available. It is the belief of the conferees that such an order will force many laborers back to the fields during the time that their services are in greatest demand. The WPA officials reserved the right to rescind the order to the project supervisors if the growers abuse the concession made them by seeking to hire men for less than the one week's employment regarded as the minimum idea of private employment by the Federal Government.

Willing To Close Projects

Were the county to discontinue all WPA activity, Mr. Burden, head of the local office asserted, unjustified suffering would result, for many of the persons now on the relief rolls have no aptitude nor experience in farm work. More, he told the board, most of those on relief were too old or infirm to tackle jobs in the fields.

However, he continued, WPA was willing to close down any project at any time for as long as the county officials desired. When he proposed that the project supervisors be given the authority to drop available farm hands from the WPA rolls upon the representation of a county farmer, the board agreed that this was a much better plan than absolute curtailment of all relief activity. Virginia Beach projects would not be affected whatever decision the county might have made.

Ditching Project Approved

The Supervisors approved a new project for the ditching and draining of the coastal area from East Ocean View to the Lynnhaven Inlet as a mosquito control measure. Of the total cost, $78,842 will be paid by the Federal Government, $5,700 by Norfolk City and the remaining $68,000 by Princess Anne County. This local assessment will approximate the amount usually spent for oil needed in this area for the eradication of the common pest mosquito.

It also was agreed that the new ditching project would be continued during the fall and winter months. The county will pay 15 per cent of the total cost of the project, which is estimated at about $3 per person per month. About 26 women are now employed in this phase of WPA activity.

The tax suit instituted about seven years ago against Norfolk City for the collection of approximately $100,000 of unpaid taxes on watershed property in the county will be prosecuted at the earliest possible date. The Board has agreed. A request from John N. Sebrill, Norfolk City Attorney, asking the board to sign a consent order removing the case from the Supreme Court Docket was refused upon the recommendation of Paul W. Ackiss, Commonwealth's Attorney.

The long-delayed suit was postponed until the outcome of a similar suit brought by Nansemond County had been determined. The verdict in that case was announced recently, under the terms of which the State Supreme Court upheld the verdict of the lower court, favoring the Norfolk position, by a vote of four-to-three.

The property owned by Norfolk City is located in the Kempsville, Seaboard and Lynnhaven Districts. And it is the contention of Norfolk officials that the property is untaxable. Merriwether I. Lewis, attorney of Williamsburg, and Mr. Ackiss, who will prosecute the case, maintain that certain features of the local litigation differ from the Nansemond case and indicate a possibility of success for the county's position.

Hallowe'en Festival Planned For Tonight

The Young People's Sunday School Class of the First Baptist Church, Virginia Beach, will hold a Hallowe'en Festival tonight in the Sunday School building. Fortune telling and games will feature the entertainment program. Money collected from those attending will be used for the improvement of the Sunday School rooms.

COUNTY POLICE RAPPED BY FIB

"of no infraction of the rules or any refusal to obey orders as given" by himself to the former officer. The Chief also was vague in regard to the assertion made by Federal and State inspectors that he had given permission to them to call upon Mr. Pentress for assistance whenever a need for such arose in the county.

T. F. Miller, head of the Federal Investigation Bureau in Norfolk, told the board that he "always went to Mr. Pentress for desired information regarding illicit county liquor activity." Every person in the county with whom he has ever discussed this officer, he continued, approved of his police conduct and vouched for his fairness. His men reported similar tales, he concluded.

Other Officers Indifferent

A Mr. Holland, also of the FIB, asserted that he had never received cooperation from any other county policemen in his seizure of stills and their operators, adding that such contacts as he had had with members of the force other than Mr. Pentress would "not justify calling them for assistance."

V. F. Kelly, inspector for the State ABC Board, reported a conversation with Sheriff Guy Salmons and Chief of Police Halstead as a result of which permission was allegedly given to use Mr. Pentress' services whenever such were necessary. Although several stills had been reported to him by other county officers, he concluded, no one but Mr. Pentress ever had accompanied him on a still raid.

Summing up his defense at the conclusion of the examination, Mr. Pentress recalled his thirty years of service to the county. The accusation brought by the Chief, he said, was the first ever leveled at him during that entire period of service, and the complaint he stated, did not merit the dismissal order approved by a unanimous vote of the board.

He had tried, he said, to be an efficient officer, to serve the residents of his district "without fear or favor," and to enforce equally all laws drafted by the State or County. "It is as much incumbent on a county officer to enforce the ABC Act as any other law," he asserted. Although his district, containing ten Negro settlements, was much too large to give adequate police protection at all time, he did his best, and, as a consequence, Mr. Pentress concluded, he had taken the opportunity to prove the charges untrue and to vindicate himself in the eyes of the board and the county residents.

No action was taken by the board upon the conclusion of Mr. Pentress' case. Private reports were circulated to the effect that no further action was contemplated.

Vacant Positions In Civil Service

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced open competitive examinations as follows:

and it is the hope of the association that that record can be bettered this winter. The effectiveness of the association in eliminating tuberculosis, it was pointed out, is limited only by the response made by the general public to the campaign.

Hospital Program

Mrs. George Roberts, in charge of the county's educational campaign, has been invited to speak to the delegates, and she will discuss the subject, "How the Colored Hospital is Helping the Tidewater Victory Memorial Hospital." Mrs. F. E. Lutz, president of the hospital association, which has been erected for the treatment of tuberculosis; also will speak.

Other speakers include Mrs. Lufford, elementary supervisor of the county schools, and Don Hill, who will discuss the part played by the schools in spreading educational information on tuberculosis prevention and the use of publicity in presenting the campaign to the public.

Beaver Board Aids Builder of Play Room

THE World's gone round—the correct use of curves is an essential of smart, modern design in construction and display. Beaver board, formerly available only in flat sheets, is now supplied in curved (beaver board) fabricated by an exclusive process. Not only does beaver board come in curves, but it is also made with "built-in" colors—reversible colors—a different color on each side of the board. The smart, modern play room illustrated above shows what can be done by the use of these new beaver board products.

The factory processed curved and colored beaver boards reduce construction costs to a point where even the most modest homes can afford rooms like these and the ordinary carpenter, or even the man who is handy with saw and hammer, can do the job.

The curve is built directly into this board at the factory and four sizes ranging from 6" to 24" in diameter give sufficient choice to permit of almost any arc.

Thus, as the reproduction shows, outside and inside corners can be turned without difficulty and right angles eliminated. This makes for a modern and better looking room and also makes cleaning easier as dust catching angles are avoided.

Not only is the beaver board a boon to those who wish to finish off a room in their home in modern design and at minimum cost, but it fills the need of display men for curved units, flexible, interchangeable, and easy to use at low cost.

The beaver board also finds a ready use for smaller pieces of furniture and many manufactured novelties.

Since beaver board is now available with "built-in" colors on both sides, not only is smart, modern design available but bright, pleasing decorative effects can be had without further painting or other decorative costs.

WPA WILL FEED NEEDY CHILDREN

More Than Three Million Hot Lunches Served in State During Past Year.

No underprivileged little boy or girl in the Virginia public schools will go hungry at lunch time if WPA in Virginia has anything to do with it, according to William A. Smith, state WPA administrator, who this week made public that 3,285,756 hot lunches has been served to school children in the state since the projects of this nature were approved in December, 1935.

"In co-operating with the various sponsors, WPA school lunch projects have fed an average of 26,000 children per day since the program started and projects have been operating in 74 counties with a total of 420 unit projects. With the school session of 1937-38 barely a month old we have already 20 projects in operation with 120 persons employed," said the administrator.

School Board Sponsors Plan
School hot lunch projects like all other WPA projects, explained Mr. Smith, must be sponsored by tax-supported public bodies. Boards of education usually are the official sponsors aided by many civic organizations and individual sponsors who cooperate unofficially with the legal sponsors. The active interest of those official and unofficial bodies and individuals has contributed much to the success of the projects in Virginia as it has throughout the nation, Mr. Smith stated.

Mr. Smith also revealed that 1,000,000 individual children have benefited so far by the Works Progress Administration's school lunch program, and that during the past year and a half 80,000,000 hot well-balanced meals have been served in 10,000 schools throughout the country. "As the net result of this program," said Mr. Smith, "thousands upon thousands of undernourished children have shown a marked increase in weight and general health, and their scholastic averages have jumped perceptibly. Another and very gratifying result of these school lunches is the drop in cases of juvenile delinquency."

Employment Affected

In addition to the contribution which these projects are making to the health of children throughout the state, Mr. Smith pointed out, the projects afford employment for workers exceptionally qualified. While there are very few women on relief with home economics training, workers who are good housekeepers are selected from the relief roll. The chief duty of these workers is to prepare and serve well balanced meals. The lunches are planned by local committees appointed by the sponsoring agency, or in co-operation with the sponsoring agency, and the food and other supplies are secured by the sponsors. In addition to preparing the food and menus, the workers wash the dishes and maintain the kitchen ranges according to the most approved sanitary standards. It also devolves upon the workers to see that the children come to the table with hands and faces washed, that they eat slowly, and if possible consume all the food put before them.

"It is obvious," continued Mr. Smith, "that these workers are not only financially assisted but at the same time obtain valuable knowledge of the proper care of the kitchen and the preparation of economical and well-balanced meals, as well as learn personal cleanliness, which will be of value to them in their own homes. As a result of the training on these projects some of our workers have arrived at the standards required by private employment and have thereby secured permanent jobs."

Blocked Highway Accident Hazard

Cars stopped on the hard-surfaced portion of a State highway were called a tremendous accident hazard by John Q. Rhodes, Jr., director of the Division of Motor Vehicles. "State Police have been directed to pay particular attention to this violation of the Motor Vehicle Code," he said.

The fact that an approaching driver does not expect to find half or even a fourth of the road blocked without being warned ahead of time is the reason for the danger, Mr. Rhodes said. The Motor Vehicle Code is clear on the point, he added. Section 26 provides that no vehicle shall be stopped on the highway so as to impede or interfere with or to render dangerous the use of the highway by others. An approaching driver may be prepared for a slow moving vehicle, but few drivers are ready for a parked vehicle.

"If you must stop, pull off the hard-surface, even if you are only going to take on or let off a passenger," he advised. "Then you can not be accused of contributing to or of being responsible for an accident. Certainly if you block a portion of the road, either in the daytime or at night, you are creating an accident hazard. Your car may not be involved, but your car may force somebody else into the ditch or into the path of an oncoming car. Don't be the cause of an accident when it is so easy to avoid it."

Health Notes

Dentistry And Personal Appearance

"The social and economic value of a good appearance is universally conceded. And the urge that everyone has, from the savage up to the highly refined, to follow fashion's dictates to that end is undeniable proof of this fact. It is equally true, however, that the fundamental basis for a pleasant appearance are normal facial features. That many persons have been denied this foundation because of parental neglect when young unfortunately is true," commented Dr. I. C. Riegins, State Health Commissioner.

"The jaws, mouths and chins of many children through sheer neglect have grown irreparably awry simply because those responsible for their welfare permitted mouth conditions to take their own course."

Normal Care Urged

"Usually, Old Dame-Nature does not ask for unusual assistance to accomplish a satisfactory job. However, when she is confronted with the soft-living handicap which surrounds modern civilization, at times she fails in one-hundred percent efficiency unless she receives intelligent cooperation."

"Consequently, it is of vital importance for all parents to discharge properly their obligation in the matter of the children's mouth development and health. In this connection, adequate nutrition before and after the child's birth, dental attention, and daily dental hygiene practices represent the aids that nature requires in the proper development of the jaws, teeth and mouth."

"The family physician will advise concerning prenatal and post-natal nutritional problems. In addition, the thoughtful parent will obtain the services of a dentist immediately upon the appearance of the baby teeth. Moreover, he will continue to seek his advice throughout the earlier years of the child's life."

"In short, to insure normal dental and mouth development nature asks that a group involving the parent, the family physician and the family dentist work with her. It is the real secret of debouring many of the conditions that lead up to facial defects."

SPECIALISTS

The quality of service in any field of activity depends upon the experience of those engaged in providing that service.

Norfolk and Western employees, from the top to the bottom, have worked on the railroad an average of more than 25 years. That's a record that few industries—railroads or otherwise—can match.

It is a record of long, active experience, which has developed a personnel of specialists on this railroad. Experience which has developed skill of the highest degree; accuracy, efficiency and dependability. In short, experience which has developed and insures the unsurpassed transportation service that the Norfolk and Western Railway provides the shipping and traveling public.

Largely because of these facts, the Norfolk and Western is a solid, permanent, financially responsible organization; a substantial taxpayer which contributes to the support of your public schools and other institutions; an enterprising citizen that aids in the development of your community; a big customer of industry and agriculture; and above all, a progressive railroad.

The Norfolk and Western is justly proud of the long service records of its employees—specialists who are constantly striving to better the railway's service.

When you have freight to ship, or when you travel, use the unsurpassed transportation service—safe, dependable, economical—produced by Norfolk and Western specialists.

VETERANS AIDED BY RED CROSS

Assistance Given To Service Men Continues Large Task Carried Out By Chapters

Assistance to service and ex-service men with their families has continued to be one of the outstanding responsibilities of the American Red Cross, according to E. H. Herbert, chairman of the Princess Anne Red Cross Chapter, who said yesterday that 230,000 men in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard, and ex-service men, had been assisted in some way during the past year by Red Cross chapters.

"In addition to assisting men in active service, or veterans," Mr. Herbert said, "Red Cross workers are called upon many times each year for help in adjusting their family difficulties or in leading aid in countless personal problems whether they are in actual service, in hospitals, or going about their civilian ways after discharge."

Help Program Continues

Disabled war veterans or their widows and orphans in large numbers need the assistance of the Red Cross in securing pensions or other government benefits. Mr. Herbert said, especially since it is the responsibility of the claimant to establish his claim for government assistance. Sick and disabled veterans come to the Red Cross for assistance in entering government hospitals for treatment, or for help in preparing claims for adjusted compensation and government assistance.

"In carrying out such work in the local community," the chairman said, "our chapter has the assistance of Red Cross workers in the Veterans Administration offices, Army and Navy hospitals, and the military stations."

"Our chapters over the country," he said, "helped 225,000 veterans and 8,275 men in the peacetime forces and their families during the past year."

Volunteer Workers

"The Treaty of Geneva, which was signed by the United States in 1861 delegates various duties to the Red Cross in connection with the armed forces of the nations," he explained. "Our organization first did active hospital and welfare work for men under the direction of Clara Barton during the Spanish American War, and work of this kind has not ceased since that time. Today, for instance, the famous Gray Ladies Service in hospitals of the Army and Navy has been given the highest and most commendable endorsement by commanding officers and physicians, and scores of other help for these men are made possible by volunteers working under the Red Cross."

"This work for service men, like other services of the Red Cross, is maintained by the membership dues collected during the annual Roll Call which is held each year between November 11 and Thanksgiving Day," he concluded.

Granby Theatre

Prevues

After playing many of the big cities and towns of the Midwest, Lum and Abner's Pine Ridge Follies Show is coming to this theatre for three days beginning Monday, November 7.

The show scene is laid in Ezra Buzzington's big barn at Pine Ridge, where all the important citizens have gathered to rehearse the Pine Ridge Silver Cornet Band.

Zebe gets in bad throughout the performance and surprises the folks by really singing well, with a good looking girl on each arm—Mae and Marie. Winnie and Jinx and Childie do a lot of fast dancing, both rube and more sophisticated. Orville Van Stickle plays lute and reed instruments than you can shake a stick at; Buddy McDowell makes most of the rollers in the towns he's athemed after listening to him, and Ezra tells all about Abner.

The screen attraction scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is The Jones Family in "Hot Water."

Woman's Auxiliary Will Meet Tuesday

The Woman's Auxiliary of Gallie Church will meet on Tuesday, at three o'clock, at the Rectory. Mrs. Hubert Lloyd will be the speaker. A wife of a missionary, Mrs. Lloyd will discuss Japan.

Mrs. Lloyd is now visiting her mother, Mrs. Burton Myers, at her Virginia Beach home.

TIMBER HINTS

Value of Woodland Should Be Known Prior To Sale, State Service Says

Selling the stand of timber or the trees of any area for a lump sum often is like selling a herd of cattle without counting them, says the Virginia Agricultural extension service. Disposing of standing timber or stumps without knowing the number of board feet or cords of wood that can be cut or the price per thousand board feet or per cord is about the same as selling farm animals without knowing the number or the price per pound.

The Forest Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture makes a number of recommendations to owners of timberland or farm woodlands who have timber or pulpwood for sale. The first suggestion is that the timber owner get a reliable estimate on the cords of pulpwood, or the number of poles or posts, or the board feet of saw timber that is being sold. County Agents can help obtain this service.

Estimates Valuable

A second recommendation is that the seller find out the value of wood products being sold. The sale is likely to be made blindfold unless estimates are made of the number of cords of wood or the number of units of other products being sold.

Studies have shown that it takes nearly twice as long to cut a cord of wood from 6-inch trees as from 12-inch trees, and it requires five times as many 5-inch sticks, or three times as many 7-inch sticks as it does 12-inch sticks to make one standard cord.

When 6-inch trees are cut, it requires six times as many trees to make a cord of wood as it does with 12-inch trees.

Cutting out the poorer trees from 5 to 10 inches in diameter helps the better trees to grow faster, but cutting the smaller-better trees reduces the yield of the woodland.

The national resources committee informed the President in 1908 there were more than 175,000 federal, state and local government units in the United States.

Employed people in Britain number nearly 500,000 more than a year ago.

TB DEATH RATE LOWER IN STATE

Upward Swing Caused By Economic Depression Is Noted In Country As Whole

While recent years of economic depression apparently are producing an upward swing in the death rate from tuberculosis in the country as a whole, Virginia is showing a slight decline, figures released by the state yesterday indicated.

In 1935, the death rate from tuberculosis in Virginia stood at 70.4, while in 1936 it had dropped to 70.0 per 100,000 population.

As one reason for Virginia's happier condition, Miss Leslie Combs Foster, executive secretary of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association, pointed to the fact that the residents of the Old Dominion invest about 3 cents per capita in Christmas Seals each year, the income from this source being used in the steady campaign to cure and control the white plague.

Leads Southern States

As a matter of fact, Miss Foster said, Virginia last year led all Southern States in the per capita investment in Christmas Seals. The Virginia figure, 3.42 compares with 1.10 per capita in North Carolina; 2.14 in West Virginia; 1.84 in Tennessee. But Miss Foster pointed to the need for greater effort in this state because of the fact that Virginia has next to the highest death rate among the Southern States.

Income from Christmas Seals last year reached the all-time record of $81,913, which compares with $78,044 in 1935. Officers of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association entertain hope this year of reaching the $100,000 mark through the sale of the little holiday stickers.

Death Rate Swings Up

According to Dr. Kendall Kmetz, managing director of the National Tuberculosis Association, there was an upward swing in the tuberculosis death rate throughout the country similar to that which came in 1918 when the effect of the World War on public health was exemplified by a sharp increase in tuberculosis mortality. Twenty-four states and the District of Columbia reported an increase in the 1936 tuberculosis death rate over that of 1935. The increase, he explained, had been anticipated by State and city tuberculosis associations, with the result that added stress has been placed upon the need for intensifying the

STUDENTS AIDED BY NYA PROGRAM

1,528 Boys and Girls In Virginia Will Be Recipients Of $205,000 Fund

At least 1,528 Virginia students, each working nine months, will receive from the National Youth Administration a total of $205,170 during the present academic year, Dr. Thomas D. Eason, State Supervisor of the NYA College Program, has announced. On this basis the average yearly earning for each student will be about $135.

More students can be given NYA jobs, Dr. Eason said, by lowering the monthly rate of pay. This rate cannot exceed an average of $10 a month, although some graduate students can earn as much as $40 a month.

Colleges Eligible

Forty-two Virginia colleges and universities, all that are eligible under NYA regulations, will participate this year in the program, he said. The University of Virginia will receive the largest allotment, $25,785 to give jobs to at least 181 students. The next largest, $18,575, will go to Virginia Polytechnic Institute for 148 students.

The allotments are based upon 8 per cent of the enrollment at the institutions as of October 1, 1936.

Other allotments include the University of Richmond, $10,935 for 81 students; Washington and Lee University, $9,690 for 74 students; Radford State Teachers College, $4,135 for 31 students; Virginia State College for Negroes, $3,945 for 37 students; and the College of William and Mary, $12,500 for 96 students.

Each student applying for an NYA job, Dr. Eason said, must show through a detailed financial report, signed by his parent or guardian, that he could not enter or remain in college without the money earned under NYA. He must be between 16 and 24 years of age inclusive.

CLUB WILL SEEK 90,000 MEMBERS

Sportsmen's Federation Dedicated To Better Hunting And Fishing In State

Dedicated to the cause of more and better hunting and fishing in this state, the Virginia Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs is preparing to launch a campaign to enlist among its membership the more than 90,000 licensed hunters and fishermen in the Old Dominion. It has been announced by the officers of the federation.

A program for organizing the state was agreed upon at the recent meeting of the federation in Lynchburg when the 80 to 90 delegates voted to make the federation an active and permanent organization. Collins Denny, Jr., of Richmond, was elected president. Harry D. Guy, Jr., of Roanoke and Wilson Meek, of Richmond, were named vice-president and secretary-treasurer respectively.

The state has been divided into districts and the following directors named: W. L. Pentrea, of Newport News; Charles A. Green, of Ivy; E. E. Harrison, Tunstall; H. D. Clements, Chatham; William Carter, Lynchburg; Edward Whitworth, Front Royal; W. T. Wade, Clifton Forge; Virgil F. Haws, Staunton; Dr. D. W. Fedge, Pearisburg; Dr. Frank E. Hardy, Appalachicola; and Dr. J. F. Robinson, Roanoke.

It was made plain that the federation is to be entirely cooperative and will represent equally all classes of hunters and fishermen. It will take no part in issues of purely local concern. No member club will lose its identity or local influence because of its affiliation with the federation. On the other hand, it has been pointed out, a local club's influence will be tremendously enhanced through membership in the federation.

In carrying forward the movement for better hunting and fishing, it will be the purpose of the federation, its officers say, to enable the sportsmen's clubs to present a united front on behalf of sound and constructive measures to accomplish their desired ends.
